HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — "I'm sort of the 'poster boy' for plum pox," said James Lerew of Lerew Brothers Orchard, York Springs.

Lerew received the 2000 Outstanding Grower Award from the State Horticultural Association of Pennsylvania (SHAP) Tuesday evening. The award was presented not only for Lerew's outstanding contributions to the industry, but he was honored for work to identify and control the plum pox virus in the

Cattle Feeder's Day Features Quality Assurance

MICHELLE RANCK

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Producing a quality product, as any farmer will attest, is not an accident but is the result of education and experience.

At Lancaster's Cattle Feeder's Day Tuesday, producers took the opportunity to educate themselves on topics ranging from the future of the business, handling systems, process-verified cattle, food safety measures, and quality assurance certification.

Process Verified

Ken Jordan, San Saba, Texas, is director of auction sales of the Cattle InfoNet, a branch of e-merge. He also directs several auction markets for his family's business. More than 200,000 cattle have passed through the family's three auction markets.

Take a proactive role, said Jordan, and a portray a confident stance that "You know what you're doing. If you sell that, people will continue to consume beef."

Electronic eartags have been an important tool in Jordan's process verified program.

This year Jordan hopes to see 1 million head of cattle with the electronic identification ear tags, which cost from $2.40 to $3.25.

With these tags, producers have access to getting carcass data for their animals.

Guidelines

All process-verified cattle must meet specific sale guidelines. Benefits, said Jordan, include properly weaned, uniformly sorted animals. Cattle in the marketing facilities all meet same health requirements.

Dept. Declares Moratorium On Planting In Quarantine Area

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Late last week, Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Samuel Hayes Jr. declared a moratorium on the planting of plum box virus (PPV) — susceptible trees or shrubs in the plum pox virus quarantine zones in Adams and Cumberland counties.

The moratorium includes residential or business plantings, as well as new plantings in commercial orchards.

The planting moratorium covers the same geographic area as the quarantine, including all of Dickinson Township, South Middleton Township, and Mount Holly Springs in Cumberland County. In Adams County, the area affected is Huntington Township, Latimore Township, York Springs, the northern portion of Tyrone Township and the eastern portion of Menallen Township.

Extension Welcomes Director, Holds Commodity Sampling

LOU ANN GOOD

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Dr. John Schwartz bid Lancaster Cooperative Extension Association members goodbye Thursday evening. After 10 years as director, Schwartz is transferring to York Extension since he lives in that county.

Replacing Schwartz as director is Leon Ressler, who has worked with the Lancaster Extension for 13 years.

Ressler and Schwartz addressed the 88th annual meeting, where directors were elected and foods served from commodity county groups.

Ressler said, "I remember my first assignment was a nutrient management project with the Rural Clean Water Program in 1987."

Ressler has continued to be a strong force in ag and environmental issues, working with county farmers in nutrient management, composting, manure marketing, odor and fly issues, water quality and water rights.

His position will be filled with another staff person to allow

Pork Expo Includes Market Outlook, Trade Show

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — The 23rd annual Keystone Pork Expo is scheduled next Tuesday, Feb. 6, here at the Lebanon Valley Expo Center on the fairgrounds.

This year's meeting will feature a trade show with more than 30 exhibits and educational seminars for producers.

The Expo will also again sponsor a "Pork Bowl" for competing FFA and 4-H members.

Eastern Region Frozen Eggs

ATLANTA, GA.
Jan. 26, 2001
Report Supplied By USDA

Prices were unchanged to slightly higher on whites, with majority prices unchanged on balance when compared to a week earlier. Trading was only fair, although interest on whites improved. Offerings on whole were adequate to fully adequate and at least adequate on yolks. The undertone was unsettled as offerings on whites were short, balance of other items were irregular. Liquid and frozen eggs (ingredients included) processed under federal inspection in the Eastern region for the week ending January 20, 2001 were 1% more than last week, but 8 % less than a year ago.

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer

ATLANTA, GA.
January 31, 2001
Report Supplied By USDA

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was light and unaggressive, typical of mid-week activity. Seller offerings were generally tight on the 2.5 pound sizes; fully adequate to ample on the 3.0 pound and larger. Live supplies were about moderate; weights were desirable to heavier than desired. Processing schedules were moderate. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 52 to 66 cents. Trade sentiment was fully steady on the 2.5 pound sizes; barely steady on the 3.0 pound and heavier weights. In the parts complex, bone-in breasts were tight. Other cuts were generally adequate or available for the light and cautious buyer.

Northeast Broiler Fryer Parts Part I

ATLANTA, GA.
January 31, 2001
Report Supplied By USDA

Trucklot buying interest continued light and unaggressive during midweek trading. Offerings of bone-in breasts were closely balanced, but boneless skinless breasts at least adequate. Wings were adequate to fully adequate and often available at discounted levels. Dark meat parts were more than sufficient, with legs often in the longer position. Movement into retail and distributive channels was slow. The market tone was fully steady on bone-in breasts, no better than steady on boneless-skinless breasts, barely steady on wings, about steady on the balance.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
January 31, 2001
Report Supplied By USDA

Grain bids moved slightly higher with soybean bids mixed. Export optimism and carryover strength from yesterday. Wheat bids 1 to 3 cents higher. Corn steady to 2 cents higher. Sorghum steady. Soybeans bids mixed, 1 cent lower to 2 cents higher.

More export sales overnight gave some support to wheat bids. Continued crop concerns in parts of HRW wheat growing areas due to freeze damage added support. Corn bids were supported by ideas export business is picking up. Indications are that South Korea and Taiwan are in the market for corn. Soybean bids finished mix on reports of improve export interest from Indonesia but gains are being limited by upcoming Brazilian harvest.

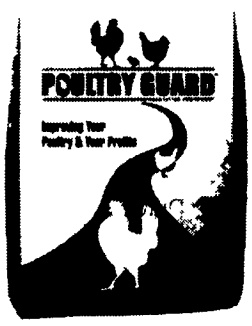
POULTRY GUARD™
LITTER AMENDMENT

New Poultry Guard™ Litter Amendment is a unique activated clay that delivers consistent ammonia control without the handling inconvenience associated with other poultry litter treatments.

Unlike these other treatments, Poultry Guard Litter Amendment is easy and convenient to apply and needs no incorporation or activation Fewer application variables mean more consistent performance In addition, Poultry Guard can be applied up to five days before bird set, whenever it's convenient for the grower.



Using Poultry Guard Litter Amendment Is As Simple As...

Apply
Simply spread over poultry litter.
- No incorporation
- No moisture activation
- No complicated instructions for heating and ventilation in conjunction with application

Bird Set
Poultry Guard can be applied when it's most convenient, up to five days before bird set.
- No application timing headaches between clean out and bird set
- No last minute application after equipment has been lowered

Control Ammonia
Poultry Guard will deliver immediate and long-term ammonia control and give birds a healthier growing environment.
- No more dangerously high levels of ammonia to stunt growth

You be the judge! We are confident this litter amendment will improve your poultry and your profits.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

LOOK BEFORE YOU LEAP

That is, go straight from February 28 into March 1 this year. Many people know that Leap Years are divisible by four; last year we learned that the century years have to be divisible by 400. (2000 was a Leap Year, but 1700, 1800, and 1900 were not.) The even decades have three leap years (2000, 2004, 2008) but the odd decades have just two (1992, 1996).

Another clue is that if the first and last day of the year are the same day of the week (Jan. 1, 1999 and Dec. 31, 1999 were both Fridays), then it's not a Leap Year, but if the days differ, it is a Leap Year. So now you know when to leap.

If you leap into a well, Providence is not bound to fetch you out.

TIP OF THE WEEK

PORK PAPRIKA

2 pounds lean pork, cubed
1/4 cup flour
salt and pepper to taste
2 tablespoons each butter and olive oil
1 tablespoon paprika
1 small white onion, sliced
1-1/2 cups vegetable or chicken broth
1/2 cup sour cream

Dredge the meat in the flour, salt, and pepper. Melt butter in olive oil, then brown the meat in the fat. Add paprika. Add onion and sauté until soft. Pour off excess fat, add broth, and simmer until meat is tender. Stir in sour cream and serve over noodles or rice.

Makes 6 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Turkeys refusing to descend from their roosts indicate snow.

For every thunder with rain in February there will be a cold spell in May.

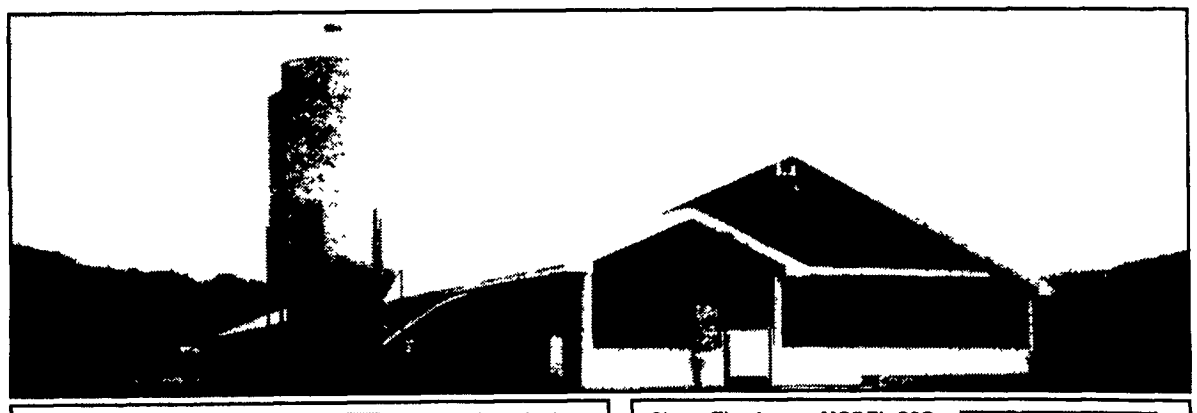
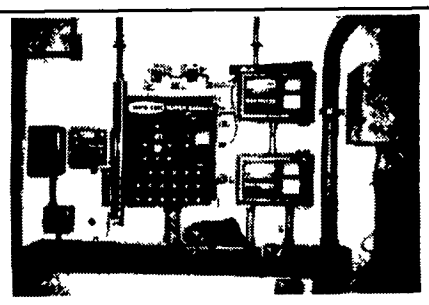
Featuring:

- CHORE-TIME Feeding
- CHORE-TIME Nipples
- CHORE-TIME Ventilation
- Wheeling Painted Galvanized Steel Roofing and Siding
- Poured Walls
- Pole Building



Chore-Time nipple drinkers come fully assembled for quick and easy installation and feature a low profile aluminum support channel. To eliminate problems there is no glue, sonic welding or rubber "O" rings in the nipples, saddles and pipe assemblies.

Chore-Time's new MODEL C2® PLUS Broiler Feeding System gets birds off to a good start, minimizes wasted feed, and provides birds with consistent access to fresh feed. The latest in Chore-Time's 45-year history of outstanding broiler feeding systems, the MODEL C2® PLUS includes a reinforced pan eating area and cone wear surface. This may be Chore-Time's most durable broiler feeder yet.



SIMPLE, VERSATILE, and AFFORDABLE Chore-Time® SUPER-Selector™ PNT Ventilation Control is a user-friendly 12-stage microprocessor control designed to efficiently work with nearly all ventilation methods - natural, negative satic pressure, and tunnel. Easy to operate, this control features two heat and 10 cooling stages. The SUPER-Selector is easy to set up and adjust to fine tune for your building's specific ventilation requirements.

OPINION

Food Policy As Political 'Weapon'

Last week we reported in the paper about several forecasts made by Bob Utterback, Utterback Marketing Services, New Richmond, Ind., ag marketing adviser for Farm Journal Magazine.

For corn and soybean growers who believe ag exports are key to profitability, the good news is that China is a big player now, wanting more grain to feed their expanding livestock industry. Demand for meat protein in China climbs as the country becomes even more "westernized." They need grain, so they'll certainly want to import more because of the recent World Trade Organization agreements and favored trade status.

But there's one caveat: our government's old ways of doing things.

Problem is, U.S. grain producers can become too dependent on those markets, much like we did with pork exports before the Asian financial crisis and before we decided to cut back on loans to an ever-floundering Russia (which used to import a lot of chicken from us).

In the past, when Russia did something to upset our government, we simply cut back grain exports, according to Utterback. Would we do the same with China, as soon as they did something our government disagreed with?

Where, then, would that leave U.S. producers who need to market that grain?

Brings up some interesting questions.

If the U.S. continues to use food policy as an international diplomatic "weapon," as Utterback contends, our own producers are not being served very well, are they?

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Look At Changes In Agriculture

For most of the past 50 years, agriculture has been separated from the consumer and the marketplace.

It has been focused more on production than on profitability and thus supported by government. New farm policy is being directed at farmers being more responsive to consumers and markets. Agriculture is being deregulated. It is being separated from government management and support.

According to Dr. Joyce Cacho, Rabobank International, agriculture is no longer about a cheap food policy but a commercial food industry that has to stand on its own. Farmers must manage their farms as businesses for which there will be fewer rescues during periods of excess production and/or low prices. This is causing consolidated, large production systems to be developed so farmers will have the needed control and scale that consumers, markets, and capital expect.

Agriculture is moving from a food supply driven to a demand and market driven economy. Accordingly, food must be the high quality and value consumers expect. This means food production must be controlled from farm gate to table.

According to experts at Raobank, this does not suggest a few large firms owning production from farm to table, but it does mean production has to be more coordinated and monitored throughout the production cycle. This means production of food must be organized into strategic alliances, partnerships, or systems.

To Adjust To Changes In Agriculture

There is a lot of interest in preserving the farmer. The next farm bill will have a big impact on the future structure of American agriculture.

Based on consolidations that are taking place in agriculture, many experts believe farmers either will become larger or smaller and creative. As the book "Who Moved My Cheese" states: our cheese is being moved and we must find new cheese if our farm business is to survive. The book is about change and how to respond to change.

Dr. David Kohl, Virginia Tech, stated this week in Lancaster, if we eliminate government payments, we will eliminate midsize farms (farms with $50,000 to $250,000 in gross receipts) in the U.S. Farmers, through their organizations, will need to communicate to the public the impact farm policy will have on farm size.

Farmers will need to decide what type of farm they will operate in the future. To be small and creative will require different attitudes than becoming larger.

Regardless of the size, farmers will be facing more paperwork as consumers demand more information on how their food is being produced and what it contains. We need to be creative in how we add value to products.

Now is the time to learn about strategic planning and start doing it for your farm business.

To Understand Trends In Agriculture

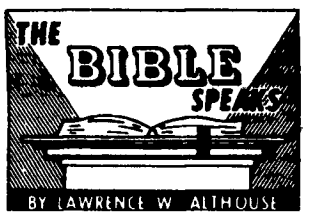
Dr. David Kohl, Virginia Tech, presented several seminars in Lancaster this week.

He made many interesting observations and how they will affect farmers.

In order to have a strong agricultural industry, you need the following: good soils, adequate water, and competent people; infrastructure and technology adaptation; political stability; financial stability; and market accessibility.

One point he made under political stability is you need favorable local regulations that allow farmers to grow their businesses. Also you need to grow your business annually by 10 to 15 percent in gross receipts or 5 to 7 percent in net receipts. The important thing to remember is the world is changing and farmers must change also.

Feather Prof's Footnote: "The difference between a successful person and others is not a lack of strength, not a lack of knowledge, but rather a lack of will."



GRASPING WHAT HE SAYS

Background Scripture:
Luke 18:15 through 19:10.
Devotional Reading:
Matthew 10:34-39.

What an advantage we have over "the twelve," the first disciples of Jesus! We have more than two thousand years and billions of written and spoken words to help us understand what Jesus is teaching us with what he said and did. Yet, for all of that, do we really grasp the teachings of Jesus?

In Luke 18:31-34, Jesus assembles "the twelve" and tells them that he and they are going to Jerusalem where death and resurrection await him. "But they understood none of these things; this saying was hid from them, and they did not grasp what was said." The reason they did not "grasp what was said" is that it was so diametrically different from what they expected of the messiah.

In time, they learned what all of us must learn: anyone who takes Jesus seriously must be constantly prepared to be confounded by him.

They experienced this, not only in Jerusalem, but on the way, too. Luke 18 and 19 are full of surprises. In 18:9-14, the parable of the Pharisee and the tax collector, he totally redefines the meaning of real piety (the Pharisee wasn't, but the tax collector was!).

In 18:15-17, as people were bringing "infants to him that he might touch them," he surprised them again: "Let the children come to me . . . for to such belongs the kingdom of God."

In 18:18-30, his encounter with the "rich ruler" to whom he issues the challenge to "Come, follow me," presents a revolutionary interpretation of discipleship.

Who Is Important?

Then, on the way to Jerusalem, Luke 18:35-43, Jesus demonstrates to his disciples just whom they ought to regard as "important." A blind beggar cries out, "Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!" Told to shut up, the man only cried the louder and to everyone's astonishment, Jesus stopped and restored the man's sight.

A nice thing to do, we might say, but wouldn't it have been better if Jesus had waited to heal someone more important? By his action, Jesus challenged them to see this man in a radically new light.

Then, just in case they didn't grasp his teaching, he did it again as he entered Jericho. Here, it was someone at the very bottom of the social ladder: a rich chief tax collector. Because they worked for their Roman oppressors and became rich while doing so, they were the ultimate swine of society. We can hardly appreciate their sense of shock and outrage when Jesus went with him to his house. What could have been more galling than to hear him say to the hated tax collector: "Today salvation has come to this house, since he also is a son of Abraham. For the son of man came to seek and save the lost."

Well, of course, Jesus came to "seek and save the lost," but shouldn't he be more judicious in terms of whom he includes in "the lost?" Surely the kingdom of heaven or even our church — is no place for people of bad reputation. If we deem someone despicable, surely Jesus cannot want that person in his domain?

Sinners Transformed

In this incident with Zacchaeus, Jesus radically redefines the meaning of discipleship. We do not become his disciples by saying, "Yes, Lord, I believe," but by letting Jesus transform our lives as he did the life of Zacchaeus.

He stood up and told Jesus: "Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor; and if I have defrauded anyone of anything, I restore it fourfold."

Zacchaeus did not deny his sins and he was not looking for cheap grace. Yes, he had become weathy on his share of the taxes he gathered, so now he would give half of his wealth to the poor. Nor did he deny that he had cheated some, but he promised to repay them fourfold what he had taken from them.

The tax collector of Jericho truly grasped what following Jesus meant. It was not enough to say, "I'm sorry," but "This is what I'm going to do because I'm sorry." Grasping the meaning of Jesus' teachings means saying "yes" to his challenge in the most active, positive way.

When Jesus told Zacchaeus that "I must stay at your house today . . . when they saw it, all murmured, "He has gone in to be the guest of a man who is a sinner.'"

But Jesus also had a radically different concept of who are the sinners. As the comic strip character "Pogo" once observed, "We have met the enemy, and he is us!", so Jesus teaches us, if we will grasp it, that he came to "seek and save the lost" — and that is us. All of us!

WHAT'S ALL THE CACKLE ABOUT?

Create a Remarkably Clean House Environment

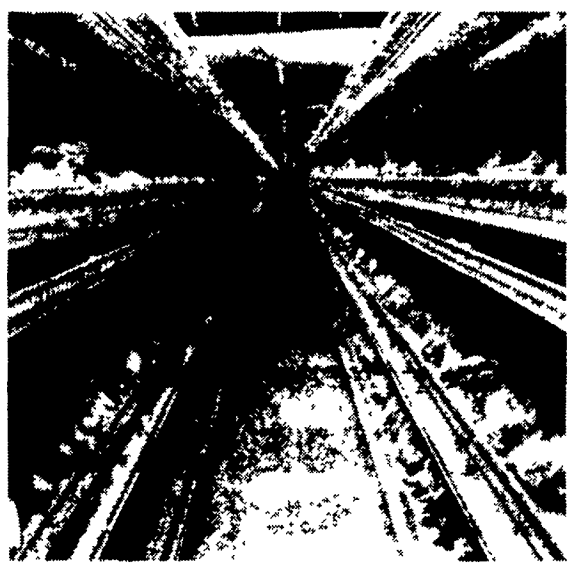
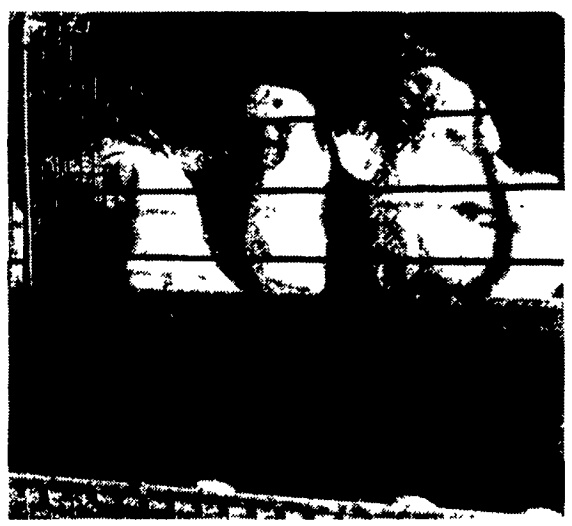
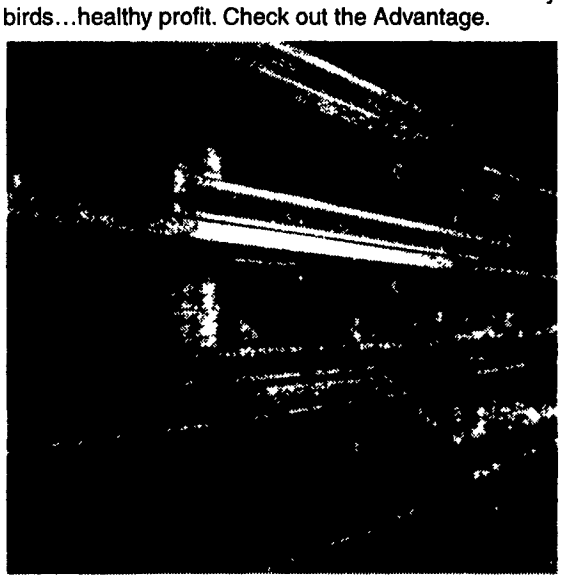
WELCOME TO THE ANIMAL-FRIENDLY Big Dutchman. STAK-AIRE LAYER CAGE SYSTEM



Dust? What Dust? With the Stak-Aire Layer Cage System, you and your layers can breath clean air from one end of the house to the other. Healthy birds...healthy profit. Check out the Advantage.



Odor problems are all but eliminated with this layer cage system. If your operation is in an area where odor is a problem, you need to check out the Stak-Aire System.



Walk the building and prove it to yourself . . . constant temperature top to bottom, side to side. Air to bird cooling. It's tomorrow's system and it's available today.

Flies? If you don't have flies, you don't have to spend money controlling them. Check out this Advantage. It's one of many.

ATTENTION TOBACCO FARMERS

Vector Tobacco Contracts

"Changing the Future of Tobacco"

Consider these options when growing tobacco in 2001:

* $1.50 pound for all grades grown of VT Tobacco, deductions made for 20%+ moisture
* Plants are furnished FREE and delivered to your farm, a savings of over $200 AC
* One year contract with the growers option for two more years
* Growers have opportunity to get in the ground floor of this exciting new idea
* Local, centrally located receiving stations
* A modified tobacco plant to be made into "nicotine free" cigarettes
* No modified tobacco shall be grown within 1320 feet of any other tobacco variety
* Our growers can be proud that they are taking part in something that's positive, while still having the opportunity to make a good living raising one of the best cash crops available.
* Growers have been asking for a direct market to cigarette manufacturers
* Vector would still like to add another 1000 acres in PA
* Call for a packet with information about this new venture

For More Information And To Sign A Vector Contract:

* Mon.-Fri. 9-4 p.m. Trileaf Tobacco Receiving Station, Larry Weaver Farm, 641 Spruce Rd., New Holland
* A rep will come to your farm
* A rep will be at this sale: February 8, Thursday, 11-1 p.m. at Aaron E. & Mattie S. Lapp, 473 Centerville Rd., Gordonville

ATTENTION 41 GROWERS:
Old or new 41 crop, hanging or baled - call Trileaf before you sell.

Tight Milk Means Higher Prices

- Class III and IV futures remain firm.
- Consider locking in milk prices.
- Advanced pricing factors announced.

The dairy futures market at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange provides a forecast of what milk prices will be the rest of the year. The futures prices as of Jan. 26, 2001 were holding steady this week with Class III futures peaking at $11.99 per cwt in October and Class IV peaking at $13.10 by September. Now let's make a comparison. The Class III price in 2000 peaked at $10.76 per cwt in September, while the Class IV price peaked at $13.27 in December.

This recent development in the futures market begs two questions. First, are these good prices for 2001? Second, why are they so high when we have "surplus milk."

Let's answer the latter question first. I think the futures

Hoober & Kubota... We'll Weather Any Storm

Hoober is pleased to offer Kubota's powerful line up of versatile, compact tractors that are perfect for landscaping, nursery, construction, small farm chores, and yes, plowing snow! The strength and durability of a Kubota utility tractor equipped with a high-performance loader will handle a multitude of tasks.

These tractors are designed for maximum productivity, with more hydraulic capacity, high performance power steering and increased engine horsepower. The loader offers a precise balance between easy operation and powerful lifting force, and the operation of the loader requires the use of only a single lever to raise or lower the loader boom, or to dump or rollback the bucket.

(Tractor may be used in nice weather too.)

For over 25 years, Don Beidler has been selling tractors for Hoober. Call him today and get a Kubota, the utility Tractor that will weather any storm

THE NEXT GENERATION FARMER LOAN PROGRAM

There are two times as many farmers over the age of 65 than under 35 in Pennsylvania. This correlates to nearly one quarter of Pennsylvania's farms that will change ownership in the next decade.

To better illustrate the importance of Pennsylvania's agriculture economy, Lancaster County alone generates close to $1 billion in agricultural economic activity each year.

To help strengthen this important economic sector and bridge this transition of ownership to beginning and first time farmers, the commonwealth has developed the Next Generation Farmer Loan Program.

The Next Generation Farmer Loan Program provides below-market rate financing, an average of 80 percent of the prime interest rate, for farmers to purchase land, improvements, machinery, and equipment. The program uses federal tax exempt mortgage financing to reduce a farmer's interest rate for capital purchases.

After meeting your lender's credit standards, the loan is administered through your local lending institution. An applicant must be a new or beginning farmer and a resident of Pennsylvania. He or she must be the sole owner and principal user of the project.

The borrower must not have had any prior ownership interest in a substantial amount of land, 30 percent of your county's median farm size, which in Lancaster would be 19 acres, or have a fair market value in excess of $125,000. The borrower's net worth can not exceed $200,000 to be eligible for the program.

The eligible uses of the funds include agricultural land, agricultural improvements, depreciable property, and purchases from related persons. The maximum amount that can be borrowed is $250,000 per person. However, if the loan is allocated for the purchase of used equipment, the amount borrowed may not exceed $62,500.

The Next Generation Loan Program may be combined with other loan programs. The lender or contract seller makes all terms and credit decisions for the loan program.

The uses of the loan program include the purchase of agricultural land that is located with in Pennsylvania and is suitable for the use in farming and is or will be operated as a farm. Any improvements, buildings, structures, or fixtures suitable for farming which are located on agricultural land will qualify. Personal property suitable for the farming for which an income tax deduction for depreciation is allowable will serve as an eligible use.

Funds may be used to purchase property from related persons as long as the purchase price is at least equal to the market value of the project and the seller will have no continuing financial interest in it, which means having no direct or indirect ownership and they will not be the principle user of the project.

In 2000, this loan program helped five first time farmers in Lancaster County obtain more than $1 million in financing for projects involving $2.4 million of investment in 395 acres of farmland. In 2001, this program is already looking to double those numbers in financing just in Lancaster.

For more information on the application procedure, contact David Nikoloff at the Economic Development Company of Lancaster County at (717) 397-4046 or Gary Smith at the Chester County Industrial Authority at (610) 363-6110.

Chamber Conducts Farm Business School

LEOLA (Lancaster Co.) — Dr. David M. Kohl, professor, agricultural and applied economics, Virginia Tech, second from right, spoke at the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce and Industry's Farm Business Management School Wednesday at Leola Family Restaurant. About 73 producers and agri-industry representatives attended the school, which focused on many aspects of the world economy and how those factors figure in on the family farm. From left, Brent Landis, ag services coordinator for the Chamber; Stan Michonski, chairman of the Farm Business Management School; Kohl; and John Schwartz, Lancaster County extension director. Photo by Andy Andrews

Auction Manager: Association Members Must Pay 3 Cents A Pound On Tobacco Sold

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Though the tobacco auction season may be over, according to Dennis Hess, manager of the auction, growers who sell tobacco privately must continue to pay 3 cents a pound to the cooperative.

Hess said that the association must make up costs of the rented building, tow motors, scales, and all sorts of equipment, and the 3-cent checkoff is necessary.

Many growers are considering and have plans under way to grow tobacco privately next growing season. If those growers are Pennsylvania Tobacco Marketing Association members, that 3 cents per pound must be sent to the association.

There are about 500 members of the association, noted Hess. For growing season 2002, members can notify their intention to resign from the association — but they have only until Oct. 1 this year, when they must send in a written notice. That would apply to tobacco sold after Oct. 1, according to Hess.

For more information, contact Hess at the Solanco Fairgrounds auction site in Quarryville, (717) 786-4389.

Governor's Conference On Delaware Agriculture Feb. 23

DOVER, Del. — The seventh Governor's Conference on Delaware Agriculture will be held Friday, Feb. 23, at the Modern Maturity Center in Dover.

Sponsored by the Department of Food and Resource Economics at the University of Delaware, this yearly conference serves to highlight the economic contributions of agriculture to Delaware's economy as well as bring together interested parties to focus on issues related to the agricultural sector in the First State.

The theme of this year's conference is "Dealing with Risk, New Technologies, and Alternative Enterprises on Delmarva." Topics to be explored include strategies for risk management, research in biotechnology, prospects for Delaware agriculture and agricultural entrepreneurship on Delmarva.

The event will begin with registration at 7 a.m. Following the Friends of Agriculture breakfast, which begins at 7:15 a.m., the first conference speaker will be Dr. Timothy A. Woods, assistant Cooperative Extension professor at the University of Kentucky, who will discuss "Entrepreneurship in Agriculture."

At 8:45 a.m., a discussion on "Understanding Strategies to Deal with Risk in Agriculture," will be moderated by Dr. Don Tilmon, Extension specialist for farm management. At 10:20 a.m., Dr. Robin Morgan, associate dean for research at UD's College of Agriculture and Natural Resources, will talk about "Research in Biotechnology."

From 10:50 a.m. until noon, a panel discussion, moderated by Gordon Johnson, Kent County Extension agriculture educator, will consider "Agricultural Entrepreneurship in Delmarva."

One panelist will be Maryland Congressman Wayne Gilchrist, who represents the Eastern Shore part of that state. He will talk about his efforts to help create opportunities for agriculture on Delmarva, to preserve farmland and to protect environmental quality.

Also taking part in the panel discussion will be Ted and Maria Bobola, owners of a diverse agricultural operation that includes growing agronomic crops, vegetables, field ornamentals, greenhouse plants and poultry. They also run a pick-your-own strawberries operation, a retail flower business, and gift shop.

Lunch will be served at noon. The conference will resume at 1 p.m. at which time Gov. Ruth Ann Minner has been invited to speak about "Prospects for Agriculture in Delaware." An open forum from 1:30 to 2 p.m. will complete the day's activities.

The cost of the conference is $30, and pre-registration is required by Feb. 14. For more information, call ALison De Paola at (302) 831-6540, or e-mail her at adepaola@udel.edu.

Easement Sellers Can Keep More

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Farmers selling agricultural conservation easements want to get the best price they can for their development rights. But capital gains tax often takes a big portion of the sale price right off the closing table.

Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Sam Hayes announced that the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA) has a way for sellers to increase what they get to keep, and not just what they get, when selling easements.

Under a new option developed by PDA, farmers can sell easements using installment purchase agreements (IPAs) that defer all or part of the purchase price for up to 30 years. In the interim, sellers receive interest twice a year on the outstanding balance. As with a municipal bond, interest payments are exempt from federal and Pennsylvania state income taxes.

By deferring payment of the purchase price for up to 30 years, IPAs are designed to allow sellers to defer capital gains tax for a similar period. For many sellers, that means they'll never pay capital gains tax in their lifetimes. Heirs can sell IPAs in the municipal bond market as a way of paying estate taxes or capital gains taxes.

Capital gains tax is due when a seller receives payment for appreciated land or other assets. Capital gain is the difference between the sale price and the value of the property when it was first bought or inherited. The IRS taxes capital gains at a maximum rate of 20 percent, and Pennsylvania at a maximum 2.8 percent rate.

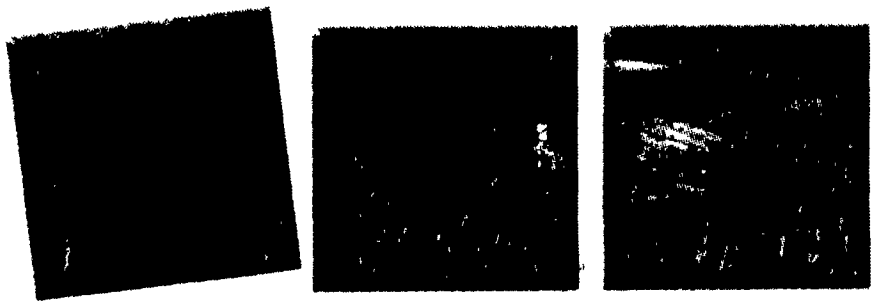
Howard County, Maryland, has used 30-year IPAs to buy easements on 9,200 acres from 81 sellers since 1989. Similar programs are under way in Harford and Anne Arundel counties, Maryland; Virginia Beach, Virginia; and Burlington County, New Jersey.

PDA is recommending IPAs to county farmland preservation boards because the structure minimizes cash needed to close on purchases. The rural character of many parts of Pennsylvania will be lost forever unless development rights are purchased soon. IPAs permit as many as five times more purchases in the short term than if cash were paid for each acquisition.

For more information about installment purchase, contact your county farmland preservation board or Raymond C. Pickering, director of PDA's Bureau of Farmland Preservation, at (717) 783-3167 or rpickering@state.pa.us.

To discuss tax treatment of easement sales, contact Michael W. Evanish, manager of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's MSC Business Services, at (717) 731-3546 or mwevanish@pfb.com.

For more weed control options, it's gotta be Garst®!



Garst® was the first to introduce IT® hybrids for use with the CLEARFIELD* Production System nearly a decade ago. Today, Garst technology still leads the way.

With Garst IT hybrids, there's no yield drag. So, you can keep your options open and use LIGHTNING® herbicide for better weed control, and still get stronger plants and a better yield.

High yield with no yield drag; that's what Garst IT hybrids are all about. For expanded weed control options and plenty of high yield potential, it's gotta be Garst.

Featured Hybrid	GRM	Description
8590IT	106	Top-end yield punch, fast drydown, and CLEARFIELD* herbicide flexibility in the same hybrid. Also available as 8590.

Banquets Honor Producers, Highlight Co-op Growth

MICHELLE RANCK
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Quality work, efficiency of operations, and a hopeful outlook for 2001 were the topics of choice at Mount Joy Farmers Cooperative's banquets conducted for patron members.

Approximately 250 attended a meeting at Yoder's restaurant on Tuesday, more than 230 producers attended at meeting at East Fairview Church of the Brethren in Mount Joy Wednesday, and another 50 are expected at a meeting scheduled in Perry County next week.

Earl and Evelyn Landis, East Petersburg, received the 2000 Top Quality Producer Award. Five of the Landis' last six inspections were 100 percent, and they had 12 consecutive months of quality premiums. They have since retired from farming.

Lancaster County Dairy Princess Liz Young gave a short welcome speech, followed by an extension report from Ken Bailey, Penn State extension.

Optimistic Approach

"The way things get solved is when people work together," said Bailey, who highlighted the co-op's important partnerships. The outlook for the dairy industry is improving, said Bailey, who cited a "tightening down of milk supply" as reason for hope in the future of the business.

Rick Smith, CEO of Dairylea, also had an optimistic view of the industry's future. "It's a great time to be in the dairy industry," said Smith. "The year 2001 is going to be better than anything you're seeing now — everything suggests it."

Smith also emphasized having a positive, optimistic approach to change and adversity. "We will be a more successful industry if we do a better job of coping with change and seeing that the glass is half full instead of half empty."

Price projections are strengthening, he said. The average premium for an 80-cow farm is projected to be $14.17 for 2001, with average components adding another $.20, a figure which may be conservative, pending developments in the West, according to Smith. "2001 will be a great year. It won't be a straight line, but the baseline will go up," he predicted.

"Attitude" Don Risser, president of the board, presented his ideas in an acronym for the word "attitude" in the board report. "A," said Risser, stands for "aims," goals of producers; "T" stands for "team," or using other professionals and resources available for a dairy operation; "T" stands for "together" as a family; "I" stands for "integrity" as producers should keep their promises and fulfill expectations; "U" stands for "united" as the co-op works together; "D" stands for "doing," as he encouraged the audience to "do what we know," and follow through on the information available; and "E" stands for "excellence" in the product and in the way the operation and cows are treated.

Carol Gerhart gave the financial report. The cooperative, she said, grew in number of pounds shipped, up 13.3 percent from a year ago. The organization also showed a 16 percent increase in number of producers, with 49 members joining the cooperative.

Transportation costs increased and the milk sales price was $1.93 less than a year ago.

Co-op Expands

Dale Hershey, general manager, gave the fieldman's report. There were not a lot of new regulations, said Hershey, who congratulated the producers for the stretch from August until mid-December without a rejected load of milk. Hershey also gave the manager's report. The co-op, he said, has doubled its membership inside of six years to 308 active shippers.

According to Hershey, co-op leadership is expecting to ship 500 million pounds of milk in the coming year.

The association supplies nine food processing plants. Covering 27 routes, the organization has 52 nonelectric, non-Sunday pick-ups, 50 daily pick-ups, and owns 23 rigs. Because of increased fuel prices, the cooperative spent an additional $154,000 on fuel last year as compared to the previous year. However, according to Hershey, fuel prices have backed off and stabilized.

The 72-year-old organization, comprised of producers from 11 counties, increased pounds of milk shipped by 13 percent over the prior year, shipping more than 474 million pounds of milk. This year, fuel prices increased by 12 percent per hundredweight to 66 cents per hundredweight. The co-op projects a minimum of 5-10 percent increase in pounds of milk shipped and a continued increase in producer members.

Headquartered in Mount Joy, the association markets milk for dairy farmers throughout southeast and south central Pennsylvania through Dairy Marketing Services, Syracuse, N.Y.

Question: We started to test for MUN two months ago and are wondering what should MUN values be for our herd?

By now, almost everyone has heard or read that average MUN values should fall between 10 and 14. This is the range where we see the highest and most consistent production on all the cows recorded in the PA DHIA test database; the range where all "individual" cows use dietary protein most efficiently. However, when we look at the "herd" overall, we should consider some other factors.

Recently, I visited a herd that serves as a good example of how a factor can help determine where to set the goal for MUN within the acceptable range. We will start out by observing that this is a single ration TMR. This factor presents a challenge as we try to determine protein-feeding efficiency through MUN testing. We see these numbers in this herd.

0-40 days
avg. MUN = 7.4
41-99 days
avg. MUN = 8.9
100-199 days
avg. MUN = 11.3
200-299 days
avg. MUN = 12.7
Avg./total

These numbers represent a common trend in herds that use a single fed TMR. This type of feeding strategy calls for a little different evaluation of the MUN numbers. The low numbers in the early lactation cows indicate that there is a lack of dietary protein, especially rumen available.

This is easy to fix, but you need to realize that the trend is established for this herd and fixing the protein for early lactation will also cause the tail enders to become somewhat inefficient in protein utilization.

My recommendation is to look at the profile of the herd first. In this herd, we used the first lactation group to set parameters because 52 percent of the herd are first lactation. Furthermore, the distribution of milking 2-year-olds was even through days in milk.

This feeding strategy is growing among herds and when we give all the cows the same opportunity for feed consumption, we must address where we generate the most profit potential This would occur during the early part of lactation.

We contacted this herd's nutritionist and fixed the diet to optimize production potential while still maintaining rumen health. We did so by changing to less use of bypass protein and more use of soluble protein.

We now anticipate that the MUN numbers should rise throughout the lactation and the average needs to be 13 to 14. This change will address the highest profit potential animals with some slight protein waste in late lactation. We even got bonus points — reduced cost to the dairyman.

Pa. Growers Sought For 2001 Farmers' Markets

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes today encouraged Pennsylvania's growers to participate in the 2001 Farmers Market Nutrition Program (FMNP).

"Farmers markets are a great tradition of Pennsylvania Agriculture," Hayes said. "The Farmers Market Nutrition Program provides the opportunity for low-income Pennsylvanians to purchase fresh, nutritious Pennsylvania produce."

The Farmers Market Nutrition Program provides checks to eligible recipients to purchase fresh fruits and vegetables from approved growers. The dates of the program will be June 1-Nov. 30.

For a farmer to participate in the Farmers Market Nutrition Program, the farmer must own or lease farmland within the commonwealth on which they produce and sell more than $1,000 of agricultural products. In addition, more than 50 percent of the retail value of produce sold by the farmer under the FMNP must be grown in Pennsylvania or purchased from another Pennsylvania farmer.

The Bureau of Food Distribution is sending out notices to all farmers who participated in the 2000 Farmers Market Nutrition Program. If a farmer is interested in receiving information about the FMNP, contact the Bureau of Food Distribution at (800) 468-2433 or (717) 787-2940.

The Agriculture Department's Bureau of Food Distribution remains strong in its commitment to fight hunger through the administration of several different programs.

In 2000, Farmers Market Nutrition Program received $1.5 million in state funds and $1.9 million in federal funds. More than 400 farmers participated last year in the Farmers Market Nutrition Program.

The State Food Purchase Program, one of the largest in the U.S., provides cash grants to counties to purchase food for distribution to those in need. In the 2000-2001 year, there is $16 million committed to the effort. In addition, The Emergency Food Assistance Program (TEFAP) provided $8 million of USDA commodity to those in need in Pennsylvania.

In the last two years, $5 million was made available to counties to strengthen emergency food-assistance networks across the commonwealth.

Understanding Dairy Markets, Pricing Meetings To Be Conducted

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension in southeast Pennsylvania will conduct four meetings on the topics, "Understanding Dairy Markets and Pricing":

Berks County

• Session #1: Date: Tuesday, Feb. 13. Time: 10:30 a.m. — 2 p.m. Place: Berks County Ag Center. Cost: $2 for lunch, payable at the door. Registration: Call Clyde Myers at (610) 378-1327 by Feb. 9.

Groups Issue Statement Regarding Efforts To Prevent BSE In U.S.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The following statement was recently issued by several breed associations and processor groups regarding efforts to prevent BSE in the U.S.:

"As representatives of cattle producers, feed manufacturers, renderers, processors and veterinarians, we reaffirm our commitment to effective implementation and enforcement of sound, science-based measures to prevent the BSE agent from entering the United States. This includes import restrictions, feed bans, and active surveillance.

"Active surveillance in the U.S. has not revealed a single case of BSE. BSE regulations have a firm scientific foundation. They reflect the wisdom of careful consideration and open debate. Surveillance and enforcement in the U.S. have been vigilant.

"Three components of BSE prevention that should remain the highest priority of industry and government are:

"1) Strict enforcement of import restrictions designed to keep the BSE agent out of the U.S.,

"2) Achieve 100% compliance with the FDA feed ban, and

"3) Continued support for active USDA BSE surveillance in the U.S.

"We pledge our continued vigilance and commitment to BSE prevention in the U.S."

NCBA Posts BSE Information, Statement

DENVER, Colo. — Recently Chuck Schroeder, CEO National Cattlemen's Beef Association, posted a report regarding BSE and the U.S. cattle industry.

"Recent reports indicate that a Texas feed mill may have inadvertently mixed in meat and bone meal derived from U.S. cattle with a feed supplement which later was fed to some cattle. It is important to understand this is a compliance issue, not a safety issue. There has never been a case of BSE found in the U.S.

"The National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA) supports full compliance with FDA regulations that prohibit the feeding of mammalian-derived protein supplements that might be a risk for carrying the BSE infectious agent. We have made it clear to the feed industry and the rendering industry from the start that we expect full compliance. If there are violations of the law - whether purposeful or accidental - NCBA expects these to be dealt with according to law.

"If there are folks within the industry who don't understand the seriousness of the situation, they need to be brought to understand it — both by communication from the industry and if necessary by penalties from the regulatory authorities involved. There is simply no excuse for non-compliance. As an industry, we are unwavering on that.

"This is not a safety issue because the meat and bone meal in question originated in the U.S., and there has never been a case of BSE found here. The FDA feed regulation ban is a critical firewall measure and was implemented as an extra precaution.

"While BSE is not found in the U.S., the feed ban assures that if BSE somehow ever did get into this country, it would not spread and could be quickly isolated and eradicated. It should be noted that just feeding mammal-derived proteins to cattle does not in and of itself cause BSE. BSE is only spread through feed if that feed is contaminated with the BSE infectious agent.

"The BSE agent only has been found in central nervous system tissue including brain, spinal cord and retinal tissues. The BSE infectious agent has never been found in muscle meat, which is the principle way beef is consumed in the American diet."

Background Information

Because NCBA views compliance with the FDA feed regulation as a top priority, the organization hosted a meeting in Washington, D.C., on Monday to discuss this issue.

Planning for the meeting began last November. NCBA invited officials of the FDA Center for Veterinary Medicine, the USDA Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, the feed industry and the meatpacking and rendering industries to the meeting to discuss ensuring full compliance with the FDA rule.

This meeting was timely, given the situation with the Texas feed mill. The mill discovered the potential mistake and notified the feed yard. The feed yard then ceased to use the supplement in question.

The cattle fed the supplement have been identified and are being voluntarily held pending FDA's testing of feed samples. FDA expects to have the results of these tests early next week and will determine if meat and bone meal is present and, if so, in an amount sufficient to be of consequence.

The issue, reported Schroeder, is not a safety issue. Ten years of USDA surveillance and testing of suspicious cattle has never found BSE (bovine spongiform encephalopathy) or any similar disease in U.S. cattle. It is a regulatory/compliance issue, and as such, FDA is taking action.

For current information on BSE, Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease and new variant CJD, visit NCBA's scientifically reviewed information resource at www.bseinfo.org.

Ressler to assume duties that now require him to supervise staff, develop the extension budget, and serve as a liaison between the extension and many community groups.

Ressler received a degree from Penn State in agronomy and plant science. He also studied at Columbia Bible College, and he and his wife, Lou Ann, served a six-year mission term in Kenya. When they returned to the states, they settled on Lou Ann's family's farm in Fulton. While working with extension, Ressler studied for a master's degree in pollution control. He, his wife and their four children, Lynn, 18; Lee, 16; Lorielle, 13; and Lyle, 11, raise strawberries and bramble berries on their 8-acre farmette.

Ressler is a school board member for the Solanco School District and is active in many capacities at the New Danville Mennonite Church.

In March, Ressler will assume writing the column "Now Is The Time," which appears in this paper and had been written by Schwartz.

Schwartz said that working with county agencies on land use and farmland preservation issues were a highlight of his years with the extension.

"In this county people come together, look at issues, and implement ways to make things happen," Schwartz said. He used the Egg Quality Assurance program as an example. The program had been implemented in the county and was later adapted to statewide use.

This past year, the extension distributed 151,836 newsletters and publications, offered individual assistance to 39,965 people; held 5,301 meetings attended by 55,700 people; have 3,415 4-H members who com-

Schwartz said that Lancaster and York Counties share many similarities. The extension staff is comparable in size and is addressing land use and ag economic issues.

Schwartz said the shorter commute to work will allow him to spend more time with his wife and children, Katie, 13, and John, 10.

In other business, the extension elected the following as directors for the extension board: Larry Baum, Elizabethtown; J. Kenneth Groff, Leola; Robin Rohrer, Washington Boro; Martha Rohrer, Lancaster; and Edward Zug, Peach Bottom.

Dr. Dan Perkins, Penn State, elaborated on the qualities needed to maintain good family structure.

Pennsylvania Ayrshire Futurity

The Pennsylvania Ayrshire Futurity was created for the promotion of Pennsylvania-bred Ayrshires.

Any animals born between March 1 and August 31 of each calendar year are eligible to compete in the futurity class at the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show in September two years later. A breeder may nominate any number of calves they wish to the futurity.

The original nomination is to be made by the breeder of the animal. The breeder of the animal at the time of entry must reside in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, or West Virginia. Thereafter the breeder or new owner, (if the animal is sold) is responsible for keeping up the eligibility.

Nominations need to be made by Oct. 1 of the year the animal was born, with a $3 entry fee per animal.

Fees are as follows:

- $ 3.00.....Entry fee
- $ 7.00.....Sept. 1, One year later
- $10.00.... March 1, 1½ years later
- $15.00... Sept. 1, Prior to the All-American Show

All entry fees are payable to the treasurer of the Pennsylvania Ayrshire Association. All fees are to be used in the futurity purse. Failure to make a payment cancels eligibility. All entry fees forfeited to Pennsylvania Association if animal is not kept current.

There are two parts to the futurity. One is the show at the All-American Dairy Show in September. Second is a production award. The total of the two scores will determine the futurity winner.

The production will be based on 2-year-old, 305-day record projected as of the February test based on 3.5 percent protein corrected milk.

Points will be awarded for both show and production to determine the overall winner.

- 50 points for first
- 40 points for second
- 30 points for third
- 20 points for fourth
- 10 points for fifth

There will be a banner for the first place-show animal and ribbons for second through fifth place.

And for the production animals it will be the same — a banner for first place and ribbons for second through fifth place.

There will be a banner for the overall futurity winner and the runner-up.

There will also be the monetary awards given to the over all Futurity winners (This is for the total scores of show and production together).

- $100 .....First
- $ 75 ..... Second
- $ 50 .....Third
- $ 25 .....Fourth
- $ 15 .... To all that complete the futurity.

An example of how this works is as follows...

March 1...Aug. 31...2001 calf born

By October 1, 2001 calf has to be nominated .....$ 3.00

By September 1, 2002....$ 7.00

By March 1, 2003.....$10.00

By September 1, 2004, Prior to PAADS $15.00

Production: In February 2004, a 2-year-old, 305-day projected 3.5 percent protein corrected milk record has to be sent in to the Pennsylvania Ayrshire secretary by March 15, 2004.

Futurity winners will be completed and announced at the Spring Calf and Heifer Convention in 2004.

Ayrshire News

It's winter and everyone is just getting done with the holidays. Cold sets in and we are all under the weather. Well, it's time to start thinking about spring! That's right!

Spring Ayrshire Convention

The 2001 Spring Ayrshire Convention will be in Tunkhannock this year at the Shadowbrook Inn and Resort. The Shadowbrook Inn is a popular year-round resort nestled in "The Endless Mountains" of Northeastern Pennsylvania on Rt. 6 East of Tunkhannock.

When? March 16-17. As we have always done, there will be a fun-filled evening of events on Friday night. Beginning with our social hour and princess contest, youth awards and the announcement of our Hall of Fame winner for the 2001 year. As always, we will dine together with wonderful food.

And let's not forget our anything goes auction.

On Saturday, March 17, we will begin with breakfast, then the annual meeting. Following the meeting, we will all be heading to Taurus Service in Mchoopany. This is just 15 miles from the Shadowbrook Inn.

At Taurus, we will be celebrating a birthday for a very special teen-ager, 76AY0710 Trident. Also to be included in the festivities is a parade of other Ayrshire sires at Taurus. Visitors will qualify for free Ayrshire Progeny Test semen. Everyone is invited to Taurus Service where a complimentary lunch will be provided by the staff at Taurus before you depart for home Saturday afternoon.

So come and enjoy this fun-filled weekend with us. And remember we are offering a lot more than fellowship. Take a few minutes to see what northeastern Pennsylvania has to offer! There are packages of many sorts for any one. Skiing, bowling, racquetball, walleyball just to name a few. If you have a computer check on line at www.shadowbrookresort.com to see this fine resort.

Reservations for this event can be made by calling The Shadowbrook Inn at (800) 955-0295 or at (570) 836-2151. Please state that you are with the Ayrshire convention for March 16-17.

Dinner reservations can be made with Ben and Kathy Hillyard at (570) 596-4371.

Dinner and breakfast will both be buffet-style. Dinner will be $16 per person. Breakfast will be $9 per person. Lunch will be compliments of Taurus (please make reservations).

Ayrshire Princess Expections

Thank you for showing an interest in the Pennsylvania Ayrshire Princess contest. As stated in the requirements, you must attend the spring convention and sale, annual picnic, and fall sale. Although the dates for the picnic and fall sale are not yet decided, the dates for the spring convention and sale are March 16-17. The spring convention and sale will be held at the ShadowBrook Inn Tunkhannock. This is where the princess contest will be held.

All participants must be at the ShadowBrook Inn no later than noon March 16. This is when all of the participants will meet with one another and myself to go over the agenda for the rest of the evening. This will be followed with interviews between each participant and the judges. At approximately 4 p.m., the participants will be given one hour to change for dinner and the social hour which starts at 5 p.m.

At dinner, the participants are required to give a three-five minute speech about themselves and their relationship with the Ayrshire breed. After all of the speeches, there will be one impromptu question asked of all of the participants. After all of this is done, the judges will leave to go decide on the winner that will be announced at the end of dinner.

The newly crowned princess and alternate are required to stay and help with the sale that follows the dinner. She should also make herself available for anything that may need her help the following morning, during or at the board meeting, along with any other events that take place that day.

The Pennsylvania Ayrshire Princess is a highly prestigious award for any young lady to accomplish. This is why the princess and alternate must conduct themselves in a respectful way at all events where they are representing the Ayrshire breed. If any bad reports get back to the association, that reflects poorly against the breed, we reserve the right to retract the crown and banner and give it to the runner-up or go without a princess until the next convention.

Both the Ayrshire princess, alternate princess, and Ayrshire maid should attend all local

Results From Crawford County Holstein Club's Calf Contest

COCHRANTON (Crawford Co.) — Junior Holstein and 4-H members in Crawford County competed to win a registered Holstein heifer calf given by the Crawford County Holstein Club. Contestants wrote an essay of 100 words or less why they would like to own a calf and how they would care for it.

A panel of judges also interviewed the applicants. Winners must breed the heifer to a registered Holstein bull. In addition, the first registered Holstein heifer calf must be given back to the Crawford County Holstein Club to be donated to another child.

This past year, Alright Farm, from Cochranton, donated one registered Holstein heifer calf. The winner of this calf was Rose Morian, 8-year-old daughter of Gary and Denise Morian from Atlantic.

The other registered Holstein heifer calf was donated by LAJADO Holsteins, Don and Jodi Caldwell from Saegertown. Andy Tobin, 8-year-old son of Tim and Annette Tobin from Edinboro, won the calf.

If any Crawford County Holstein Breeder is interested in providing a registered Holstein heifer calf for next year's contest, contact any director of the Crawford County Holstein Club.

Keep Calves, Heifers Healthy During Winter

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Calves and heifers experience more disease during the winter than at any other time. It's important to take precautions to keep animals healthy and growing, said a dairy scientist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Changeable weather, cold temperatures, and dampness all conspire to make winters tough for calves," said Jud Heinrichs, professor of dairy science extension. "In addition, barns are closed up and animals confined, with calves often in close contact with older animals."

Facilities such as maternity pens, calf stalls and heifer pens get used heavily in winter, and clean-out may be neglected, Heinrichs adds. With marginal ventilation, dampness, toxic gases, and disease organisms build up.

"All respiratory infections are reported more frequently during the winter," he said. "This includes viral infections such as IBR, BVD, PI3 and BRSV, as well as bacterial infections like pasteurella and hemophilus. Diarrheal diseases also are more frequent and more severe."

Heinrichs offers tips for keeping animals healthy.

• Use maternity pens for calving cows only, not dry or sick cows. "Don't keep cows in these pens any longer than necessary to minimize excess manure build-up," he said. "Keep the pens clean and well-bedded with long-stem bedding."

• Provide adequate ventilation in maternity and young stock facilities to reduce moisture and build-up of toxic gas. Avoid drafts.

• Ensure early, high-quality colostrum intake. "Feed three quarts of colostrum as soon as possible after birth, then feed a minimum of four quarts within the first eight hours of life," Heinrichs said. "The only way to determine if the colostrum is high-quality is to measure it with a colostrometer."

• Plan and implement a herd vaccination program with your veterinarian. "This program should protect the calf both by passive immunity from colostrum and, later on, her own active immunity," Heinrichs said.

• Check young stock twice daily for early signs of illness.

• Seek veterinary help for early diagnosis and prompt treatment of sick calves. "Herd replacements are too valuable to get anything but first-rate care," Heinrichs said.

Ayrshire Princess
Requirements

Any young lady between the ages of 13 and 20 can apply to become the next Ayrshire Princess for 2001. She should have an active interest in the Ayrshire breed, and a willingness to attend the breed's functions, shows and activities. Any other dairy related functions where the Ayrshire breed could be promoted and represented she would be encouraged to attend. The requirements for the Ayrshire princess are as follows:

1. Must be a member of the Pennsylvania Ayrshire Association. (Junior member or part of a family membership).
2. Must attend the spring convention and sale, annual picnic, and fall sale.

All who are willing to try must contact Samantha Hillyard by March 1 for more information: 208 South Avenue, Bradford, PA 16701, (814) 368-4406.

Ayrshire Maid
Requirements

Any young lady between the ages of 8 and 13 can apply to become the next Ayrshire maid for 2001. The Ayrshire maid's job is to assist the Ayrshire princess at any function where both the girls are together, along with representing the breed on her own at functions that she is alone at. The requirements for the Ayrshire maid are:

1. Must be a member of the Pennsylvania Ayrshire Association (junior member or part of a family membership).
2. Must attend the spring convention.

All who are interested, please contact Samantha Hillyard by March 1 for more information: 208 South Avenue, Bradford, PA 16701, (814) 368-4406.

Awards

These awards are available to any Pennsylvania, New Jersey, or West Virginia junior Ayrshire member who owns a registered Ayrshire female. The name of the junior member must appear as sole owner or in a partnership on the official registration certification.

The animal's record is to be a completed 305-day record during the current calendar year in which the application is being made. All awards will be verified by the DHIA or DHIR tests. 3X records will be recognized as produced, without being converted to 2X.

The following awards will be presented.

- Senior yearling
- 2-year-old
- 3-year-old
- 4-year-old
- Cows 5-years-old and older.
- Total production.
- Lifetime production.

Certificates will be presented to each applicant and plaques will be awarded to the owner of the animal with the highest record in the areas of milk production, fat production, protein production, total production and lifetime production.

The Junior Ayrshire member must have owned the cow before the current calendar year. Applications are available from Samantha Hillyard the Ayrshire youth director. The deadline for receiving applications will be Feb. 16, 2001. Applications should be addressed to Samantha Hillyard, 208 South Avenue, Bradford, PA 16701.

A Dairy Farm Necessity: 'A Feeder's Kit'

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — Managing dairy feeding systems for optimum cow performance is critically important and merits special attention, especially when profit margins are tight.

Penn State cooperative extension will be helping producers design and implement management systems to manage and control feeding systems.

Through a series of three hands-on workshops, dairy managers and feeders will receive "A Feeder's Kit" to help them achieve optimum performance from their dairy rations.

The first two workshops will be at the Lebanon County Extension Office March 14-21 with the third session planned for Meadow Wood Farms near Lebanon March 28. Sessions run from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

A feeder's kit will be provided for each farm enrolled and participants will receive instruction on how to effectively use each of the items in the kit during the sessions. Participants should bring a sample of all ensiled forages and a TMR sample to the program. They will have the opportunity to practice measuring forage dry matter, pH, and particle size. Measuring, plotting, and analyzing particle size data will also be featured.

During the second day's program, participants will examine NDF intake for their herds and demonstrate their understanding of this fiber management tool. A hands-on computer lab will feature two spreadsheets that will help managers and feeders monitor ration changes and help control TMR mixes. The afternoon segment will feature carbohydrate management in dairy rations.

The final session at Meadow Wood Farms will begin with instruction on silage sampling and pH assessment in ensiled forages. Feedbunk observations, including the particle size of the TMR, feed refusal, and cow observations will be featured. Feeding facilities fundamentals will be taught including bunk issues and design, feeding area surfaces, and interactions of nutrition and dairy facilities including air quality, temperature, cooling, cow comfort, and cud chewing time.

Registration fee including the take-home items in the feeder's kit is $500 per farm (one feeder's kit included). The fee for additional participants from the same farm is $40 per person to cover meal and refreshment costs. The program is limited to 10 farms so that individual assistance can be provided during the many hands-on activities planned.

To register for the sessions, contact the customer service desk at the York extension office at 112 Pleasant Acres Road, York, PA 17402-9041, (717) 840-7408, fax: (717) 755-5968, or e-mail Tim Beck at tbeck@psu.edu.

USDA Tightens Bacterial Requirements In Dry Milk Standards

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA has revised the U.S. Standards for Grades of Nonfat Dry Milk (Spray Process), the U.S. Standards for Instant Nonfat Dry Milk, and the U.S. Standards for Grades of Buttermilk and Buttermilk Product.

The changes reduce the Standard Plate Count (bacterial estimates) as follows:

- For U.S. Extra Grade nonfat dry milk manufactured using the spray process, the maximum allowable bacteria is reduced from 40,000 per gram to 10,000 per gram.
- For U.S. Extra Grade instant nonfat dry milk, the maximum allowable bacteria is reduced from 30,000 per gram to 10,000 per gram.
- For U.S. Extra Grade buttermilk and buttermilk product, the maximum allowable bacteria is reduced from 50,000 per gram to 20,000 per gram.
- For U.S. Standard Grade buttermilk and buttermilk product, the maximum allowable bacteria is reduced from 200,000 per gram to 75,000 per gram.

These changes in bacterial estimates will strengthen the quality requirements of the standards to reflect improvements that have taken place in the dry milk industry and improve the competitiveness of U.S. dairy products in international markets.

A notice soliciting comments to the proposed changes was published in the Sept. 8 Federal Register. Based on public comments, USDA has determined that changes are appropriate and has revised the standards accordingly. All become effective Feb. 2.

USDA grade standards are voluntary standards developed to facilitate the marketing process. Manufacturers of dairy products are free to choose whether or not to use these grade standards.

The revised Standards are available from Duane R. Spomer, Chief, Dairy Standardization Branch, Dairy Programs, Agricultural Marketing Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Room 2746, South Building, Stop 0230, P.O. Box 96456, Washington, D.C. 20090-6456 or by accessing the AMS Home Page at www.ams.usda.gov/dairy/stand.htm.

Farm Entry Strategies Work For Beginners

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — With less than two percent of Americans calling themselves farmers and many of those earning more than half of their income off the farm, beginners ask, "How can I get into farming in the current farm economy? What does it take?'

Pennsylvania Farm Link's Beginning Farmer workshop Feb. 17 will emphasize that a successful farm start-up is not dependent on age, size, type of farm operation, or previous career selection. Instead, success relies more on negotiating a good fit between your personal and financial resources, your farm and family goals, and the way you decide to enter farming.

Keynote speaker Steve Stevenson from the University of Wisconsin will present the results of his research, with more than 325 beginning farmers who started farming between 1993 and 1995. He will provide insight for new farmers on what other beginning farmers used to be successful. Career entry pathways include taking over your family farm, taking over another family farm, starting from scratch, and doing an apprenticeship in production agriculture.

The workshop will also include real-world discussions with Pennsylvania's innovative beginning farmers from a variety of backgrounds and enterprises. Hear from those taking the reins from other family members, taking over a non-family operation, or starting on their own from scratch. Types of farms include dairy, beef, fruit and vegetables, speciality crops, cooperative members, direct marketers, and wholesalers.

The workshop will be Saturday, Feb. 17, at the Holiday Inn in Grantville, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Cost of the workshop is $30 for an individual, $50 for a couple, and $20 for a student. Registration is required by Feb. 12 and includes lunch.

Contact Pennsylvania Farm Link at (717) 664-7077 or e-mail at pafarmlink@redrose.net for more information and a brochure.

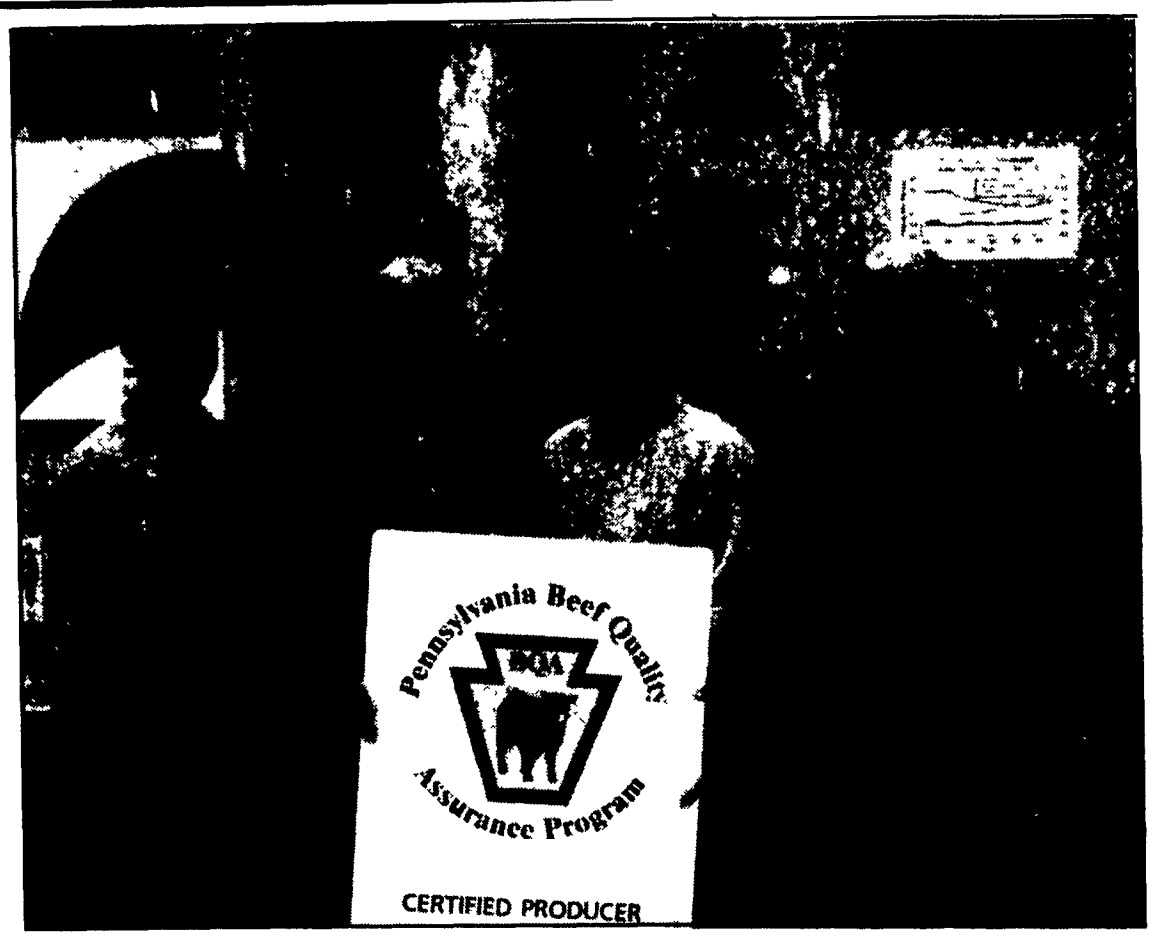
Cattle Feeder's Day



The quality assurance team of Wendall Landis, BQA certification director; Dr. Bill Henning, Penn State extension meats specialist; Dr. Harold Harpster, Penn State ruminant nutritionist; and Dr. John Comerford, Penn State extension beef specialist, provided the classroom segment of quality assurance program during the cattle feeder's day.

Jordan reports no more than 75 pounds variance in a whole group.

"Feeders get better cattle at the end if they start better at the front," he said.

Guidelines include, among other requirements, 45 days of weaning, a four-way virus and other vaccines, and deworming at weaning.

Recommended nutrition is a high-quality, energy ration the first three-to-five days, then the calves should be hand-fed on grass, given free choice salt and minerals, and have a clean, adequate water supply — "conditioned but not too fat," said Jordan. The calves, then, are ready to perform at the feedlot after the sale.

Beef Quality Assurance (BQA) Program

After receiving funding in October from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, the Pennsylvania Beef Quality Assurance program is now "what's on the horizon," according to Wendall Landis, program director. Goals of the program include increasing carcass quality by lowering residues, defects, and pathogen contamination.

"Beef quality assurance is everyone's job," said Landis.

Training sessions will be conducted from February through May, with point-of-purchase surveys for consumers in May and June. Producers will complete a two-part training included a classroom and hands-on, chute-side training, besides a recertification every two years.

Food Safety

Dr. Bill Henning, Penn State extension meats specialist, addressed "Food Safety Measures at Packing Plants."

Last year there were 33 million cases of foodborne illnesses, said Henning, and 9,000 deaths. Approximately 10,000-20,000 cases of e.coli, found in ground beef, lettuce, sprouts, or apple cider, occur yearly. E.coli is found in 2-4 percent of cattle, and 25 percent of America's feedyards.

USDA requirements control biological, physical, and chemical hazards with the Hazard Analysis Critical Control Point (HACCP) program.

A muscle, said Henning, is

Fruit, Vegetable Convention Honors Grower Accomplishments

county.

The Lerew family, including Ben, Tom, Terry, and Jim Lerew, was on hand to receive the award during the Mid-Atlantic Fruit and Vegetable Convention banquet Tuesday evening at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center.

Lerew said he was "just really proud" to be a part of the association. "Last year was tough," he said, "one of the hardest years of mine." One hundred and sixty acres of peaches had to be taken out of production because of the virus.

"They say, though, that the hardest years are the best," said Lerew, who recounted his oldest son Tom's battle with leukemia. Lerew introduced Tom and the rest of his family, including Tom's brother Ben and Jim's wife, Terry, to more than 300 growers and ag industry representatives at the banquet.

Lerew commented about the "super officials" of Pennsylvania, whom he described as "kind and polite and loving" about the situation and the indemnification program. "I got paid for all the peach trees," Lerew said.

Roger Wood, president of the National Peach Council (NPC), also cited Lerew for his work on several SHAP committees and offices of which Lerew has been a part of.

State Secretary of Agriculture Sam Hayes Jr. commented on the $1.7 million put toward horticultural research and promotion programs.

"We can't get it done unless we take our light from underneath our bushel baskets and tell our story," said Hayes, "and tell the world."

Also honored at the banquet:

• Grower Award and life membership honors from the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association was presented to Rudy Grob, Bausman, who worked at Funk's Farm in Millersville for 48 years. Grob was honored with the annual award for lifetime membership at the convention. Grob has been on the board of the growers association since 1958. He was secretary-treasurer for 13 years. Grob said that Amos Funk, Millersville, and Paul Rowe, helped found the association.

• Carroll R. Miller Award from the National Peach Council was presented to Dean Polk. Miller was founder of the Peach Council about 50 years ago, noted Wood of the NPC, who presented the honor. Polk, on the faculty of Rutgers Cooperative Extension Service, was cited for his work with New Jersey peach growers on effective IPM and crop management programs. About 8,600 acres in New Jersey have effective IPM practices in the state, making use of the latest technology.

• Outstanding Fruit Grower Award from the New Jersey Horticultural Society was presented to Daniel Haynicz, Monroeville, N.J. Haynicz manages 250 acres of peach and apple trees and soybeans and other vegetables and markets them at Orchard View Fruit Stand. Haynicz told those at the banquet that "I will do anything for the fruit industry to make it better than what it is."

• Pennsylvania Farm Show Awards. Dwight Mickey of Shatzer Fruit Market, Chambersburg, won for best roadside market exhibit. Best bushel of apples honor went to Strite's Orchard, Harrisburg.

• The SHAP Distinguished Service Award for exemplary service to the fruit industry went to Ken Hickey, professor of plant pathology at Penn State Fruit Research Lab in Biglerville. Hickey remarked that Penn State's team effort in dealing with fruit grower issues "has been very effective."

More information from the convention is scheduled to appear in Lancaster Farming's Grower & Marketer section, to be published March 10.

Strite's Orchard, Harrisburg, represented by Joe Strite, left, was honored with the Farm Show Best Bushel of Apples Award. sterile, but can be contaminated from the outside by fecal material or contact with intestines. Bacteria adhere to the tissue and must be trimmed, not washed by conventional means, to remove it. Hair, dirt, manure, or dirty employee hands are also agents of bacterial spread.

At least 90 percent of the contamination comes from the hide, which makes the bacteria difficult to control. The best plan, said Henning, is to keep the animal clean.

Cattle Management

Dr. John Comerford, Penn State extension beef specialist, taught the "proper cattle management" segment of the quality assurance program.

Adhering to bottle label instructions is imperative, stressed Comerford. Besides making sure the vaccine or medicine is labeled for cattle, he said, be sure to give the correct dosage using the proper route of administration. Withdrawal time should be carefully noted and followed.

Feed Quality Management

"Source-verified cattle will be an absolute necessity in the future, it's going to be our product from the farm gate to the consumer's plate," said Dr Harold Harpster, Penn State ruminent nutritionist.

Feed quality, said Harpster, is a phrase of beef quality assurance entirely in the producer's hands, and requires daily diligence.

According to Harpster, for homegrown feeds, we need records from planting to consumption, especially records for pesticide, herbicide, and fertilizer use to prevent possible problems.

A daily inspection of feedstuffs is important, said Harpster. A producer should note the odor, color, moisture, temperature, and any foreign material in the fed. A small sample of purchased feedstuff should be set aside, along with the source, date, amounts, and description data for record purposes.

Producers should hold "suspect feeds," urged Harpster, until they are analyzed to decide if they are free of high levels of mold and micotoxins.

Targeted Breeding/ Buying

Consumer satisfaction, said Dr. Bill Henning, determined by quality grades, should drive production.

Henning, extension meats specialist, said, "They want taste fat, they don't want waste fat. Know your customer, whether they want modest, moderate, or highly-abundant marbling. Fill your customer's needs. Produce something that satisfies the consumer."

Bruising, said Henning, costs $20 million annually, as much as $175 per head. Ideal finish depends on genetic propensity to marble, but depends on the breed of animal.

"One steer with a tough steak will affect over 100 people, so we really have to be careful," said Henning.

"Understand the type of cattle you are feeding. Don't feed past the optimal end point. Feed to what the customer wants."

Cattle Handling Systems

Proper handling facilities are integral to a cattle management plan, explained Dan McFarland, ag engineering agent based out of York County.

Added safety, meeting quality assurance guidelines, easier treatment opportunities, stress reduction on both the animal and the handler, and fewer bruising incidence are all good reasons to have a system, he said.

A complete handling system should gather, direct, hold, allow the animals to be sorted, and position the animals for the handler to work on.

Cattle Feeders Future

Agriculture economics professor H. Louis Moore, Penn State, gave his forecast for the livestock economy in 2001. The national economy, he said, will understandably have an impact on agriculture.

America has experienced 10 years of economic growth without a slowdown, the longest in the history of the nation. Inflation is under control, the country has a low unemployment rate, the interest rate is declining, and tax cut prospects are on the horizon.

In addition, however, according to Moore's analysis, consumers are wary about the future, unemployment will begin to increase, interest rates will decline, and inflation will slow. California's energy problem and the actions of the new administration remain questions yet to be filled in for economic forecasters.

Since 1996, farmers have seen a larger gap between what the farmers pay (fuel, machinery, labor, and materials) and what they receive is broadening.

"This is putting a squeeze on farmers in the country," said Moore. The U.S. corn production varied greatly over the early 1990s, "We had five good corn crops in a row, and we haven't used it at that rate," he said.

Additionally, in soybean production, the last four crops have been very excellent crops. Farmers have produced a billion more bushels than a decade ago on the same acreage.

New technology has drastically increased production. In 1932, for example, farmers produced 25 bushels of corn per acre. By 2000 farmers were producing 137.7 bushels of corn per acre. "It hasn't plateaued," he said.

If grain prices stay reasonable, "those of you who are in the livestock feeding business can plan on the same prices," said Moore, unless media attention on "mad cow disease" drastically changes demand.

In the U.S., meat supply shows chicken on the increase of market share for meats because

Moratorium

"We need the help of everyone in the quarantine zone — backyard fruit growers, homeowners, renters, businesses, and commercial growers — to help eradicate this fruit tree disease so that the huge economic losses being experienced by the fruit industry are not in vain," Hayes said.

"Plum pox virus is an extremely serious threat to the stone fruit industry of Pennsylvania, and it is our goal at the Department of Agriculture to help lead the fight to eradicate this virus. The planting of plum pox virus-susceptible trees and shrubs anywhere in the quarantine area would make additional host material available for virus infection and jeopardize the opportunity to eradicate the virus."

The moratorium on planting strengthens the quarantine by stopping all planting of potential hosts in the quarantine area and will help the Department of Agriculture conduct a more effective survey in locating infected trees.

Detection of the plum pox virus in trees can take years. The survey will need to continue for several years to make sure that trees testing negative last year are not actually harboring the virus. The addition of more trees during this process complicates the survey, adds cost, and then adds to the number of times property owners must be contacted by surveyors.

The moratorium will help speed the lifting of the quarantine by helping the commonwealth to reach plum pox-free status. Once that goal is reached, growers and homeowners can resume planting of stone fruit trees without the threat of plum pox virus.

Commercial growers have destroyed nearly 900 acres of infected and exposed trees to help eradicate the plum pox virus.

Discovered in Adams County in September 1999, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture conducted extensive surveys and tests to establish a quarantine area.

Plum pox virus causes a disease in stone fruit, such as peaches, nectarines, plums, apricots, and related ornamental trees in the genus Prunus. These varieties and hybrids are hosts of the virus strain present in Pennsylvania. Other hosts include many ornamental plants such as the purple leaf plum, sand cherry, flowering almond, and flowering peach.

Aphids spread the virus from infected to healthy trees. This viral disease, known as sharka, is a limited factor for stone fruit production in areas of the world where it occurs. Sharka does not have an effect on animals or humans.

When sharka was identified in Pennsylvania, it triggered surveys of commercial fruit tree orchards across the commonwealth and other fruit-growing areas in the U.S. and Canada. Surveys also were conducted for susceptible trees on residential properties in the area were sharka was discovered in orchards.

The survey in the U.S. concluded that the virus is confined to a relatively small area in the northern part of Adams County and across the border in Cumberland County, establishing the plum pox virus quarantine zone. The quarantine prohibits the movement of susceptible trees and propagation material within or out of the quarantine area.

Pennsylvania has invested more than $5.1 million to eradicate the plum pox virus and indemnify farmers.

If there are any questions about the moratorium or plum pox virus, contact the Department of Agriculture at (717) 772-5203.

Pork Expo

Lou Moore, Penn State professor of agricultural economics, will be on hand to deliver his hog market outlook.

Robert Mikesell, senior extension associate from Penn State, will provide a pork quality assurance overview for producers who need initial certification or recertification.

Robert Meinen, also a senior extension associate from Penn State, will be providing the livestock environmental certification program overview. This is a voluntary program sponsored by Penn State and the State Conservation Commission in cooperation with PennAg Industries.

A legislative activity fund auction is scheduled at the Expo. A live auction begins at 11:30 a.m. by Col. Harry Bachman. Silent bidding closes 1 p.m.

The junior public speaking contest begins at 10 a.m. The Keystone Pork Bowl begins at 9:30 a.m. and concludes at 2 p.m.

Pork Expo programs are available at most county extension offices.

According to USDA estimates, pork output fell slightly last year but will increase this year. Production in 2000 is about 18.9 billion pounds and is expected to increase to 19.4 billion pounds, slightly higher than the previous record production in 1999.

The price of hogs in 2000 averaged 43 cents to 45 cents per pound. The 2001 price will average two to three cents less than last, with most of the drop coming in the second half of the year.

Because feed is inexpensive, hog production will continue to be profitable for most producers through 2001.

The 10-year economic boom, what some believe is the longest in U.S. history, has helped the nation's meat industry. This year each person will consume about 221 pounds of meat, up 11 pounds from a decade earlier.

According to Lou Moore, Penn State ag economics, the size of the corn and soybean crops has been revised downward since the initial crop report in August, but the harvest is still a bin-buster. The corn crop, initially estimated at 10.4 billion bushels, is estimated at 10.2 billion bushels, which is a record. The previous record was 10.04 billion bushels in 1994.

Since August, the soybean crop has been revised downward each month. Currently the harvest is expected to be 2.82 billion bushels. The previous record crop of 2.74 billion bushels was set in 1998.

According to Moore, soybean production has risen sharply in the last decade. Corn and soybean acreage is nearly equal, whereas acreage planted to barley, oats, and wheat has fallen substantially.

Additional projections are scheduled to be provided by Moore at the Expo.

Farrowing Class

DES MOINES, Iowa — A self-study farrowing management course will be available via the Internet on pork's Website from March 1 to May 10.

The 10-week course is part of the Distance Learning Project, a checkoff-funded program implemented by the National Pork Producers Council (NPPC).

"Through this course, participants can learn or review basic farrowing management techniques anywhere they have internet access, such as their home or workplace," explained Jenny Felt, NPPC special programs manager.

By being offered on the Internet, the farrowing management course is a convenient continuing education option for ag professionals. In the 2-year-old program, more than 80 percent of previous participants say the course helped them improve their job skills and change how they performed work in farrowing.

Each person registered for the farrowing management course will be assigned a username and password to access the lessons for the farrowing curriculum. The registration fee is $35 for the first registrant from each operation and $25 for each additional registrant. Registration is due by Feb. 26, 2001. The class is limited to 250 students.

For more information on the course, visit pork's Website or contact NPPC's Felt at (515) 223-2771. At www.nppc.org, go to the "Especially for Producers" section and select Distance Learning.

Environmental Stewards Program

DES MOINES, Iowa — U.S. pork producers make positive contributions to the environment while producing more than 17 billion pounds of pork a year.

The 2001 Environmental Stewards Program will recognize some of the best producers. All types and sizes of pork production operations qualify for the environmental recognition program sponsored by the National Pork Board, National Pork Producers Council (NPPC), and National Hog Farmer magazine.

"The four pork production operations chosen demonstrate the highest level of care and commitment pork producers have for the environment," said Jenny Felt, NPPC special programs manager. "The Environmental Stewards Program is just one portion of the pork industry's commitment to environmental issues."

Applications and nominations for the Environmental Stewards Program must be made by March 15. A producer can apply based on his or her experiences as an owner and/or manager. An extension agent or veterinarian can nominate a producer from the local community. Find the application at http://www.nppc.org/PROD/EnvironmentalSection/envstewards.html or contact NPPC at (515) 223-2600 for an application to be sent via fax or mail.

FDA Results of Texas Feed

"Reports recently from the FDA indicate there were very small amounts of meat-and-bone meal detected in cattle feed supplements produced by a Purina feed mill in Texas last week. Purina Mills announced that it is voluntarily purchasing all 1,222 of the animals held in Texas and the animals will not enter the food chain.

"Despite the fact that we do not have BSE in this county and believe that the feed from the Texas situation posed no harm to cattle, we appreciate Purina's prompt response to rectify the situation.

"It's important to note that the situation in Texas is a compliance issue, not a safety issue, and NCBA supports full compliance with FDA feed ban regulations. The 1997 FDA feed ban prohibits the feeding of mammalian derived protein supplements to cattle and other ruminants that might be at risk for carrying the BSE infectious agent. It is a critical firewall measure and was implemented as an extra precaution against the BSE infectious agent. While BSE has not been found in the U.S., the feed ban assures that if BSE somehow ever did get into this country, it would not spread and could be quickly isolated and eradicated.

America is host to approximately 98 million cattle. While this number is declining, U.S. cattle are fed to higher weights.

Per-capita consumption of meat is projected to be 200 pounds this year. Since 1990, this number has increased by 20 pounds per person, leading Moore to question whether America is truly moving toward a vegetarian diet.

"A good economy increases that number, that's why the economy has such an impact on 2001," said Moore.

For supply prospects, said Moore, the percentage of cattle will go down 3.5 percent, at $72-$77 per hundredweight. Hog and broiler supplies are expected to trend upward three percent, and turkey 2.5 percent.

"With the right management, you'll make money," said

Ken Jordan from Jordan Cattle Auction, San Saba, Texas, presented his experience with marketing process verified cattle at his family's auction business.

For more on the Cattle Feeder's Day, look in Lancaster Farming's April 7 edition of the Animal Health and Housing supplement.

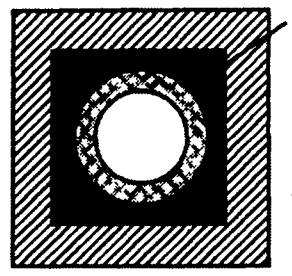
... For New Construction Why Not Examine The "Chimtek Difference."



Chimtek Inner Liners are made of volcanic pumice and high-temperature refractory cements. Its round shape provides even temperature inside flue and contributes to efficient flow of smoke and flue gasses. The volcanic pumice in Chimtek liners adds considerable insulating value.

All three chimneyliner systems distributed by DS Machine Shop are of super design, super performance, and super value. With all their advantages these chimney systems often cost no more than ordinary chimneys. Write or call us for more specific liner information.

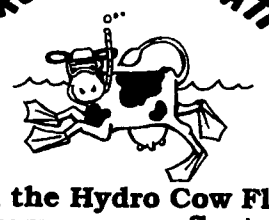
HYDRO COW FLOTATION

CLIP & SAVE THIS AD



With the Hydro Cow Flotation System you can float a down cow back onto its legs harmlessly without using clamps, belts or chains. The Hydro Cow is a natural way to get a cow back on its legs using only warm water.

Hydro Cow Flotation Service is available in Lancaster, York and Chester Counties, and northeastern Maryland market is responding to a tightening in the nation's milk supply. December milk production for 20-select states was about even with a year ago. And cow numbers for the first time in a couple of years started declining from the prior month. We ended 2000 with a relatively tight inventory for butter. That means butterfat will be very tight in 2001. Look for butter and Class IV prices to be pricey.

So, here is my expert forecast for 2001: actual milk prices for the next 12 month will be either higher or lower than what the futures markets is predicting. While my readers may be chuckling at this point, the answer really is true. My point is the futures market is providing decent prices for 2001 and real prices will likely turn out to be higher or lower.

In other news, USDA announced the advance prices for February 2001. These prices will determine the Class I base price and the Class II skim price for February. They are based on the following two-week product price averages from January ($/lb): butter: $1.1279; nonfat dry milk: $1.0172; cheese: $1.1340; and dry whey: $0.2446. The advance Class III pricing factor at 3.5 percent butterfat was $10.06 per cwt. The advanced Class IV pricing factor at 3.5 percent butterfat was $11.94 per cwt. The higher of these two prices was $11.94, which is the Class I base price at 3.5 percent butterfat. Thus the Boston Class I price for February 2001, for example, will be $15.19 per cwt (11.94+3.25). The Class I differential for Boston is equal to $3.25 per cwt.

The best approach to good nutrition is balance! A good diet provides all the nutrients the body needs—carbohydrates, proteins, fiber, vitamins, minerals and yes, even fats—all taken in moderate quantities and the right proportions.

Most health organizations, such as the American Heart Association and the American Dietetic Association, recommend at least five servings of fruit and vegetables daily. Fruit and vegetables are rich sources of fiber, vitamins, minerals, a variety of disease-preventative phyto-chemicals and antioxidants By adding nutritious, functional foods like apples and frozen or canned sweet cherries and honey (nature's nutritional sweetener), with little extra effort busy cooks can serve tasty meals that are part of a naturally balanced diet.

Although fall is prime apple season, crisp, juicy apples may be enjoyed all year-round, thanks to controlled atmosphere storage. Apples are a primary source of disease-inhibiting flavonoids and a good source of soluble fiber. Gradually increasing the fiber in your diet is easy with the addition of apples to breakfast cereals, salads and desserts, not to mention enjoying a big crunchy, juicy apple as a snack!

Sweet cherries are a great source of vitamin C and whether canned or frozen, provide the same nutrition as a portion of fresh fruit. Both canning and freezing allow cherries to be packed quickly at their peak of quality, when nutrient levels are at their highest

Unlike any other sweeteners, honey contains small amounts of a wide variety of vitamins, minerals and amino acids making it a useful ingredient in a balanced diet. Honey can also boost your daily supply of antioxidants that aid the body's resistance to disease. Ongoing research suggests that honey is a vital source of sustained energy for athletes and for those of us who lead busy, active lives This is not so surprising considering how hard bees work When combined with other ingredients, honey makes good nutrition even sweeter!

All the Buzz

Honey bees are very much a part of modern American agriculture. As bees buzz from blossom to blossom gathering the nectar they need to make honey, they also collect and spread pollen from plant to plant, thereby playing a vital role in the fertilization of many crops that find their way to our tables

In a mutually beneficial arrangement between bee keepers and farmers, colonies of honey bees are trucked around the country to facilitate pollination and to ensure bees get enough nectar Honey bees pollinate a wide variety of fruit and vegetables. Some crops like peaches prosper with just one dusting, but most crops require several visits from foraging honey bees to ensure healthy vegetables and tasty fruit. Almonds depend entirely on the honey bee for pollination at bloom time, and 90 percent of the nation's cherry and apple crops are dependent on the hard working honey bee for survival

Honey bees also contribute to the beef and dairy industry as they pollinate crops like alfalfa and clover, which feed the nation's cattle and dairy herds. So every time you enjoy a hamburger or drink a glass of milk—you have a honey bee to thank! It is estimated that nearly 3 million honey bee colonies contribute over $14.6 billion to this sweet farming success story.

Sesame-Ginger Cabbage Salad

Prep Time: 15 minutes
Cooking Time: 1 minute Serves 6

Sesame-Ginger Dressing:
- 2 teaspoons Oriental sesame oil
- 2 teaspoons minced fresh ginger
- 3 tablespoons rice vinegar
- 2 tablespoons peanut butter
- 2 tablespoons honey
- 2 tablespoons reduced-sodium soy sauce

Salad:
- 2 1/2 cups thinly sliced green cabbage
- 2 cups thinly sliced red cabbage
- 2 Gala or Red Delicious apples, cored and chopped
- 2 green onions, chopped

1. Make Sesame-Ginger Dressing. In small skillet heat sesame oil over low heat Add ginger; cook 1 minute. Transfer to small bowl and whisk in vinegar, peanut butter, honey and soy sauce; set aside.
2. Prepare Salad In large bowl combine both cabbages, apples and green onions. Add dressing; toss to coat. Let stand 5 minutes: Re-toss and serve immediately.

- 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
- 4 boneless, skinless chicken breast halves
- Salt and pepper
- 1 medium onion, cut into thin wedges
- 1 small green bell pepper, cut into thin strips
- 1 can (16 1/2 ounces) sweet cherries, drained
- 1/4 cup honey
- 1/4 cup balsamic vinegar
- 2 teaspoons cornstarch
- 1 teaspoon dried thyme, crushed
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

1. In large skillet, heat oil over medium-high heat until hot. Add chicken breasts and cook just until brown on both sides. Season with salt and pepper, as desired. Remove to plate; set aside
2. Reduce heat to medium. Add onion and green pepper to skillet; cook and stir for 5 to 6 minutes or until pepper is crisp-tender. Stir in cherries.
3. In small bowl, combine honey, vinegar, cornstarch, thyme and salt; mix until blended and cornstarch is dissolved.
4. Gradually add to skillet; cook, stirring, until liquid in skillet thickens. Reduce heat to low. Return chicken to pan, cover and cook 5 to 8 minutes or until chicken is cooked through.

Quick 'n' Delicious Combos

Keep some honey on the kitchen counter, frozen or canned sweet Northwest cherries on hand and a bowl of fresh Washington apples and have good nutrition at your fingertips all the time. Here are some quick and delicious ways to add vitamins, minerals, antioxidants and fiber to your everyday meals and snacks

1 Stir applesauce, honey and canned sweet cherries into hot cereal for an extra tasty daybreak boost on a chilly morning
2. Mix 6 tablespoons each of honey and canned sweet cherries into 8 ounces cream cheese Spread on bagels and toast.
3 In a blender or food processor container, combine 1 cup plain or vanilla yogurt, 1/2 cup apple juice, 2 tablespoons honey, 1 cup cut-up fresh apple/ blueberry mix, and 1/2 cup crushed ice; process into a delicious smoothie.
4. Mix 3/4 cup peanut butter and 1/2 cup honey with a teaspoon of cinnamon, spread on toast or muffins and top with thin slices of apple for a delicious power-packed snack.
5. Thoroughly mix 1/2 cup honey and 1/2 cup Dijon-style mustard with a dash of Worcestershire sauce, ground black pepper and cayenne pepper for a great savory dip for apple wedges.
6. Combine 3 pared, cored and diced apples with 2 cups canned sweet cherries, 2 chopped green onions, 1 tablespoon lime juice and 2 tablespoons chopped fresh cilantro for a chunky salsa with a twist. Serve with grilled chicken or meats.
7. Combine 1 cup honey, 1/2 cup canned or frozen sweet cherries and 1 teaspoon cinnamon. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer 10 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in 1 quart fresh or frozen sliced peaches. Serve over waffles, pancakes, French toast, quick breads or angel food cake.
8. Ladle 3/4 cup canned or frozen sweet cherries and 1 cup vanilla ice cream into blender; process until smooth and creamy for a luscious cherry ice cream shake.

Grilling is one of the best ways to prepare meat for both taste and lower fat content. Both indoor and outdoor grills enable grilling to be done in all kinds of weather and in every season. Grill or broil these Spicy Portuguese Steak Kabobs, which can be prepared and cooked within 30 minutes.

Featured Recipe

Fortunately a heart-healthy diet no longer confines one to bland vegetables and a little chicken or fish.

Research shows that all foods can be eaten in moderation. Fortunately for red meat lovers, beef cuts with fat well trimmed can be just as heart-healthy as chicken breast. The key is moderation, fat trimmed, and cautious use of sauces and other toppings.

One of the best ways to prepare meat for both taste and lower fat content is grilling. Once confined to summer months, grilling is now a year-round activity for most families. Both outdoor and indoor grills make grilling easy in all kinds of weather.

Here is a great heart-healthy recipe to serve with rice.

SPICY PORTUGUESE STEAK KABOBS

1 boneless beef top sirloin steak, cut 1¼-inches thick
1 large red bell pepper, cut into 1-inch pieces
Salt

Seasoning:
2 tablespoons chopped, fresh cilantro
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 tablespoon cayenne pepper sauce OR 2 teaspoons hot pepper sauce
1 clove garlic, crushed
¼-½ teaspoon crushed red pepper (optional)

Trim fat from beef steak. Cut steak into 1¼-inch pieces. In medium bowl, combine seasoning ingredients. Add beef; toss to coat.

Alternately thread beef and bell pepper onto each of six 10-inch metal skewers.

Place kabobs on grill over medium temperature. Grill, uncovered, 8-11 minutes for medium rare to medium doneness, turning occasionally; season with salt, as desired. Garnish as desired.

Makes 6 servings.

To broil instead of grill, place kabobs on rack in broiler pan so surface of beef is 3-4 inches from heat. Broil approximately 9-12 minutes, turning occasionally.

Nature's Functional Foods — Are They Here?

It's a new century, but an age-old dilemma — What do you eat to stay healthy?

Research shows that one of the most powerful sources of disease prevention comes from eating whole plant-based foods. Fruits, vegetables and nuts contain a variety of phytochemicals and other nutrients which work together to help prevent disease.

In contrast, a supplement contains only one or a few phytochemicals, which if consumed in excess could actually cause cancer and other illnesses. The truth is that the whole is greater than the parts. Everyone wants the magic bullet, but, in the end, it will point back to the whole plant food, which has far more to offer than any supplement.

Here are some recipes to get you started.

COUS COUS WITH CHICKEN, CITRUS, AND SCALLIONS

Serves 2

- 1 teaspoon olive or vegetable oil
- ½ pound chicken breast, sliced
- 4 scallions (green onions), diced
- 1 cup low-sodium chicken broth
- ½ cup canned mandarin oranges, drained and rinsed
- ½ grapefruit, peeled and sliced into small pieces, with pith removed
- 1 5.7-ounce box cous cous, cooked (follow instructions on box)
- 1 tablespoon sliced almonds, toasted~

In a large pan on medium-high heat, heat oil and then add chicken slices. Brown them lightly on all sides. Making sure they're cooked throughout, remove them and set aside. Add scallions to pan and saute them for 5-10 minutes until tender. Stir in broth and bring to a simmer. Stir in orange segments, grapefruit segments, and chicken, and simmer for five minutes until all ingredients are heated throughout. Add cooked cous cous and stir well. Sprinkle with toasted almonds, and serve.

~To toast almonds, spread them in a small pan and bake them at 350 F. for just five to six minutes, stirring once, until they have developed a pale brown color.

ZUCCHINI, RED PEPPER AND LEEK FRITTATA

- 3 smallish zucchini, thinly sliced
- 1 red pepper, diced
- 1 leeks, white part only, sliced
- 2 cups egg substitute, divided
- ¼ teaspoon black pepper, divided
- ½ teaspoon dried thyme, divided
- Vegetable or olive oil spray

Steam or microwave the vegetables together until tender — each will cook at the same approximate rate. Set aside. Preheat oven to 350 F. Spray a light coat of oil on a heavy ovenproof skillet. On medium heat, heat oil, and add half of the egg substitute. Sprinkle it with half the thyme and half the black pepper. Let it cook for a few seconds, until it begins to bubble, and then use a spatula to pull the sides in and spread the uncooked egg over the bottom of the pan, as if cooking an omelet. When this is nearly cooked, add steamed vegetables to pan. Evenly pour in the remaining half of the egg substitute, and sprinkle on the remaining thyme and black pepper. Bake for 35-40 minutes, until egg is firm. Serve.

FRUIT SALAD

- 2 tablespoons honey
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 2 Granny Smith apples, cubed
- 2 red pears, cubed
- ½ cup dried apricots, sliced into thin strips
- 3 8-ounce containers low-fat spiced apple yogurt or low-fat vanilla yogurt

In a medium bowl, whisk together honey and lemon juice. Add fruit and toss well. For each person, spoon a half container of yogurt into a small bowl and top with ½ cup fruit. Serve.

CHICKEN SALAD MAKEOVER

- 2 cups cooked, diced chicken breasts
- 1½ cups California seedless grapes
- 1 medium apple, cored and sliced
- ½ cup each raisins and diced celery
- ½ teaspoon dried tarragon, crushed
- salt and pepper to taste
- 2 to 4 tablespoons each low-fat mayonnaise and yogurt
- ¼ cup chopped parsley
- lettuce leaves
- sprig of thyme, optional

Combine all ingredients except lettuce and thyme; mix well. Serve chicken salad on lettuce leaves. Garnish with thyme, if desired. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

FOUR-FRUIT SLUSH

- 2 cups pineapple juice
- ¼ cup frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed
- 1 medium banana
- 1 cup frozen unsweetened peach slices
- 5 cups carbonated water lemon-lime carbonated beverage, or ginger ale chilled

In a blender container combine first four ingredients. Blend until smooth. Pour into 2-quart baking dish. Cover; freeze three to five hours or until firm. To serve, let stand at room temperature 30 minutes. Scrape surface of mixture to form slush. Fill glasses half full with slush. Add carbonated beverage.

Makes 10 to 12 servings.

CITRUS TOSSED SALAD

- 6 torn mixed salad greens
- 3 oranges or 2 grapefruit, peeled, sectioned, and seeded 1½ cups peeled jicama cut into thin strips
- 1 medium red onion, sliced and separated into ring ⅓ cup
- Citrus Vinaigrette or another flavor vinaigrette

Choose from four fabulous flavors of vinaigrette to add a gourmet touch to this salad. Because orange juice concentrate replaces part of the oil included in a vinaigrette, these vinaigrettes have only 2 g of fat and 34 calories per tablespoon instead of 6 g of fat and calories.

In a large salad bowl combine torn mixed greens, orange or grapefruit sections, jicama, and onion ring. Drizzle with the vinaigrette; toss. Serve at once. Makes 6 side-dish servings.

Nutritional Analysis Per Serving: 83 calories, 2 g protein, 14 g carbohydrate, 3 g total fat (0 g saturated fat), 0 mg cholesterol, and 2 g dietary fiber, 26 mg sodium.

Citrus Vinaigrette: In a screw-top jar combine ¾ cup frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed; ¼ cup vinegar; ¼ cup olive oil; ¼ cup water; and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Shake well to mix. Cover and chill for up to one week. Before using, let stand at room temperature about 15 minutes, then shake well. Makes 1½ cups dressing.

GRAPEFRUIT-CRANBERRY PUNCH

- 2 cups cranberry juice cocktail chilled
- ¾ frozen grapefruit juice concentrate thawed
- 1 12-ounce can lemon-lime carbonated beverage chilled
- ice cubes

In a pitcher, combine the cranberry juice and thawed concentrate. Gently stir in the carbonated beverage. Serve at once over ice cubes. Makes 8 (4-ounce) servings.

Nutritional Analysis Per Serving: 84 calories, 0 g protein, and 21 g carbohydrate, 0 g total fat (0 g saturated fat), 0 mg cholesterol, and 0 g dietary fiber, 8 mg sodium.

CHINESE VEGETABLE STIR-FRY

Sweet 'N Sour Sauce

- ¾ cup pineapple juice
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1½ teaspoons cornstarch
- 1 teaspoon light soy sauce

Stir-Fry Vegetables

- 4 teaspoons vegetable oil
- 1 cup broccoli florets
- 1 cup sliced carrot
- 1 cup cauliflower florets
- 1 cup sliced celery
- 1 cup chunked red bell pepper
- 1 cup sugar peas, stems removed

Combine the ingredients for the Sweet 'N Sour sauce in a mixing bowl. Heat oil in a skillet over medium high heat. Add broccoli, carrots, cauliflower, and celery, cook for two minutes. Add bell pepper and sugar peas, cook for two minutes. Add Sweet 'N Sour sauce, bring to a boil and cook for one minute, covered. Serve vegetables while hot. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Nutritional Analysis Per Serving: 132 calories, 2 g protein, 4 g fat (1 saturated), 20 g carbohydrate, 99 mg sodium, no cholesterol.

On Being a Farm Wife (and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

They show up this time of year, every year, as regularly as icicles, wind chill factors and the flu.

"Lose weight fast!" pitches.

Workout classes. Exercise videos. Hi-energy, low-cal drinks designed to replace meals, for folks in a hurry. (Who isn't?). Diet plans to "melt away" weight.

Yeah, right.

Fact is, after the holiday gluttony of cookies, cakes, pies, stuffing, gravy — and yes, chocolate for some of us — plus confinement indoors by "wintry-mix weather," many of us have at least a couple unwanted pounds hanging somewhere between our ribcage and our knees. And it's about as unwelcome as the tax forms that arrived concurrently.

Not to be outdone, we are offering you — if you sign up immediately — our special introductory rate on our own innovative, post-holiday, winter-couch-potato, weight-loss program.

Farm Fitness and Firm-Up.

Our program starts the way we start every day here: in the dairy barn. With a warmup exercise of pushing the milker cart, loaded with two five-gallon buckets of hot water and eight milking machines. Hang tight to it as you guide it down the sloped walkway, hang a 90-degree right turn, and march that load down the 200-feet of sawdusted center alleyway to the far end of the rows of stalls.

Puffing a little there, are you? Just step outside into that 15-degree, 4:30 a.m. air while you take a moment's breather and enjoy the stars twinkling in the black sky overhead.

Now, take that dipper filled with pre-dip sanitizing solution, a couple of paper towels, bend at the waist, stretch your arms in under that udder, dip, massage, dip again, dry those four teats completely. Step to the cart, lift the milker, which weighs several pounds, hang it on the overhead line, plug in the vacuum line and the milk line. Bend down again, reach in under that udder and attach the machines. Repeat with the next cow. As each milker finishes, do all that in reverse, bend back down and dip those teats in a post-milking, anti-bacterial iodine solution.

Repeat for the next four hours, working from one end of the barn to the other, then back for the second group of girls. When completed, push that load — minus the buckets of water — back the length of the alleyway, up the slope and into the milkhouse. Hose it all off, hang up the milkers to wash, and hose down the entire milkhouse, including milk tank.

No, no, no, you can't go lie down yet.

Now, pick up those two five-gallon buckets of calf milk and carry it up the slope — yes, that ice-covered one — to the calf pens. Fill bottles of milk, distribute to calves. Dump buckets of water and refill with fresh. Bend over at waist into feed bin, scooping out calf grain, then distribute to calves. Re-gather bottles, bending from waist to retrieve all those butted on the floor by eager calves, wash and return to drying-rack. Carry bales of hay and straw from heifer barn. Bed calves and feed hay.

No, no, no, you can't go lie down yet.

Clean feed troughs in heifer pens. Scoop and distribute a dozen several-pound scoops of heifer feed. Scoot up ice-covered slope to storage. Scale your way up the side of the cliff-like stack of stored straw bales. Throw down a half-dozen bales of straw and drop to pens below. Climb into hay mow. Throw down a half-dozen bales and drop into alleyway below. Slide back down ice-covered slope with a 50-pound bag of calf feed. Dump calf feed into storage bin.

Break up straw bales and distribute around pens, shaking and scattering. Stack hay bales and distribute a portion of them among the troughs.

Return to dairy barn. Clean out box stalls and bed with fresh sawdust. Shovel out leftover feed and give to heifers. Sweep feed trough areas. Put down fresh silage. Put down fresh sawdust. Sweep alleyways. Return cows to barn.

Break? What break? It's lunchtime. And won't that "melt away the pounds" can of drinkable meal replacement taste delicious before you go rest up for the next session of Farm Fitness and Firm-Up?

Which will begin in just a few hours.

Don't be late.

Recordkeeping Simplified

It's the beginning of a new year and a good chance to get your financial records organized. If you start now, tax time for 2001 will be much easier.

Use the following guidelines to help you determine which financial records to keep and which ones to toss.

Keep:

- Year-end stock and mutual funds earnings.
- Canceled checks and bank statements for at least three years.
- Receipts for tax-deductible expenses and charitable donations.
- Receipts for home improvements, even if you will not have gains over $250,000. Tax laws could change, plus records might be helpful to future homebuyers.

Toss:

- Receipts for purchases after warranties have expired.
- ATM and bank deposits receipts after transactions are verified on a bank statement.
- All but the most current prospectus for investments.

Footprints Of A Princess

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Milking may be work to some people, but Sarah Krall calls it relaxing.

After a hectic day at school, milking 75 Holsteins during the 2½-hour shift allows the Lebanon County dairy princess to reflect on the past day and plan for the next one.

Sarah's parents, Rick and Linda Krall, don't own a farm, but their house was built next door to the farm owned by Sarah's uncle. It's almost like living on a farm. The convenience allows Sarah to help out with afternoon milking and provides a place to keep her nine Holsteins.

Sarah was only 16 years old when she competed for the dairy princess title in Lebanon County. That's the minimum age required but a bit younger than most contestants who vie for the crown.

But age is sometimes misleading. Poised and knowledgeable, Sarah immerses herself in a variety of activities while working toward her goal of becoming a veterinarian.

Active in 4-H dairy club and FFA, Sarah credits public speaking contests in giving her a solid preparation for the dairy princess competition and in many appearances where she is required to address crowds.

"We have a really strong FFA program at Cedar Crest (High School)," Sarah said. She is secretary of the club.

While many teen-agers struggle with peer acceptance and in their quest to fit in with the crowd, they often fall prey to actions they wouldn't normally do. Sarah remains firm. She said, "I have learned to be myself and not worry about what people think about me."

Of the nine head that Lebanon County Dairy Princess Sarah Krall owns, she is partial to Torry, a 3-year-old Holstein that helped her attain grand champion fitter at the Lebanon Area Fair last season. With Sarah are parents, Rick and Linda, and sister, Rachel, a previous dairy maid.

She added, "My family is a big influence on me. My mom, especially, has taught me good morals."

Mom has also taught her family the importance of drinking milk. Sarah is concerned that many of her classmates are preoccupied with weight loss rather than eating a balanced diet. They often make poor choices in selecting food and beverages.

In school, Sarah has been active chorus, and in Odyssey of the Mind since she was a seventh grader. Team members of Odyssey of the Mind must come up with creative solutions to problems. The solution is presented in skit form and must include some technical developement.

Sarah is active in her church youth group and in a school club, Students for Christ.

Both Sarah and her sister Rachel were former dairy maids. Their dad works for Select Sires and their mom is a secretary. Rachel is a freshman at Lebanon Valley College.

"I like traveling to places and meeting different people," Sarah said of dairy promotions. "There're lots to prepare for promotions and finding time for them while keeping up school work, but the school has been supportive in allowing me to miss 3-5 days monthly in order to do promotions."

Helping Sarah with dairy promotion in Lebanon County are Alternate Amanda Helfinger, Dairy Maid Jessica Bross, and Little Dairy Miss Janelle Mendorff.

"I really like working with preschoolers. We teach them to make pudding and they get it all over themselves and the table, but they are so excited about doing it," Sarah said.

Here are two quick and easy recipes that Sarah often serves at promotions.

CREAMY FRUIT DIP

8-ounces cream cheese
¾ cup brown sugar
1 cup sour cream
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 cup cold milk
1 small package instant vanilla pudding mix

In mixing bowl, beat cream cheese and brown sugar until smooth. Add sour cream, vanilla, lemon juice, milk, and pudding mix. Cover and chill one hour. Serve as dip for fruit.

APPLE CINNAMON FROSTY

½ gallon ice cream
1 gallon milk
1 can frozen apple juice
Cinnamon to taste

In a scrapbook compiling promotional activities and farm duties, Sarah Krall chronicled her life under the title, "Footprints Of A Princess.

Are You A Chocoholic?

For those of you who consider yourselves "chocoholics," you're not alone. Forty percent of females and 15 percent of males crave chocolate, with three-quarters of these people reporting that nothing but chocolate will appease their desire.

Studies have reported it is the most commonly craved food in North America, especially among young women.

Are you a craver or an addict? Many of us say we are addicted to chocolate when, in reality, we just have a craving for it. A chocolate craving is described as an occasional, intense motivation aimed at consuming chocolate.

You need to ask yourself a few questions to determine if you are a true chocolate addict.

1. Do you exhibit uncontrolled compulsive behavior by eating an excessive amount of chocolate?

2. Do you experience true withdrawal symptoms when you don't eat chocolate?

3. Do you have a heightened sense of well being while eating chocolate?

4. Does your desire for chocolate interfere with your life by interrupting your thoughts and actions and influencing your mood?

While a few of you may now classify yourself as a chocolate addict, most of us are just chocolate cravers.

A fair amount of research has been done to try to determine what it is about chocolate that makes it the most craved food around. While research has not been able to pinpoint the exact reason, they have studied four possible reasons.

• Sensory Effect — The most widely accepted theory is that cravings for chocolate are based on its taste, smell, and texture. The cocoa butter in chocolate melts at body temperature and contributes to the pleasurable, mouthwatering experience when we eat this sweet. In addition, we are likely born with a taste for sweet and high-fat foods, and chocolate fits the bill. For these reasons, we should be able to appease our cravings with white chocolate, but that doesn't seem to be the case.

This may lend support to the theory that chocolate, but not white chocolate, contains chemicals which help to fulfill our cravings.

• Chemical Effect — One of these chemicals, phenylethylamine (PEA), acts as a stimulant. Studies have shown that PEA acts as a mood regulator, and low levels in the body may cause depression. Some experts believe that chocolate cravings may be an attempt to increase PEA in the brain and enhance mood. However, other foods like cheese and sausage contain large amounts of PEA, but are not craved like chocolate. Other studies say that PEA is broken down in the body too quickly to have any effect.

Two other components in chocolate that may act together as stimulants are caffeine and theobromine. Many are well aware of caffeine's ability to be addictive. Does it serve the same purpose in chocolate?

A third component of chocolate, N-acylethanolamines, may interact with caffeine and theobromine to provide a person with a sense of well-being. This last chemical in chocolate may, in fact, affect the brain to provide a sense of euphoria.

• Nutrition Effect — Some studies reveal that chocolate cravings may occur if the body's magnesium levels are low. Stress, which can cause the body to get rid of magnesium through urine, may contribute to chocolate cravings. This may be one of the reasons women crave chocolate prior to their menstrual cycle. The problem with this theory is the fact that nuts contain high levels of magnesium and women experiencing premenstrual syndrome (PMS) generally don't crave nuts.

Several studies have shown people with negative moods have a greater tendency to be cravers and "emotional" eaters. This lends support to the idea that eating chocolate may be a way for us to regulate chemicals in our brain and bodies to regulate appetite, hunger, mood, and addictive behaviors.

Hormone Effects — Hormones may influence chocolate cravings. Prior to the menstrual cycle, there is an increased blood level of progesterone, a hormone that reduces fat levels in the blood. This decreased blood fat may trigger the body to crave high-fat foods. Again, chocolate fits the bill.

Why are we cravers or addicts? At this point, it doesn't look like any one theory can provide us with the reason for the strong desire for chocolate. Each has its positive and negative points. While the sensory theory seems to be the most widely accepted, our craving for chocolate may be attributed to a combination of these theories.

Nutritionally, chocolate won't increase your cholesterol, but it does contain calories. An overabundance of calories from chocolate can result in weight gain. So, when you have that box of chocolates near you, try to eat just one piece per day. Good Luck!

Don't Delve Into Paychecks Before They're Earned

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The escalating popularity of payday loans proves that many consumers, strapped for cash and not willing to pass on a purchase, search desperately for a lender. When traditional, competitive loans and credit seem unattainable, we dig deeper for cash — and even deeper in debt. But river bottom loan dredging comes with a high price tag. Payday loans have become an increasingly popular last resort loan product.

Alternatively known as cash-advance loans, postdated check loans, or delayed deposit checks, payday loans will provide you with the $100 or $200 you need to get by until your next paycheck arrives. But what will it cost you for this easy cash? Interest rates and/or fees from 250 percent annual percentage rate (APR) on up.

With any loan, the proof is in the interest rate. What then, could possibly make a triple-digit interest rate appealing?

"Consumers fail to see the interest through the loan, the means to their end," said Mark Rosen of the Credit Counseling Centers, Inc., whose staffers have provided financial counseling to thousands of consumers struggling with high-interest debt. "I'm convinced that if they took the time to do the math and consider their options, common financial sense would prevail."

Equipped with the knowledge that a two-week loan of $200 at 500 percent APR would run $38.36 in interest, a would-be borrower might reconsider. Especially when compared to borrowing the same $200 for two weeks at 36 percent ($2.76) or 12 percent ($.92). Further, many payday borrowers roll over or renew loans repeatedly. In just 12 weeks that $200 loan will cost you more than $400 to pay back.

Although payday loan lenders must disclose the APR as part of the Truth in Lending Act, many customers are shocked to learn what they've actually paid.

Convenience is another factor that has given rise to payday loans. According to the Consumer Federation of America, typically, approval is as simple as writing a postdated check to a check-casher for the amount one wishes to borrow — plus the fee. So, if you would like to borrow $100 for two weeks, you would write a personal check for $115. This is an APR of 390 percent. You and the check-casher both understand that there are insufficient funds in your account at that time to clear the check. At the end of two weeks, you can:

• Redeem the check with cash or a money order;

• Allow the check to be deposited; or

• Renew, or roll over, the loan, by paying an additional fee. More often than not, you will find yourself rolling the loan over, gouging deeper into future earnings.

In Pennsylvania, there are no laws, per se, regulating the practices of payday lenders. Until there are, you should seek alternatives that promise to better their personal finances. The first step to financial recovery begins with your credit union, bank or a credit counseling service. Credit unions are especially proactive in providing financial counseling for their members.

The next time you find yourself lured towards a neon-lit, fast-cash outlet, contact your credit union or a credit counseling service such as Myvesta.org™ (formally Debt Counselors of America®, 1-800-680-3328) or Consumer Credit Counseling Service (1-800-873-2227, www.cccintl.org) instead. Ask questions, gather information and review your options. The time you invest will reap a lifetime of dividends.

Refreshing The Refrigerator

This is a good time to take stock of your refrigerator. Begin by throwing out anything old or unidentifiable. Check the expiration date on ketchup, salad dressing and other condiments. Discard anything that shows signs of freezer burn. Get rid of all the ice in both the trays and the ice bin. Unplug the unit and remove all the food.

Place meats and other perishables in a cooler.

To clean the interior and the rubber gasket around the door, use warm water and dishwashing detergent. For stubborn interior stains, use a nonabrasive, all-purpose cleaner or a solution of baking soda and water. Rinse and wipe dry with a soft cloth. Before reconnecting the refrigerator, remove the exterior grill and vacuum the coil area to remove dust and pet hair. Restock the refrigerator, wiping down bottles and jars before returning them to shelves.

QUESTION — Since October is Popcorn Popping Month, N. Kring, Somerset County, would like a recipe for kettle corn, which is a sweetened, salted popcorn sold at county fairs and festivals.

ANSWER — Eugenia Emert, Catasauqua, wanted a recipe for pumpkin cream cheese cupcakes, which are similar to the chocolate or black bottom cream cheese cupcakes. Thanks to Debbie Reynolds, Wrightsville, for sending one.

Pumpkin Cream Cheese Cupcakes

2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
½ cup butter, softened
1½ cups brown sugar
2 eggs
¾ cup pumpkin
¼ cup buttermilk

Sift together flour, baking powder, salt, baking soda, cloves, and cinnamon.

Beat together butter and brown sugar. Add eggs and beat until light and fluffy.

Mix pumpkin and buttermilk in a small bowl. Alternately add flour mixture and pumpkin mixture to butter, end with flour.

Cream Cheese Filling:
Beat until well mixed:

8-ounces cream cheese
1 egg
½ cup sugar

Fill cupcake papers one-third full with cake batter. Add ½ teaspoon cream cheese mixture on top. Bake at 350 degrees for 15-20 minutes or until cupcakes are done.

ANSWER — Rose Menajlo, Bridgeton, N.J., wanted a recipe for homemade ice cream that does not require heating or a cooked mixture. Thanks to Leona Matz, Galeton, for sending a recipe.

Homemade Ice Cream

Beat together until foamy:

Add:

1½ cups sugar
1 large box instant pudding, any flavor

Mix together:

2 large cans evaporated milk
1 tablespoon vanilla

Pour mixture into one gallon ice cream freezer container. Fill with whole milk to fill line marked on container, stir well. Freeze according to ice cream manufacturer's instructions.

Thanks to Mrs. Ernest Brenneman, Meyersdale, for sending a similar one that her family enjoys.

No Cook Ice Cream

2 pints whole milk
2 boxes instant pudding
2 cups sugar
1 quart cream
4 eggs
1 tablespoon vanilla

Mix pudding and milk and set aside until thick. Next combine sugar and cream, stirring well, separate eggs, beat egg yolk with a little milk and add to sugar mixture, add vanilla flavoring, and instant pudding. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and beat thoroughly with egg beaters. Pour mixture into ice cream container and fill to within 2-inches with milk. Freeze according to ice cream manufacturer's instructions.

ANSWER — In the Dec. 2 issue, a recipe for Mincemeat Bars from Katherine Wagner was printed. However, the measurement for butter was not included, and Katherine writes that she lost her recipe despite looking everywhere for it. So, I guess we'll drop the request unless someone else has the recipe.

ANSWER — A reader would like a recipe for chicken coquettes, which taste similar to those served by Shady Maple Smorgasbord. Thanks to a reader for sending one for chicken coquettes and also one for turkey.

Chicken Coquettes

Melt 3 tablespoons butter, blend in ¼ cup all-purpose flour. Add ½ cup milk and ½ cup chicken broth. Cook and stir until mixture thickens and bubbles; cook and stir one minute. Add 1 tablespoon snipped parsley, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 1 teaspoon grated onion, ¼ teaspoon salt, and dash each of paprika, nutmeg, and pepper.

Cool. Add 1½ cups finely diced cooked chicken; salt to taste. Chill thoroughly. With wet hands, shape mixture into eight balls (scant ¼ cup). Roll in ¾ cup fine cracker or bread crumbs. Shpe balles into cones, handling lightly. Dip into mixture of 1 beaten egg and 2 tablespoons water; roll in crumbs.

Fry in deep hot fat (365 degrees) for 2½-3 minutes until heated through. Drain. Serves 4.

For crispy coquettes, keep the cooking fat at exactly the right temperature and fry small quantities at one time.

Oven Turkey Coquettes

Melt 2 tablespoons butter; blend in 3 tablespoons all-purpose flour. Add ½ cup each milk and chicken broth. Cook and stir until mixture thickens; cool. Add 2 cups diced cooked turkey, 1 tablespoon snipped parsley, and ¼ teaspoon rosemary, crushed; salt to taste. Cover; chill several hours.

Trim crusts from 6-8 slices bread; tear slices into ½-inch pieces. Shape turkey mixture into 8 balls (¼ cup each). Dip balls into 1 beaten egg. Roll in bread pieces, coating well. Place in greased shallow baking pan. Brush with melted butter. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes, until hot and toasted.

The reader suggests serving the coquettes with this recipe.

Whole Cranberry Sauce

Place in a saucepan and stir until the sugar is dissolved:

2 cups water
2 cups sugar

Boil the syrup for 5 minutes. Pick over, wash, and add:

4 cups cranberries

Simmer cranberries in the syrup, uncovered, very gently without stirring, until thick and clear, about 5 minutes. Skim. Add:

2 teaspoons grated orange rind. Pour the cranberries into a large mold that has been rinsed in cold water. Chill until firm. Unmold to serve.

Red Velvet Cake

½ cup shortening
2 eggs
1½ cups granulated sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon salt
2-ounces red food coloring
2½ cups flour
2 tablespoons cocoa
1 cup buttermilk

Cream together sugar, shortening, eggs, and vanilla. Add food coloring. Sift flour and salt together. Add alternately with milk. Beat well. Combine 1 tablespoon vinegar and 1 teaspoon baking soda and add all at once to batter. Bake in round pans or 2-heart-shaped pans at 350-degrees for 45 minutes or until toothpick comes out clean when inserted in cake.

Icing:

3 cups confectioners' sugar
¾ cup shortening
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 egg whites

Beat shortening and sugar well. Add vanilla and egg whites, beat again until well beaten. Frost cake.

Consuming Thoughts

Are Wax Coatings Used On Some Fruits And Vegetables Safe?

Many fruits and vegetables make their own natural waxy coating to help retain moisture because most produce is 80-95 percent water.

After harvest but before the produce is packed and sent to the supermarket, it is repeatedly washed to clean off dirt and soil. Such extensive washing also removes the natural wax. Therefore, waxes are applied to some produce items at the packing shed to replace the natural ones that are lost. Waxes help retain the fruit's or vegetable's moisture during shipping and marketing.

Waxes are also used to help inhibit mold growth; to protect fruits and vegetables from bruising; to prevent other physical damage and disease; and to enhance appearance.

By protecting against moisture loss and contamination, wax coatings help fresh fruits and vegetables maintain wholesomeness and freshness. Waxing does not improve the quality of any inferior fruit or vegetables; rather, waxing — along with proper handling — contributes to maintaining a healthful product.

Waxes are also used on candies, pastries, and gum and come from natural sources.

Wax sources generally are plants, food-grade petroleum products, or insects (similar to honey from bees).

Some waxes can be made from dairy or animal sources, but we are not aware of any such coatings being used on fruits and vegetables in Mexico, the United States or Canada. This is particularly important for people following Kosher or vegetarian diets and who don't want any animal-based wax on their produce. Any commodities that do have this type of coating must be labeled "Coated with animal-based wax."

Waxes are used only in tiny amounts.

In fact, each piece of waxed produce only has a drop or two of wax. Waxes may be mixed with water or other wetting agents to ensure they are applied thinly and evenly.

The government regulates wax coatings to ensure their safety.

Coatings used on fruits and vegetables must meet the food additive regulations of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. Extensive research by governmental and scientific authorities has shown that approved waxes are safe to eat. Waxes are indigestible, which means they go through the body without breaking down or being absorbed.

Waxes by themselves do not control decay; rather, they may be combined with some chemicals to prevent the growth of mold. The safety and use of these substances are strictly regulated by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and the Environmental Protection Agency.

Produce shippers and supermarkets in the United States are required by federal law to label produce items that have been waxed so you will know whether the fruits and vegetables you buy are coated.

Consumers will see signs in produce departments that say "Coated with food-grade vegetable-, petroleum-, beeswax-, and/or shellac-based wax or resin, to maintain freshness." None of these coatings is animal-based, and they all come from natural sources.

Consumers are unlikely to see any signs that say, "Coated with food-grade animal-based wax" as such coatings are rarely — if ever — used. Any consumers who have questions about wax coatings should talk to their grocer.

Waxes may turn white on the surface of fruits or vegetables if they have been subjected to excessive heat and/or moisture.

This whitening is safe and is similar to that of a candy bar that has been in the freezer.

Consumers do have choices.

Waxes generally cannot be removed by regular washing. If consumers prefer not to consume waxes — even though the waxes are safe — they can buy unwaxed commodities or can peel the fruit or vegetable, thereby removing any coating. Ask your grocer if you have questions.

Commodities that may have coatings applied include apples, avocados, bell peppers, cantaloupes, cucumbers, eggplants, grapefruits, lemons, limes, melons, oranges, parsnips, passion fruit, peaches, pineapples, pumpkins, rutabagas, squash, sweet potatoes, tomatoes, turnips, and yucca. However, they are not always waxed.

Most of us know that a pinch of salt can almost magically transform some foods from being bland to very tasty dishes. Many people, however, may be relying too heavily on this innocuous looking white substance. Research indicates that the American love for sodium chloride as a seasoning should be restrained.

Sodium intake is linked to hypertension, a health problem that affects more than 60 million people, or more than one-fourth of the American population. Uncontrolled hypertension or high blood pressure can lead to stroke, kidney failure, heart attack, or heart failure.

Many studies in diverse populations have shown that a high-sodium intake is associated with higher blood pressure. The National Academy of Sciences, the American Heart Association, and the federal government's "Dietary Guidelines for Americans" recommend limiting sodium intake to 2,400 milligrams a day.

Americans would probably benefit from retaining their taste buds by using the salt shaker with a lighter hand. Often people reach for the salt shaker before even tasting their food. Sodium chloride occurs naturally in foods, and more salt is added to commercially processed foods, but the remaining one-third to one-half of a person's salt intake is individually controlled. How cooks use the salt shaker can make a difference.

Limiting salt doesn't mean that food must be served tasteless. A multitude of herbs, such as thyme, sage, or marjoram are often forgotten when seasoning foods. Some seasonings — such as seasoning salts, soy sauce, Worcestershire sauce, monosodium glutamate, and bouillon — also contribute sodium to the diet and should be used with restraint.

Foods that are preserved in salt or brine, such as pickles, cured ham, and bacon, are high sodium items. Some high sodium foods don't even taste salty or are not thought of as salty items: for example, the cherry pie at a fast food chain was found to have more sodium than a serving of French fries.

Frequent consumption of some low items can cumulatively and quickly raise the sodium intake. People on low sodium diets, for example, must watch their use of bread and bakery products.

Some people use mixtures of sodium chloride and potassium chloride to cut sodium intake. Individuals who are on any medication should check with their physician before using these mixtures. Some medications interfere with the proper removal of potassium from the body, and serious cardiac problems can result from a buildup of excess potassium in the blood. Potassium chloride alone should not be used without a physician's approval because individuals with undiagnosed kidney problems could be seriously harmed.

The use of salt is deeply ingrained in our history and culture. It will not disappear from the seasoning shelf, but curbing its use may be healthful heart practice.

Penn State York Offers SAT Preparation Courses

YORK (York Co.) — High school students getting ready to take the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) can find help through SAT Preparation courses being offered at Penn State York.

The two four-session courses for verbal and math SAT's are designed to help students improve their SAT skills. Classes are set for four Saturday mornings beginning Feb. 24. Each class meets in four sessions on Feb. 24, March 3, 10, and 17 in the Main Classroom Building.

Students participating in the Preparation for Your Verbal SAT (9 a.m. — 10:30 a.m.) will review important skills assessed in the verbal section and have the opportunity to familiarize themselves with the format and types of questions on the Verbal SAT test. Participants will also practice test-taking in simulated exam conditions. Cost for the Preparation for Your Verbal SAT is $70.

Preparation for Your Math SAT (10:30 a.m. — noon) will familiarize students with the SAT format, and then review SAT math topics including arithmetic, algebra, geometry, graphs, measures and quantitative comparisons. Bring a calculator to the first class. Cost for the Preparation for Your Math SAT course is $70.

Register for both sessions at $125 and save $15. The course fee includes the book Real SAT's by the College Board. For a brochure or more information, call Penn State York at (717) 771-4050 or visit the campus at 1031 Edgecomb Avenue.

State Lamb And Wool Queen Teaches Kids How To Overcome 'Baa'ed' Experiences

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

As far as the Pennsylvania Lamb and Wool Queen is concerned, kids are really important people. She cares so much about them, in fact, when Deidra Smith — that is her name — meets young people, she intends to share the story of how showing lambs in 4-H changed her life.

When she was nine years old, you see, Deidra was a shy little girl. The first time she ventured into a show ring with a lamb, she did more things wrong than right.

It was a "BAA-ED" experience. Then some grownups who had watched her perform, suggested ways she could do things better. They encouraged her to not give up, but try again the next year.

She followed their advice. By leaps and bounds, her skills improved.

Its a pretty nifty thing that Deidra is 16 years old and has showed lambs and steers every year since that first "baa'ed" experience.

Deidra says kids who don't play sports in school, often want to compete in other ways. In joining 4-H and showing animals they will have that opportunity.

"A lot of kids are into sports because they like the competitiveness," she says. "But, I believe animals can give you much more than a ball can."

One of the benefits of 4-H showing, Deidra said, "Is that you actually get a friendship with your animal by the end of summer."

The first time showing may tighten the tummy with funny knots, but concentrating on doing a good job is key to not paying attention to spectators watching from the bleachers.

"Everything changes in the show ring," Deidra says. "You forget the crowd and focus on your animal. Win or lose, its a great feeling.

"The first year is going to be full of new experiences, but if you have older people behind you and keep doing it, it becomes fun," she adds.

During the summer months, an animal project can provide a constructive and fun activity. Deidra explained that a market lamb, steer or pig can't understand the meaning of words, but, if spoken to, animals learn to identify your voice. They also sense the tone of your voice, which changes if you are feeling happy, glum or angry.

The Pennsylvania Lamb and Wool Queen is Deidra Smith. She will promote lamb and wool in all aspects to people in her state. Here, with sister Kelsie outside the barn, they are attempting to control the sheep, but Kelsie ends up in the snow.

Family support and the Somerset County 4-H program have helped Deidra Smith grow into a confident and competent 16-year-old spokesperson as the Pennsylvania Lamb and Wool Queen. From left, Gail Smith, her mother; Deidra, Dwight Smith, her dad; and Kelsie, 11, her sister, at the family farm near Glencoe in Somerset County.

Deidra talks to individual animals as she would to a person.

"The animals learn to know my voice," she explained.

That is comforting for a nervous lamb in the show ring.

Deidra says lamb, as food, is very good to eat. She plans to serve samples of lamb to visitors when she appears at some important events in Pennsylvania and offer recipes for fixing great lamb dishes and snacks. People shouldn't be surprised when the lamb and wool queen reports other nifty stuff about the woolly critters.

"Sheep affects people in everyday life," she says.

Sheep provide wool for clothing and blankets, lanolin for lotions, and even chewing gum? Yes, indeed.

Also, sheep products are used to make buttons, gelatins, gel capsules, cosmetics like eye shadow and foundation, candles, soaps, and many other items.

In 4-H Deidra learned to make pretty wool clothing for herself. For her first experience in sewing, Deidra followed an easy pattern. Later, she advanced to difficult projects that were judged in 4-H Fashion Revue and the Make It Yourself With Wool Pennsylvania Competition.

The judges at Make It Yourself With Wool decided Deidra's garment was well done and should be in the national contest. So from January 25-28, she and Aleecha Jones from Loysburg — another winner — flew all the way to Sparks, Nevada for the big event. Going aboard the fast jet plane in Baltimore was tremendously fun for them and the family members who flew with them.

Deidra says getting away from being tongue-tied took hard work, but it was worth it to participate in 4-H public speaking contests. Her sister, Kelsie, at 11, is exactly opposite, Deidra says. Kelsie has a gift of being able to talk with ease to anyone she meets. Unlike her older sister, Kelsie has never needed to overcome shyness. She also shows animals, sings and plays instruments.

The sister's parents are Dwight and Gail Smith. In Somerset County the family lives in a log house surrounded by beautiful steep mountains, near Glencoe.

How Do Fish Survive In The Winter?

Fish are amazing creatures. They breathe air from the water through special breathing mechanisms called gills. These gills keep them alive-in warm weather and even in winter, when top layers of their pond may freeze.

Most ponds don't freeze deep enough to harm the fish. Aquatic (water) plants, especially microscopic ones, continue producing oxygen as long as light can penetrate the ice. Sometimes, however, the plants can't produce oxygen. Why? Because deep snow may be covering the ice and that prevents sunlight from shining into the water. If this snow cover lasts long enough, the plants will begin to die. Oxygen is used in the decomposition process-oxygen that's important for the fish to survive. If enough oxygen is used by the plants as they decay, the fish could suffocate.

If you have a pond that is covered with several inches of snow, you may want to take steps to insure next summer's fishing season is successful.

It's important to remove snow from at least one-tenth of the pond surface. This will allow light to reach the plants. And if the plants survive the winter, so will the fish!

KIDS GULP MORE MILK

While youths (18 & under) represent only 24% of the population, they drink 46% of all milk consumed in the U.S.

It is no fun being housebound all winter, so we find things to do away from home.

Last week my sister arranged for us and my other sisters to see a play at the Whitaker Center in Harrisburg. The Center itself is worth seeing with an IMAX theater, a science center, and Sunoco Performance Theater. But, we went to see "Milton Hershey-The Play." In three acts and 18 scenes, it portrayed the ups and downs in the life of the founder of Hershey, Pa. It was a dramatic play that pleased a larger audience on a Thursday morning.

Tuesday evening of the same week we attended the 37th annual meeting of the Farm and Home Foundation of Lancaster County. Many years ago my husband, along with many other people, helped to solicit funds to build a center for agriculture. I remember that our dining room table was full of boxes of envelopes being prepared to mail to farmers in our end of the county.

My forefathers picked a good place to settle as Lancaster County is ranked first agriculturally in the United States among non-irrigated counties. For many years, its annual gross income of more than 938 million dollars places it first in Pennsylvania.

Several people visited us to "pick my mind" regarding happenings long ago. However, I think they may be disappointed as I do not recall some things such as "Where was the brake on my grandfather's Conestoga wagon?"

Due to the weather, our daughter and her son from New Jersey could not visit us as planned, and so we ended the week with a travelogue on "Canada's National Parks."

Cooking, Sewing, Budgeting, Childcare Studies Prepare Students For Life In The Real World

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Home economics class isn't what it used to be.

In fact, it has a new name — family and consumer science. The nationally designated name replaces the high school course that taught basic sewing and cooking skills before 1980s.

If you remember classrooms lined with sewing machines at one end and sterile kitchenettes at the other, you probably remember the era when only females could take the course.

Times have changed. Now males are as likely to sign up for the class as females. In fact, it's a requirement in some of the courses.

Sure, students still cook and do a bit of sewing, but that is only a small part of the course work available through family and consumer science.

At Manheim Central High School, computers line one side of the classroom wall. In a class on financial management, Kelly Grove teaches students about the benefits, dangers, and differences between using automatic teller machine (ATM) cards and debit cards.

Students receive a fictitious $1,000 to track a stock during the course work. They learn to keep a household budget using a base salary and a list of expenses to pay. And careful record keeping is required.

People today can manage to squeeze by with very little cooking skills and no sewing expertise, but they better know how to balance a checkbook, budget their income, and understand financial terminology in order to attain a healthy lifestyle.

In these classes, few students appear bored. Instead, their homework is done, they participate in class discussions, and eagerly ask questions about the subjects being discussed.

Although Mary Ellen Gardner, lead teacher, questions whether or not the students really realize the importance of knowing the information consumer classes impart, many students responded enthusiastically when asked their opinion on class material.

"Since I'm taking this class, I'm keeping more track of what I'm spending, and I'm surprised. I didn't think I spent that much," 15-year-old Christina said. "I didn't realize that managing finances was so hard. I want to save more."

Although she is too young to have a credit card, Christina believes she will be very cautious in using one later in life. She explained, "I'm shocked at how much interest can affect incomes."

Christina said that she was surprised to learn that there are many different ways to save money.

Through classroom exposure to stock markets and savings, Matthew Moyer, 16, plans to use the knowledge he attained to invest wisely "and definitely save more," he said.

In a required class, Gardner teaches nutrition. The subject is also a deviation from the nutrition of decades past. At that time little was taught about the dangers of food poisoning. In fact, words such as salmonella, e.coli, and perfringens were seldom if ever mentioned in the news.

Gardner explained, "That's because we continue to have emerging pathogens. In the past many victims of foodborne illnesses blamed it on a virus or flu."

Students learn that the best way to fight food-borne illnesses is through the four requirements of "clean, cook, separate, and chill."

Homework in former home economic classes was usually limited to sewing projects at home. But today's students have reports to prepare, manuals to fill out, and posters to draw in order to summarize findings and elaborate on their own ideas in reference to assignments.

Which brings up another difference between classrooms of the past and of today. Now students are searching the Web to find the latest information. The Web is a source used in place of the old standbys of encyclopedias and outdated textbooks. But students still need to credit their sources. Website addresses and dates are required.

A sewing class is required for both males and females. They have a choice to create a duffel bag or windsox. They learn to weave fabric from thread they have created.

In his first exposure to sewing, Alex Goleb, 14, was surprised. "I thought it would be harder," he said of cutting out and sewing a duffel bag. It's also a lot more fun than he expected.

Other electives in sewing include wardrobe planning, fashion, and clothing care. Students learn the basics of mending clothing and participate in sewing projects for the community, such as preparing head scarves for cancer patients and stuffed animals for needy children.

Learning to budget and pay expenses is an eye opener to many students, and one that influences their spending habits.

Unlike past decades, males and females are required to take an introductory sewing class. In his first sewing project, Alex Goleb, 14, works on a duffel bag.

A popular class in child development is primarily filled with females. Teacher Deb Strickler said that students interested in teaching elementary education sign up for the class. But many others sign up for the class because they see that it will strengthen their ability to parent later in life.

For six weeks of the 18-week course, the class will also operate a preschool for the community. Some of the time is also spent in assisting other daycare and elementary school classes.

"Anyone who wants to learn about children and how they develop will benefit in career and parenting skills by taking this class," said Amy, a senior. "It's helped me understand how children relate to us and how we relate to children." This input has benefited Amy in connecting with children at her church and with her cousins.

While electives vary from school to school, national guidelines exist, but not every school follows them as thoroughly as what MCHS does.

Many family and consumer science teachers consider MCHS to have one of the best programs in the state.

"I attribute it to Mary Ellen Gardner," Strickler said.

Gardner has taught at the school for 34 years. She has seen a lot of changes in that time — "mostly positive," she said. "Our administration and board members have been very supportive of our program. We have four full-time teachers for 1,000 students — a good ratio when compared to many other school districts."

Gardner is convinced that students will benefit for years to come from solid teaching in consumer sciences. It's been her goal to give them the best by keeping current on reading topics, attending workshops, and participating in the professional association of consumer science teachers.

The four teachers rotate the subjects they teach. "This way we (department teachers) know the entire program. We can support and reinforce what is being taught in other classes. We take turns making up the tests."

Since Gardner first began teaching, family structure has changed dramatically in the community. More kids come from single parent and blended families. Students need to be shown more basics, such as how to use a vegetable peeler. People use more convenience foods, and are often amazed to find that making something from scratch isn't as hard as they had thought.

Gardner said, "Our school's mission statement is 'empowering the individual through development of academic and social skills to become responsible citizens in a changing world.' I think our department is fulfilling that."

Gardner is pleased to hear from students who comment, "Consumer education is the most important course I ever had."

If they don't realize it now, they will later, Gardner believes.

Nutrition education has changed dramatically during Mary Ellen Gardner's 34-year of teaching. In past decades, words such as salmonella, e. coli, and pefringens were almost unknown. Now students learn how to fight food- borned illnesses through proper food preparation.

While some school districts have dropped consumer science courses, Manheim Central High School requires students to participate in a comprehensive course to better prepare them to be responsible citizens in a changing world.

Bankruptcy: What's It Going To Cost You?

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Each year, more than 800,000 Americans file for protection under the federal bankruptcy laws, says the American Bankruptcy Institute (ABI), either to structure payments to repay some of their debt or just to wipe the slate clean.

Some abuse credit or are financially irresponsible. But, according to a leading source of financial information, the average working family trying to pay all of their bills can find themselves in financial trouble, too. A USA Today poll showed that the number 1 reason consumers file for bankruptcy is credit card debt, claiming a total of 63 percent of all filers.

Imagine having a tough time making credit card payments. Like a miracle, an out-of-state bank sends a preapproved application for a new card with a $5,000 credit limit. Your problem is solved — temporarily.

Later you find that you've once again maxed-out another credit card. And, mail offers continue to roll in. You find yourself signing up, soon so deep in debt that you're sinking into financial quickstand.

Then you see the ad on television: A lawyer offers to solve your credit problems in a flash. All you have to do is declare personal bankruptcy and your troubles are over.

So, what will it be? Chapter 7, under which you liquidate all nonexempt assets? Or, Chapter 13, which allows you to reorganize and keep some property, such as a mortgaged home or your car? In either case, you wipe the financial slate clean and get to start all over again.

And, it's so easy. Or is it?

There is a big price, for you and for the vast majority of people who pay their bills and take responsibility for their financial habits.

Consider the following penalties of bankruptcy:

• It costs money to go bankrupt. Attorney and filing fees can total hundreds of dollars.

• Not all debts are dischargeable. For example, income taxes and most student loans are not dischargeable. Others include debts of more than $500 for luxury goods and services, and cash advances of more than $1,000 obtained shortly before filing.

• Public knowledge of your personal finances. Bankruptcy proceedings, which reveal your personal finances, are public.

• Credit bureaus can keep a bankruptcy on record for 10 years. This often makes further credit hard to get and more expensive. Plus, if a credit file is used for loan or life insurance applications of $50,000 or more, or for a job application involving an annual salary of $20,000 or more, time limits don't apply.

• Bankruptcy can be very demoralizing. Most people feel better when they pay their bills.

Some people experience sudden loss of job, medical bills, divorce, or even natural disasters that leave them little alternative but bankruptcy — and those are the people bankruptcy is meant to help. Bankruptcy law is designed to relieve people who are in a situation beyond their control. Then, the bankruptcy court can enable a debtor to build a new life by nullifying some or all debt.

Although job loss or high medical expenses combined account for more than 75 percent of consumer bankruptcy, plain credit misuse is also a major factor. For instance, if your debt load is high, and you do encounter a job loss or a medical expense, your budget doesn't stand a chance.

The good news is that the number of bankruptcies filed in the United States in 1999 declined 8.5 percent from the previous year, says the ABI. "The tidal wave of new bankruptcies appears to have subsided somewhat," said Samuel Gerdano, ABI Executive Director. "However, the high rate of filings demonstrates that U.S. consumers are still under financial stress, notwithstanding a healthy economy."

If your debt load is at the max, start to reduce it now. Don't let your financial situation become another statistic of personal bankruptcy filings. If you're experiencing financial stress, talk to your credit union. Many credit unions offer financial counseling. Or, contact the Consumer Credit Counseling Service at 1-800-873-2227. Both non-profit organizations can help you determine just where you stand financially.

Moisture Problems

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Moisture levels inside homes in winter can be high enough to cause mildew and other problems. Winter dryness, on the other hand, can also be a problem.

Dry air is often associated with wood burning stoves and fireplace inserts. Forced hot air central heating systems can also add to drying conditions. Simple techniques to add moisture include placing containers of water on wood stoves, adding a humidifier to central heating systems, or installing a separate humidifier.

Relative humidity of 30 to 50 percent is recommended for the health of the house and 40 to 60 percent for the health of the occupants. An inexpensive hygrometer can indicate the level of the relative humidity in your home.

Often moisture will condense on windows causing wetness and dripping even while the relative humidity in the house is low enough to cause nasal and breathing problems. This is because moisture and temperature are related. Condensation on windows is more likely to be a result of a cold window than excessive moisture in the room. You can prevent the condensation by warming the window surface above the dew point by adding storm windows and/or placing heated air vents below the window so that the warm air will remove the moisture from the glass.

If possible, include a general cost for the blinders. Thanks to Melvin Z. Nolt, Leola, who writes that the blinders are available from Alvin H. Martin, Amstutz Rd., Shiloh, Ohio. Phone (419) 896-2872.

ANSWER — N.W. Shirk wants to buy a good used or new fuel shut-off valve for a Ford 601 tractor. Robert Long, Clearfield, recommends he contact McCullough's Used Farm Parts, 164 Pioneer Lake Rd., Commodore, PA 15729. The Indiana County firm is one of the larger farm equipment salavage yards in western Pennsylvania and has a few old Ford tractors dating back to the mid 1950s, the era when the Ford 601 was built.

ANSWER — A reader wanted to know if anyone has had experience with operating a Hydra-drill to drill a well, and the results. Thanks to Robert Long who writes that he has never used one, but he knows about them. Like any small scale home well drill, these type units have a hard time getting through thick layers of hard rock. Moreover, because these units drill a very small bore hole, there is almost no storage capacity, which means that the incoming water flow needs to be at least 10 gallons per minute in order to keep up with demand.

If the reader wants to drill a well, Long suggests he hire a commercial well driller. If working space and drill dust from a rotary drill, which is considerable, are potential problems than the reader should employ a well driller who uses a hammer drill.

Chester County 4-H'er Wins State Fair Queen Competition

New Pennsylvania Fair Queen is Julie Sollenberger from Spring City.

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — The Kimberton Community Fair announces the selection of its local fair queen contestant Julie Sollenberger as the 2001 Pennsylvania State Fair Queen during the Pennsylvania State Association of Community Fairs Annual Convention.

Julie is the daughter of Dave and Holly Sollenberger from Spring City, Chester County. She was a 2000 graduate of Owen J. Roberts High School and is a freshman at Penn State-Berks campus, where she is majoring in agriculture business.

The state queen contest involved three intensive days of competition during which 47 fair queen contestants from across the state were judged in interviews and on their presentation and public speaking abilities. The field of 47 was then narrowed down to five semifinalists during a ceremony on the final day of the convention.

The final decision was made on the semifinalists' responses to a final impromptu question. The judges chose Miss Westmoreland County Fair as first alternate, and then announced Sollenberger as the new state fair queen.

Fair Queen 2000 Jana Duttry from Clearfield County Fair and State Secretary of Agriculture Samuel E. Hayes Jr. were on hand for the ceremony. Julie will hold the title of state fair queen for one year and receives a scholarship award to be used toward higher education. She will now go on to represent the state at agricultural events in Harrisburg as well as at many of the fairs across the commonwealth.

Sollenberger is Kimberton Fair's second fair queen ever. She has been a livestock exhibitor with the fair since she was young. Julie has been involved with the Chester County 4-H association through its livestock competitions, Dairy Quiz Bowl Team, and the Chester County Dairy Ambassador program.

Julie and her family show several breeds of dairy cattle in competition such as Guernsey, Jersey, and Holsteins. She will continue to act as ambassador for Kimberton Fair until her reign concludes in July.

The purpose of the fair queen competition is to encourage the promotion of agricultural fairs and to create better relations between youth and adults in both rural and urban settings. The program is not a "beauty" or "talent" contest — rather, contestants are judged on their ability to communicate, their knowledge of the agricultural and fair industries, and overall personality. Anyone interested in entering Kimberton's local competition should contact contest coordinator Louise Kritzberger. Deadline for entering the 2001 Kimberton Fair Queen competition is April 15.

Students: Beware Of The Credit Card Trap

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Perhaps it was a backpack, shiny and new, or a trendy T-shirt — "sign here," they'd taunt, "take two." The promise of flight — tickets for free, and a credit card to boot.

Credit card companies can be seen at nearly every college campus. Luring students with freebies and cool refreshments, campus credit card hawkers now claim a healthy chunk of the undergraduate market at four-year colleges, according to a study last year by Consumer Federation of America (CFA) (www.consumerfed.org).

The privilege of membership has its price. Burdened by credit card debt, many college students are struggling with heavy financial and emotional stress, CFA reports.

About 70 percent of undergraduates at four-year colleges possess at least one credit card. "Revolvers," or those who don't pay off their credit card bills each month, carry debts on these cards that average more than $2,000 — with annual interest rates as high as 20 percent.

One-fifth of the students surveyed for the CFA report were carrying card debt of more than $10,000. Some debt was refinanced with student loans or with private debt consolidation loans. Many of those students carrying the biggest debt were from low- or moderate-income families.

The study also reveals how aggressive, seductive, and effective the marketing efforts of credit card issuers have become.

"Establishing a line of credit is critical to your future buying power," they said. "No need to carry a balance. You'll pay it off monthly, incurring no finance charge," they promised, sweetening the pitch with super-sized sodas.

With little more than a bicycle, books and a pending degree to claim as assets, students can be approved for a card with a limit of $1,000 or more.

When the card arrives in the mail, it is immediately tucked away for emergencies. Within two weeks, emergency evolves into convenience. Students begin charging gasoline, meals, and clothing. Even with cash in hand, some will use the card instead because it seems less damaging to charge than break a $20.

Before long, students reach the ceiling of their credit limit and enter the minimum balance payment zone — but it isn't until post graduation that they break out of it.

Indebtedness prompts some students to drop out of school, and a handful to more painful crises, the CFA reports.

"The unrestricted marketing of credit cards on college campuses is so aggressive that it now poses a greater threat than alcohol or sexually transmitted diseases," says Georgetown University sociologist Robert Manning and author of the CFA report. "Typically, students slide into debt through the extension of unaffordable credit lines, increasing education-related expenses, peer pressure to spend, and financial naivete reinforced by low minimum monthly payments and routine increases in credit."

More than 300 colleges and universities have banned credit card marketers on campus with many other universities following their lead. Some organizations, including the CFA, are even calling for legislation to greatly restrict the access of card marketers to students.

And now credit card marketers have access to students through the Internet. "The 1999 Credit Cards on the Internet Report," by Brittain Associates (www.brittainassociates.com) reveals that young Internet users are more likely to say yes to online solicitations for credit cards than overall Internet users.

But without proper parental guidance and example, such protective legislative actions are only delaying the inevitable. Financial literacy starts at home. If your undergraduate is considering credit, encourage him or her to think about employing the following first:

• Budget — Taking the time to establish a monthly budget can provide students with realistic numbers for credit card payments. A good formula is to keep your monthly debt obligation below 10 percent of your monthly net income (after taxes). For example, if your net income is $500 a month, your monthly credit card charges shouldn't be over $50. Preparing for planned and unexpected expenses is the best way to guarantee that your credit history remains strong and unblemished.

• Shop Around For The Best Deal — Don't be enticed by the offer of a free T-shirt. Look around for the company that is going to offer the best interest rates and terms.

• Study The Agreement — Always read the fine print and fliers that are included with every bill. Credit card offers differ and issuers can usually change the terms at will with 15 days notice.

• Always Pay On Time — A single slip-up will place a black mark on your credit record and may cause the issuer to raise your interest rate to the maximum.

• Try To Pay The Balance — Just paying the minimum gets you no where fast. If you pay off a $1,000 debt on an 18 percent card by just paying the minimum each month, it will take more than 12 years to repay.

• Be Responsible — Know what you can handle and live within your means. the way you handle your credit union or bank account and other responsibilities may affect your credit worthiness in the future.

Maple Syrup Facts

In late winter and early spring, maple producers collect sap from maple trees-especially sugar maples and black maples. A metal spout is tapped into the maple tree with a hammer. The maple producer then hangs a bucket on the spout to catch the golden sap that begins to drip from the tree.

The sap can be collected until just before the tree buds begin to expand, usually in late March or early April. Some days a lot of sap may flow from the tree and other days none at all. It depends upon the weather.

Each maple tree produces six to 10 gallons of sap, but believe it or not, it takes about 10 gallons of sap to produce one quart of syrup!

To make syrup the sap must be boiled to remove the water it contains.

Become Fluent In Pennsylvania Dutch

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster Mennonite Historical Society will offer a 10-week, spring Pennsylvania German dialect seminar, intended for persons who wish to increase their fluency in the dialect and their understanding of the local cultural heritage. A native speaker, Fannie Z. Stoltzfus Ellenberg of Harrisburg, will conduct the course in the dialect on Thursday evenings, March 15-May 17, 7-9:30 p.m., at Society headquarters, 2215 Millstream Road, Lancaster, PA 17602-1499.

To enhance learning, class size will be limited to qualified applicants on a first-come, first-serve basis. Advance registration for the course at $85 per Society member and $95 per nonmember is required with Lola M. Lehman at Society headquarters.

Open to the public, the sessions require moderate dialect word usage and speaking ability for registrants to enroll. To be conducted in the dialect as much as possible, classes will feature a combination of grammar and New Testament studies; a break for informal conversation and fellowship; reports of local, national, and international news by class members; and short stories for translation and discussion. Required texts for the course are Richard Druckenbrod's Mir Lanne Deitsch and Es Nei Teshtament, both available from the Society's bookshop.

Reared as one of eight children in a Leola area Amish farm family, Ellenberg spoke Pennsylvania German dialect as her first language. For three years she taught at the Myers School, a one-room rural school for Old Order Amish and Mennonite children. Still a fluent dialect speaker, she graduated from Messiah College, Grantham, with a B.S. degree in elementary education after earning a GED diploma in 1978.

Currently she is employed by Eldercare Solutions in the Harrisburg area. She enjoys reading, gardening, home arts, writing, and singing. For six years she served as a childcare worker, and since 1994 she has taught Sunday school for 3- and 4-year-olds.

Learn Dutch

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster Mennonite Historical Society will offer an introductory spring seminar on Pennsylvania German Dialect for Beginners. Taught by Stephen D. Miller of Leola, the class will run for 10 Thursday evenings, 7-9 p.m., Feb. 22-April 26, at Society headquarters, 2215 Millstream Road, Lancaster, PA 17602-1499. Advance registration is required with Lola M. Lehman at $75 per Society member and $85 per nonmember. Phone: (717) 393-9745.

Geared for those who have little or no knowledge of the dialect and no knowledge of German word order, the class will provide examples of the use for dialect words, word lists, questions on the lesson, and English-to-dialect exercises. Emphasis will be placed on pronunciation, grammar, vocabulary, and some oral reading in class.

York Chamber Honors Ag Family Businesses

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — The Paul McPherson and Dick Naylor families have been named farm business honorees of the year by the York Chamber of Commerce.

These two marketing-savvy farm families were saluted before a crowd of more than 300 attending the Chamber's annual Ag-Business Awards Dinner, Jan. 25 at the York Expo Center.

Named farm family of the year, Paul and Gail McPherson operate a 1,400-acre grain and fruit operation new New Park. A portion of their orchard production is marketed through Maple Lawn's customer-pick and farm retailing center, with seasonal emphasis on peaches, blueberries, and apples. Their Maple Lawn Excavating service is a sideline business started several years ago by Paul to assist other landowners in conservation construction.

Paul is a 10-year director of AgChoice and chairs the Fawn Township Planning Commission. He has also served as director of the Penn State Ag Science Alumni Society and as president of the National Peach Council, Fawn Grove Fire Company and the York County Fruit Growers Association.

Gail is an active charter-member of the American and Pennsylvania Agri-Women, serves on the Apple Marketing Board and formerly taught in the Southeastern School District. The McPhersons are involved in the North American Farmers Direct Marketing Association and fill various leadership positions at the Centre Presbyterian Church.

The couple has three children, daughters Gretchen and Sarah, and son, Hugh, who has joined the family business after graduating from Penn State. Hugh added an additional twist to Maple Lawn's creative marketing events and activities with the farm's popular corn maze. That enterprise has evolved into a "MazeQuest" franchise with seven additional mazes in various locations.

With their upbeat approaches to marketing, the McPherson farm has become a destination for thousands of regional consumers looking for quality fruit, hands-on harvest experiences and hours of cornfield entertainment.

Selection of the Farm Family award is based on excellence in farming and production quality, dedication to and years of involvement in agriculture, community involvement, setting a positive lifestyle example and participation in ag-related activities and groups.

Similar criteria — excellence in operation, a quality produce, outstanding customer service, community service, and years of popular business relationships — are the selection hallmarks of the annual Outstanding Agri-Business Award, presented this year to Dick and Audrey Naylor's production and marketing business, Naylor's Wine Cellars.

"You can make a living from a hobby," quipped Dick Naylor, accepting the family's honor from the Chamber on behalf of their family-farm winery.

A tool and die marker by trade, and general manager of York's Cor-Box by later career, Naylor began growing grapes as a hobby, purchasing the farm near Stewartstown in 1974. The vineyard has grown from its original 1-½ acres to 33 acres, with more than 25,000 vines of 15 mainstay varieties of grapes and more than two dozen experimental cultivars.

Sales for 1998 topped $880,000, with 95 percent of their production marketed through their own retail outlets. About half of the Naylor Wine Cellars total sales figure is from distributing speciality packaging products, including shipping cartons and gift boxes, to some 700 other wineries and shops around the country.

Winter months keep the several full-time and part-time production employees busy pruning and caring for the vines, as well as bottling product. During the summer months, musical entertainment and special events bring crowds to enjoy the rural setting of the Naylor vineyard pavilion. Naylor's wines have won numerous industry awards for excellence.

A true family business, Naylor is headed by Dick as president, Audrey is vice-president, their daughter Janey Potter handles systems coordination, while son-in-law Ted Potter is a winemaker. Naylor's mother, 98-year-old Helen Wheat, often lends a hand helping to label and bottle.

Recognition was extended to hosts of the Chamber's annual Farm Visitation Day. Farms which opened their doors to the public for the annual ag education event last November were Brown's Orchards and Farm Markets, operated by Stan and Nona Brown; Highbourne Deer Farm, the enterprise of John and Nancy Behrmann; Perrydell Dairy, Greg, Laurie, Tom and Donna Perry; and the South Branch Farm of Robert and Anne Kinsley.

Also honored were participants in the Agricultural Exchange, which teams farm and industry representatives to spend a day visiting at their worksites. Teamed with Sandy Johnston and her horse farm were Adhesives Research employees Cathie Huber and Sue Kisielnicki. Dairy farmers Harry Bickle, Alta Vista Farm West, and Felicia Dell, York County Planning Commission, were teamed for a visit, as well as 93rd District State Representative Ron Miller who teamed with grain producer Brian Utz, Green Valley Farm.

Dale Crist, business associate of Rutter's Dairy and the Chamber ag business committee's photographer, was honored for his years of service. The FFA Chapter of Eastern York High School was saluted by the Chamber for its outstanding display awards received at the recent Farm Show. Also recognized were county dairy princess Heather Crowl, Pennsylvania Poultry Ambassador Rijelle Kraft, Alan and Denise Taylor who were among the top finalists in a recent state Farm Bureau young farmers competition, and Russel and Betty Cornbower, also honored by the Farm Show for Russel's lengthy years of participation.

Featured speaker was Penn State Ag College's dean, Dr. Robert Steele. Steele praised York County for its measures being taken to preserve farmland, noting that "Pennsylvania is still a keystone state, located within a day's drive of two-thirds of the U.S. population."

"That gives this area a geographical advantage," noted Dr. Steele, praising the ag-business honorees for recognizing and utilizing the surrounding population in their marketing efforts.

Steele acknowledged that Pennsylvania is the leading state in the nation in farmland preservation efforts, with some 200,000 acres on 1,500 farms in preserve status. But with 45,000-plus farms and more than 7.5 million acres of farmland across the Keystone state, Steele emphasized that there is much more to be done. He especially noted water quantity, along with water quality, to be an issue of concern for the future and that capturing and recharging water supplies becomes more difficult as acres are paved over.

"Keep agriculture a profitable enterprise," he urged. "That's the best way to preserve agriculture."

Genealogy Conference Is March 30-31

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Featuring as keynote speaker Roland Paul — associate director since 1978 of the Institute for Palatinate History and Folk Culture, Kaiserslautern, Germany — the Lancaster Mennonite Historical Society and the Lancaster County Historical Society will cosponsor the 22nd annual Family History Conference on Friday and Saturday, March 30-31, 2001, at Lancaster Mennonite High School, Lancaster.

In his keynote address, Paul will discuss "The Old World and the New World of the Pennsylvania Germans," outlining the political, religious, and social situation in the 17th- and 18th-century German Palatinate. He will also present workshops on "Genealogical Sources for the Palatinate in State, City, Church, and Private Archives" and "Immigration into the Palatinate from Switzerland and Other Countries after the Thirty Years Wars."

Other leaders will conduct about 20 other workshops featuring beginner to advanced research; facilities in multiple geographic areas; and usage of varied types of records, including estate, courthouse, federal immigration and naturalization records; gravestones and social identity; genealogy computer programs and web pages as sharing tools; and dating one's house.

Program and further registration details are available from Lola M. Lehman, Lancaster Mennonite Historical Society, 2215 Millstream Road, Lancaster, PA 17602-1499 (include self-addressed, stamped envelope). Phone: (717) 393-9745; fax: (717) 393-8751. Registration deadline is March 17.

'Incredible' Opportunities Linked To Agricultural Pursuits

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

CENTRE HALL (Centre Co.) — For Emily, it's hard to differentiate among her many ag-related interests. They all seem to intertwine somehow with 4-H.

"Four-H is an incredible learning experience to build upon, and it teaches responsibility," she said of her involvement in several 4-H clubs.

"Incredible" is a word that 18-year-old Emily uses often while conversing about 4-H, the dairy princess program, and the dairy industry.

The freshman Penn Stater developed an interest in the dairy industry as a preschooler accompanying her dad, Robert Cloninger, a large animal veterinarian, to farms. She soon joined 4-H and began raising animals for projects. Now, she owns 10 of the 28 Holsteins on the family's 10-acre Reeber Farm.

Emily participated in Dairy Bowl at the state and national level. When she was in sixth grade, Emily became a dairy maid, a position she held for several years.

"That was my first involvement with dairy promotion," Emily said.

She enjoyed it so much that competing for the Centre County and later the state dairy princess seemed a natural progression.

In September, Emily was selected second alternate for state promotions.

The demands of attending promotional events throughout the state has complicated her college studies in animal science and business management at Penn State's main campus, but all her past experience in responsibility and scheduling has enabled her to maintain full-time classes and promotions.

"When I miss class, my friends take notes so I can read along," Emily said of keeping up with class studies.

"It's an incredible opportunity and one that I enjoy."

At home, Emily enjoys spending time with her parents, Robert and Ellen, and sisters, Elizabeth, 11, and Rebecca, 10; and a brother Ben, 15.

"I've always been around cows. The dairy industry is something I love and respect so much. I want to give back what it's given me," Emily said.

ELEMENTS OF TECHNICAL ANALYSIS

John Berry
Ag Marketing Educator
Penn State
Lehigh County

"Volume" and "open interest" are used to substantiate primary signals developed by technical analysis. They help investors find clues to market movement and bolster the chances of enhancing their financial position. In the futures market, a new contract becomes a reality only when a new buyer and a new seller complete a transaction.

"Volume" is the total amount of purchases or sales transacted in a given day. Each time a record of a new market position is established or reversed, the total volume increases or decreases by one. To find the volume, add the total of the short positions, or add the total of the long positions that particular day. Do not add the two together, because a contract requires one of each.

Each time a transaction is completed, whether it involves establishing a new position or offsetting an old position, the volume is increased by one. In general, trading volume has little relationship to a season, although a slight upward trend may occur during heavy crop movements. Such movements are not repeated consistently. One way to characterize volume is as a measure of the urgency shown by market traders to do something on a given day to enter or leave the market.

Open interest is defined as contracts entered into on the futures market but not yet liquidated by an offsetting transaction or fulfilled by delivery of a commodity. This involves the total number of contracts outstanding at the end of a day. Open interest is determined by adding the number of long positions held or by adding the total number of short positions held at the close of the trading day. Again, the two are not added together. Open interest measures the degree or level of participation in the market. Usually it reflects new participants coming into the market and old ones dropping out.

For examples: let's assume you have no position in the market but decide today to buy one futures contract of wheat. If the seller on the other end of your transaction was closing out a previous long position in wheat, open interest would not change. You would, in effect, replace him in the market. But if the seller was establishing a new short position, volume would increase by one because there would be a new long and a new short.

Open interest is more subject to seasonal fluctuations than is trading volume. The low point usually occurs just before new crop harvest. It usually peaks when grain storage stocks are at their apex because as the commodity is stored, the number of hedged transactions increases.

Both volume totals and open interest rates are published in the market sections of most daily newspapers. Remember: the totals in the newspaper reflect market activity for the day before yesterday. Both volume and open interest are measured in bushels for grain and in contracts for meats.

Looking at the combination of volume, open interest and price action can give the producer clues to how prices may behave in the future. When analyzing open interest and volume, consider all the months for the same crop year of a particular commodity. Using supply and demand factors that incorporate two separate years can cause unrelated and incorrect readings.

Positive signals are generated in a bull market because, as prices continue upward, volume also goes up. Even though significant numbers of sellers are willing to liquidate, a large number of traders are willing to buy in the belief that today's price protects them from paying higher prices in the future.

Rallying prices and increasing open interest give another positive sign for a continuing bull market. This means more new buyers are coming into the market and holding their position overnight, while sellers are buying back their short (sold) positions before the market closes. Speculators or long hedgers (investors anticipating further price increases) will enter the market and others (short hedgers and speculators) will leave, anticipating price declines. This type of market pattern must continue over several days before a specific market direction, or trend, can be established.

There also are warning signs to heed when the market's volume continues to increase with a subsequent substantial price move, or when prices move up on a day when volume is down. These signs may show that only a few large buyers are pushing the market up against only a few sellers to inflate the existing price unrealistically.

The biggest warning sign is when prices are going higher at a time open interest is dropping. This signals speculators are liquidating their long positions and taking profits, leaving a large supply on the market to match a smaller population of buyers. Buyers should hold to purchase later, after the market price has adjusted to a lower and more acceptable level.

In a bear market, sellers sell short even though there are many buyers. Prices may close lower on a day with heavy volume because of traders' willingness to cut profits or losses in anticipation of more price decreases.

Another sign of a weak market is downward trending prices combined with increasing open interest. This market, dominated by many new sellers wanting out of the market, is likely to result in continuing lower prices.

It is hard to gauge the direction of the market when both prices and volume are down. The few participants on that day may not have been sufficient to give a true picture of the strength of the total market direction.

When both prices and volume are low, it could be signaling the end of the downside trend in the market. A drop in price and open interest shows sellers are liquidating and taking profits in greater numbers than new short positions are being added. Eventually the market will gain more buying power than selling interest, and prices will turn upward.

At this market point, sellers should hold out for higher prices to come, but livestock feeders should consider buying before a price increase becomes a reality.

Understanding and using this information provides the trader, speculator, or producer with good indications of the relative buying or selling strength of the market. Publications of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) offer valuable information on the open interest and volume of trading for all regulated commodities.

These reports also disclose the nature and size of traders holding futures contracts. All these factors influence a decision on whether to enter the futures market, but should not be used as the only indicator of when to buy or sell.

Guidelines for producers and traders in following price, volume, and open interest:

- Simultaneous increases in price, volume, and open interest indicate a technically strong market.
- Decreases in price, volume, and open interest likewise indicate a technically strong market.
- Increases in price, coupled with decreases in both volume and open interest, indicate a technically weak market.
- Decreases in price, combined with increases in both volume and open interest, also indicated a technically weak market.

At Crops Day, Growers Learn About Herbicide-Resistant Alfalfa Variety Under Test

ANDY ANDREWS

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — For the first time, Roundup Ready herbicide-tolerant alfalfa will be available on a test basis.

Penn State will have about 500 grams, or about a pound of seed, supplied by a small biotech company from Idaho working with Monsanto. Penn State will check on its field viability, spray it with Roundup, and check on a wide array of characteristics, according to Bill Curran, Penn State weed specialist.

Curran spoke Tuesday morning at the annual Penn State-sponsored Berks County Crops Day at the extension office in Leesport. About 100 growers and agri-industry representatives attended.

According to Curran, though the alfalfa is a few years from the market, tests are under way to see how much of the seed is 100 percent Roundup Ready.

Already, Roundup Ready soybeans make up a huge amount of planted acreage in the county, according to Curran. U.S. market share of the herbicide-tolerant soybeans comprises 50 percent and approaches 80 percent usage in parts of Pennsylvania, he said.

Manufacturers for years have been working toward the "ideal herbicide," according to the weed specialist. That "perfect herbicide for the next millennium," Curran noted, would control all weeds, never injure the crop, have use on multiple crops, would be rainproof, have full-season control, have no rotation restrictions, and would be inexpensive.

The ideal control, pre- or post-application, would be grass- or broadleaf based "with foliar activity and residual control," he said.

Curran examined several issues the grower must deal with. Not only are the companies marketing products merging or being purchased, but there are new issues of herbicide resistance and field "weed shifts," according to Curran.

In the industry, companies are merging or going out of business altogether. BASF acquired American Cyanamid. The merger of Zeneca and Novartis resulted in the naming of a new company, Syngenta. Companies now include Aventis, Bayer, BASF, Uniroyal, FMC, Dow AgroSciences, Syngenta, Valent, and Dupont. Nine basic companies, according to Curran, could become 5 to 7 in years to come.

In 1965, one in 11,000 chemicals under review succeeded in coming to marketplace. That number shrank to one in 50,000 in 1995.

Glyphosate, or Roundup products, are going to be combined with different formulations and give growers more options for weed control.

As for the next five years, success or failure of new formulations depends on consumer acceptance of biotech. Herbicide resistance, or HR, in major and minor crops could include stacked traits with insect management and plant disease resistance.

According to the Penn State specialist, 10 years in the future, information technology will key developments and more biocontrol options may be available for growers.

For studies of using purely biological agents to control corn, that could be a "long way off," Curran said.

For now, weed shift and herbicide resistance issues will remain the focus of additional research.

Already, the decision is still out on a case of possible horseweed resistance in marestail, or horseweed, in Delaware, on no-till soybeans, according to the weed specialist. Penn State is still conducting greenhouse studies and looking at the issue closely.

As for other herbicide resistance issues (triazine and atrazine), there have been few "verifiable cases of resistance," he said.

The focus of studies has been the effect of herbicide programs on weed shifts in corn/soybeans rotation. A simple study has been examining six different herbicide treatments with Roundup and non-Roundup treatments at Rockspring. The field has lambsquarters, ragweed, smartweed, foxtail, and nutsedge.

For the most part, preplant programs have done well to control a wide variety of weeds. But a strictly post application has run into problems, especially with control of nutsedge and wild buckwheat.

Also, the problems with triazine- and atrazine-resistant weeds are more prevalent on corn than soybeans, simply because the soybeans in the narrower rows (15 instead of 30 inches) are more competitive against weeds as they canopy.

One Penn State study looked at 59 farms and 179 fields, livestock farms that were feed sampled. Greater than 98 percent of the farms had triazine-resistant lambsquarters.

Curran said that lambsquarters should be the "state weed. It's the most prominent weed on crop farms in the state," he said.

Of 52 farms, 60 percent had triazine-resistant pigweed. When averaged, 29 percent had the triazine-resistant pigweed. A majority of the fields didn't have triazine-resistant pigweed.

The crops day also looked at marketing issues.

John Berry, multicounty marketing extension agent from Lehigh County, said that to determine price of crops, it's critical to look at the stocks-to-use ratio. That ratio looks at what feed is in bins compared to how much is being produced. It indicates how many days of supply of a particular commodity is available for use.

For corn growers, the stocks-to-use ratio is not expected to change much next year.

But one indicator of possible improvement in corn prices is the cost of nitrogen fertilizer because of the energy crunch. Because corn requires rather high rates of nitrogen, its lack of inexpensive availability may drive down the number of acres of corn planted, which could drive the price upward.

But to drastically affect corn price, the U.S. would have to lose 30 percent of corn production. "I don't expect any event to affect us at 30 percent of national production," Berry said.

If less corn is produced because of the lack of inexpensive nitrogen, beans would be grown instead. The increase in soybean production, along with more acreage from Brazilian exports, could affect price.

Berry expects the price of beans to be less next year. "Beans are going to be cheap next year," he said.

But looking at the stocks-to-use ratio will be more critical to get an idea of price. And just the "scare," he said, of a potential Midwest drought can drive corn and other commodity prices up.

A big effect on corn prices could be the expanding China market. As the population's standard of living rises, so does their demand for meat, including those "pork tenderloins and chicken legs," where once the country depended a great deal on simple grains.

Berry expects that in this country, the "industrialization" of commodities has occurred, mostly in the poultry and now in the swine industry. He expects dairy not to be far behind, though he doesn't believe it's possible for cow/calf operations to be industrialized, simply because they rely heavily on grazing components, he said.

Several farmers spoke at the Crops Day on their experience with the 1999 drought and the importance of crop insurance.

Insurance and taking advantage of government aid could benefit growers, especially in times of "extreme adversity," said David Stutzman, Virginville. "The 1999 drought was one of them."

Stutzman emphasized the importance of running the farm as a business with a business plan that makes use of crop insurance.

Robert Seidel, dairy farmer from Lenhartsville, spoke about the frustrations of coping with the drought. He quoted his father, who used to say "it's not how much money you make, it's how much you can keep," Seidel said.

What concerned him is that of the entire net income on farms on the U.S., approaching $28 billion, half of that — $14 billion — is in the form of government payments.

Yet, to survive, it's important to use crop insurance and to take advantage of the government disaster payments. Some will not participate in those payments, said Seidel, because of religious reasons, moral reasons, and some who simply don't trust the government, he said.

But the money to help the farmers in the disaster, especially from the state, did come through, Seidel said.

Sjoerd W. Duiker, assistant professor of soil management at Penn State, said that in Berks County, according to USDA-NRCS records, 85 percent of the tillage is conventional.

"You are all conventional tillers," said Duiker, with only 10 percent using no-till.

Duiker looked at the top issues of no-till management.

No-till does less damage to the soil, promotes improved soil tilth, keeps residue feed for soil-improving earthworms, and helps the soil retain water and the plants to use it. He pointed out the direct yield benefits of no-till over conventional tillage.

No-till is good on well-drained soils, common in Berks County. "Berks County should be suitable for no-till," he said. "It's the best soil conservation practice, with good residue cover."

Soil loss in tonnage per acre is decreased with no-till. However, growers need to manage traffic over the fields and be careful in manure management.

To avoid disease challenges, growers should observe proper crop rotation.

For growers unwilling to adopt no-till, the issues have been proper seed maggot and slug management. Growers need to find ways to improve their management of manure if using no-till.

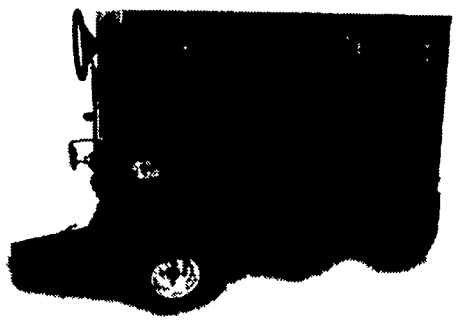
FARMWAY CABLE ALLEY SCRAPERS

- Model 4000 and 6000 Alley Scraper Systems keep up to 1800 feet of barn alleys clean.
- The automatic timer controller allows the alleys to be cleaned when it is needed, or when it is convenient.
- The scraper does the work, saving labor and reducing wear and tear on the skid steer.
- FARMWAY Alley Scrapers are easy to install in new barns or retrofitted to existing.

FARMWAY FEED CART



- Hydrostatic drive unit
- Heavy duty box
- Heavy duty beaters
- Heavy duty D-662 pintle chain conveyor with automatic tightener
- Dependable Honda power
- Unique motor mount provides automatic adjustment to load
- Available in 4 sizes from 33 to 74 bushels
- Highly maneuverable
- Easy to operate
- Easy access for fast maintenance
- Choose from 1 to 2 side or front discharge
- Choose front or rear wheel steer model
- Several models priced under $4,000.00 or as little as $137.00 month.

FARMWAY BEDDING CHOPPER

- Six rows of knives, blades can be rotated easily without removing rotor.
- Two ejection doors.
- Heavy-duty reinforced polyethylene hopper.
- Adjust to control size.
- Dependable Honda power or PTO.
- Pneumatic tires with parking brake
- 13 HP priced at $2,232.00 or $105.00 mo.

An 18th century glassmaker took time to paint a beautiful bird on the glass mug Pencek holds.

Glassware Collector Preserves Fragile Pieces of History

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

LEMONT (Centre Co.) — "It's hard to believe anything like this could survive," Richard Pencek says, lifting a very fragile, lightweight clear-glass drinking vessel that was handblown in the 1700s. "It amazes me that it was so utilitarian. They used it in everyday life and in taverns. That it survived is pretty remarkable."

Pencek holds in his hand a rare piece of Stiegel glass made in one of Pennsylvania's first "glass house manufactories" located near Manheim, Lancaster County, and owned by glassmaker Henry William Stiegel.

The rare glass is part of Pencek's collection of lipped bowls, air-twist cordials, paneled flips, bow-and-garland wine glasses, twisted champagne glasses, stoppered decanters, and fluted rinsers, many beautifully engraved or intricately painted. Almost all, whether made in Germany or America, were used in Pennsylvania.

Pencek teaches Early Pennsylvania Decorative Arts and Furniture at Penn State and applies his knowledge and expertise towards collecting antiques from early American life. At his home in Lemont, he reaches for a glass mug that has painted on it a colorful peacock.

"I'm fascinated with the historical aspect. It's remarkable that they took all that time on a drinking vessel. I'm fascinated also because it's 18th century, and we were doing some amazing things at that time, like getting ready for war. It took a lot of luck for this to have survived. The drinking glass was made so light. It could have been broken when washing it."

Like all antiques, antique glassware gives us a glimpse of what life might have been like two centuries ago. The 1760 glass vessel called a flip held an alcoholic drink made from eggs and sugar.

"Before the Revolution, we averaged 3.5 gallons per person per year. After the Revolution, we were 4.0 per person. Either life was hard or the food bad," Pencek speculates. Maybe both. Nevertheless, glassmakers created works of art by carefully painting on them foliage, animals, and/or human figures or engraving loop and lattice patterns, tulips, or baskets.

"A lot of the painted glassware came from Germany. As for collectibility, foliage is "C" level, animals "B" level, and figures "A" level. The pieces with animals and human figures painted on them are more rare. They're the hardest to come by."

Pencek chooses his antiques according to preference and intrigue.

"For me, there's aesthetic and historical value. How did it fit into history, the lifestyles, for example, of the Quakers or Pennsylvania Germans?"

To find answers, Pencek reads and challenges his students in class. He's grown to appreciate the network of friends who share his passion for preserving these very fragile pieces of history, making the search for answers as fascinating as the antiques themselves.

A syllabub glass, made during the 1760s, usually held a lemon-flavored dessert or drink of the same name. The twist to the right of the top of this glass indicates that its creator was a right-handed glass blower.

The miniature glass pitcher and bowl shown here arouse curiosity when their origin and purpose can't be traced. Just about everything created during the 18th century served a purpose.

Air-twist cordials, made in 1700, held anything to enlighten one's spirit, such as wine or brandy. The left one features a tulip top.

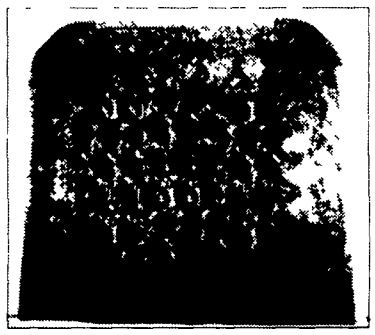
Many Techniques Used In Early Coverlets

The ongoing interest in quilts and quilt-making has resulted in many early and unusual examples coming to market, some dating to the late 18th century. A recent Skinner auction included a pieced and quilted linsey woolsey coverlet, c.1780.

Several techniques were used including crewel work. It wasn't identified as American or English. A paper tag had only the maker's name, "Annie Brown, c.1780."

Quite colorful and measuring 84 ½" x 92", even with some damage it was estimated at $1,200-1,500.

Apparently the buyer who paid a whopping $14,950 knew something the auction house didn't. Or, perhaps it was identified as of American origin. Other coverlets and textiles sold in the low hundreds. These and other items auctioned were part of a 70-year collection belonging to Paul and Margaret Weld of Connecticut.



Linsey-woolsey coverlet c.1780, sold at Skinner Auctions for $14,950.

Clues: While there are few bargains in early coverlets these days, you never know when you'll make a discovery...perhaps in your own attic. Begin by knowing history, materials used and techniques.

Let's analyze the coverlet that sold for $14,950. Linsey-Woolsey is a fabric made using two threads; one wool, the other linen. The result was a coarse fabric with the top a plain dyed color, such as raspberry, pink or light blue. The backs were either left natural or dyed gold or yellow. The final result was layered with carded wool, then finished off with detailed quilted motifs, such as feathers, hearts and flowers. Crewel work examples can be recognized by stylized floral designs. Others included cornucopia, crossed diagonal designs. Unlike the more familiar quilt forms, linsey-woolsey coverlets are heavy and large.

The weaving of wool and linen was done in both English and American Colonial homes before the Revolutionary War. After that cotton became the material of choice. So, using the above clues, the linsey-woolsey coverlet that sold at auction had all of the proper attributes. Chances that it is an American textile rarity are good since the collectors were knowledgeable and devoted years to the research of their collections.

Woven coverlets of another type were made on looms in designs after the Colonial housewife had spun the wool. How attractive they were depended on the talent of their maker. Considered choice these days are those with stylized motifs, signed, and dated. These designs ranged from animals to houses, flowering trees, and even farm scenes.

The colors were developed from dyes made by the housewife from various plants in her garden. An exception was indigo. It was desirable since the dark blue color didn't fade. Many linsey-woolsey coverlets of that early time used indigo.

Patterns for weaving were on paper that was handed down from family to family. Over the years, new touches were added until the original pattern all but disappeared.

By the early 19th century, much of the weaving was done by a traveling journeyman. The next development came when women ordered fabrics from professional weavers. They furnished them with their own yarn.

Most common were the geometric patterns done in a variety of colors. These block coverlets were made from 1820 to 1840 primarily by German or Scottish weavers.

There are several categories of hand-woven coverlets. They are overshot; summer and winter weave; block or double weave and jacquard. The summer or winter coverlets were reversible. The weaver often included his name and a date in one corner. The Jacquard, with its many motifs from eagles to peacocks, with maker's name and date, are considered the finest examples of the craft. They can sell at auction for more than $5,000.

BUCHART AND MUSSELMAN SALE

In an auction filled with valuable made-in-Lancaster-County items, one piece stood out: a late 18th-century Dutch cupboard which sold for $100,000 on Saturday at Horst Auctioneers in Ephrata. The painted Chippendale step-back cupboard was "probably the finest Dutch cupboard we've ever handled," said cataloger Clarence E. Spohn.

The cupboard was sold to antique dealer Phillip Bradley, Chester County. The previous owner, Mary S. Buchart of York, acquired the piece around 1950 from dealer Forest McMullen, who operated an Ephrata antiques show in the 1960s and '70s, Spohn said.

Also sold were Lehnware items made by Joseph Long Lehn of Elizabeth Township in the 19th century, including a water bucket for $22,000. The Lehnware was from the collection of Sara B. Musselman of Murrell, near Ephrata.

Another highlight of the sale was Walter Steely's mid-20th century chairs. Steely was a Lititz resident.

In all, more than 500 lots of antique furniture, china, glass, silver, Lehnware, pottery and primitives were sold. There were 400 registered bidders at the sale, which also included items from the collection of Robert G. Grunder, Trumansburg, N.Y.

In addition to the water bucket, the following Lehnware items were sold: two cup and saucer sets, $2,600 each; a covered saffron cup, $2,000; two sugar buckets, $10,000 and $2,100; an individual salt, $2,200; a sewing box, $2,900; and three master salts, $2,400, $2,800 and $4,700; and two miniature blanket chests, $8,000 and $2,500.

The Steely items sold included a set of four signed side chairs, $2,400; a writing chair, $2,200; a pair of sack-back arm chairs, $1,650; a set of six Windsor side chairs, $3,300; a bamboo-style arm chair, $900; and a comb-back arm chair, $1,550.

Other items sold included a Chippendale maple slant-front desk, $2,900; a softwood stretcher-base farm table, $3,500; an oak joined bench, $2,800; a Sheraton mahogany dressing table, $2,300; a softwood stretcher-base sawbuck table, $1,000; a wrought iron strongbox, $1,250; a ladder-back side chair, $1,450; a Federal era slant front desk, $4,400; a walnut candlestand, $625; a softwood bucket bench, $1,550; a two-drawer mahogany lampstand, $1,950; and a Queen Anne side chair, $950.

Also sold were a Victorian four-piece parlor set, $1,150; a Sheraton tiger maple one-drawer stand, $800; a two-piece red painted corner cupboard, $9,000; a set of six Windsor-style side chairs, $1,350; a walnut secretary desk, $1,250; a modern tallcase clock, $1,300; an antique tallcase clock, $1,400; a shelf clock, $1,000; and an eight-day banjo clock, $1,300.

Also sold were an electric barber's sign, $1,100; a folk art 1818 memorial picture, $1,050; and a folk art watercolor painting of a girl, $1,550; a room-sized hooked rug, $1,750; a signed John Bell flower pot, $575; a John Bell stoneware decorated crock, $1,250; a John Bell Redware tub, $1,100; a sapphire and pearl necklace, $900; a 1735 wine bottle, $1,800; a Mocha Seaweed pattern mug, $825; and a Rose Medallion coffee pot, $650.

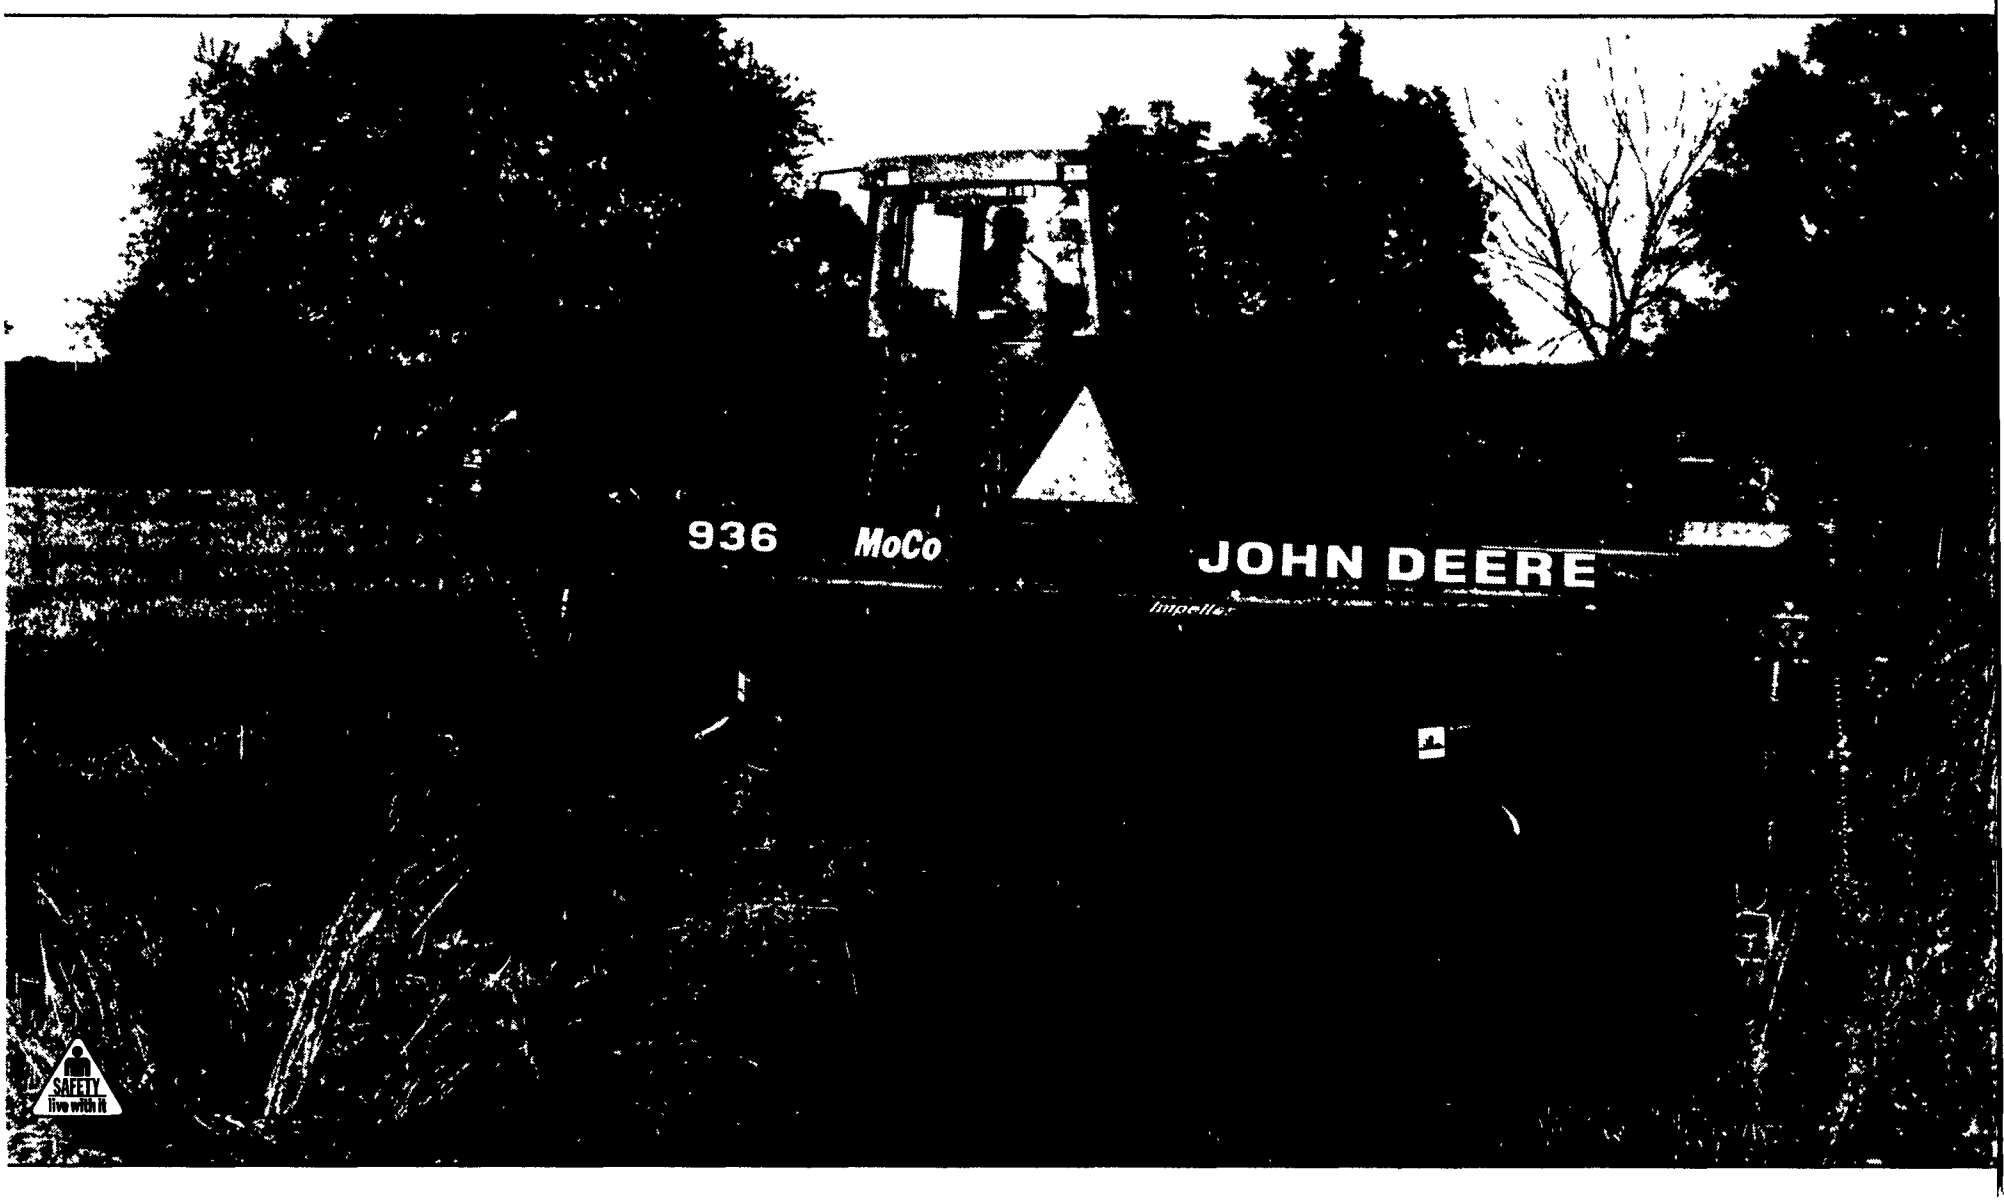
Take a Shortcut for Faster Drydown



Introducing The New John Deere 6 Series MoCo's

Cut with a new John Deere 6 Series Mower Conditioner and see how fast your hay goes from field to feed. Our new MoCo's are packed with new features to help you fly through tough conditions and give you faster drydown.

To start, these new MoCo's offer thinner, flat-angle cutterbars that let you cut low and fast. Patented John Deere shearhub protection gives you worry-free high-speed cutting. And remember, only John Deere gives you conditioning freedom of choice with urethane or steel rolls or impeller conditioning for unmatched conditioning performance. And we've made it easy to adjust roll spacing and roll pressure, so you can quickly change settings and get back to cutting.

The new 6 Series MoCo's are available in five models, with cutting widths from 68 to 106 inches. So stop by your John Deere dealer's store and take a shortcut for faster drydown.

Frost Seeding Improves Pastures In Michigan

Richard Leep
Crop And Soil Sciences
MSU Extension

Frost seeding can be used to establish legumes or certain grasses into existing pastures to improve forage palatability and yield.

Frost seeding is not new in Michigan. Many cash crop producers in the Saginaw Valley and Thumb area of Michigan have used the technique for seeding legumes into winter wheat in the early spring.

The resultant legume seeding is then plowed down for green manure for the next cash crop in the rotation. The freezing and thawing of the soil, combined with early spring rains, help the germination of the broadcast legume seeds.

The key to success with this method is to seed at the proper time and follow up with rotational grazing or mowing to reduce grass competition.

It is also possible to seed certain grass species with this method. Recent research in Wisconsin has shown good success with frost seeding annual ryegrass into row cropland, which is being converted into pastures. Their research showed that eight pounds per acre annual ryegrass was ideal for seeding the species.

Both research and producer experience in Michigan have shown red clover and birdsfoot trefoil to be in the best choices for frost seeding legumes. Seedlings of both species can tolerate the lower temperatures in the early spring better than alfalfa seedlings.

Red clover has good seedling vigor and is one of the easiest legumes to establish. It is also tolerant to slightly acidic and somewhat poorly drained soil. However, red clover will only last two years since it is a short-lived perennial.

Birdsfoot trefoil is slow to establish but is one of the most long-lived pasture legumes grown in Michigan. It can adapt to a wide range of soil conditions, such as low soil pH and poor soil drainage. Additionally, it does not cause bloat in feeding animals. Red clover and birdsfoot trefoil are often seeded together, however, red clover is much more vigorous and can crowd out the birdsfoot trefoil seedlings during establishment. Therefore, one should choose one or the other rather than mix the two. Red clover should be seeded at 8-12 pounds per acre, and birdsfoot trefoil should be seeded at 6-8 pounds per acre.

Many Michigan pastures have been over grazed this past year and are excellent candidates for frost seeding as the grass is somewhat weakened in these pastures as well as grazed closely. Frost seeding into these pastures offers potential for improvement.

Steps To Successful Frost Seeding

There are five steps to take for successful frost seedings:

• Step 1 — Site selection. Select closely grazed grass pastures which contain finer textured soils such as clay, silt, or sandy loams. These soils tend to create more action with the freeze thaw cycles of the spring while providing more moisture for the newly emerged seedlings.

• Step 2 — Soil fertility. Soil pH should be 5.5 or above. Both red clover and birdsfoot trefoil tolerate acid soils, however, they will grow better at a soil pH above 6.0. Soil test to correct for both phosphorus and potassium. Apply fertilizer by broadcasting after new seedling are established. The phosphorus will help stimulate root growth, and the potassium will increase forage growth and promote winter hardiness.

• Step 3 — Seeding time. Broadcast in the early spring when the ground is still frozen. Late February and March are good times in Southern Michigan while March and early April are good in northern Michigan. The important thing to remember about seeding time is that one is depending upon the freezing and thawing action to help put the seed into contact with the soil for germination. The more freeze thaw cycles, the better chance of seed germination.

• Step 4 — Grazing management for establishment. Graze early and close in the spring to keep grass competition to a minimum. Grass suppression is necessary to allow seedling to grow and compete. Rotationally grazed pastures work best for successful frost seeding as this practice keeps grass in a vegetative stage throughout the entire grazing season.

• Step 5 — Management after establishment. After establishment, check soil test levels to determine if additional applications of phosphorous and potassium are needed. Reseed at least every other year with red clover. If stands are still thin after the frost seeding year, consider reseeding the following year with additional seed. Birdsfoot trefoil should become more dominant during the second year after frost seeding as this crop is less competitive than red clover. Leaving red clover or birdsfoot trefoil reseed every few years will enhance natural reseeding.

Frost seeding offers producers an inexpensive method of improving pastures. However, frost seeding is more risky than other methods as a dry spring will reduce the establishment potential of frost seeding. The relative low cost of this method is probably the greatest incentive for producers to utilize frost seeding. With good animal management and rotational grazing, the system has worked quite well on many Michigan farms.

Farm Bureau Challenges EPA Statements On Water Quality, Livestock

PARK RIDGE, Ill. — Information distributed by the Environmental Protection Agency to promote new regulations related to livestock farms and water quality contains statements that are "incorrect and unsupported by the facts," according to the nation's largest farm organization.

In a letter this week to EPA Administrator Carol Browner, the American Farm Bureau Federation (AFBF) asked the agency to correct the stated inaccuracies and "make clear the actual facts" related to concentrated animal feeding operations and water quality.

According to the letter, AFBF has "repeatedly pointed out to EPA that agriculture, particularly livestock agriculture, does not contribute 60 percent of all river pollution as EPA's officials have repeatedly misstated in recent years."

Farm Bureau's letter pointed out that states have assessed only 23 percent of the nation's stream miles. And, based on that 23 percent, which represents the most polluted areas of the U.S., EPA assumes that agriculture contributes to 60 percent of total impaired stream miles.

"This clearly does not indicate that 60 percent of all pollution, as implied by EPA's statements, comes from livestock agriculture," AFBF's letter stated.

Recent published statements from key EPA officials, however, falsely characterize that "wastes from large factory farms are among the greatest threats to our nation's waters and drinking water supplies." Farm Bureau is requesting EPA to supply the scientifically produced numbers to support its statement.

"The National Water Quality Inventory reports done in the 1990s do not support that statement," according to AFBF's letter. "In fact, the 1998 report indicates that animal feeding operations are major contributors to only 0.3 percent of the 842,426 stream miles that were assessed." And, of all waters in the U.S., (animal feeding operations) are major pollution contributors to only 0.1 percent of the 3.6 million total miles of streams and rivers.

"While EPA prominently mentions that there are 376,000 livestock operations that confine animals, nowhere in EPA's fact sheet is there any mention of the fact that only 2,736 miles of streams have major impairments due to animal feeding operations," AFBF's letter stated. "Neither does it mention for comparison purposes that municipal point sources still cause major impairment of 6,667 miles of rivers and streams. These numbers for animal feeding operations do not justify blatantly misleading statements."

According to AFBF, America's farmers and ranchers have made great strides to do an even better job to protect the quality of the nation's streams. Farmers who raise livestock and poultry plan on voluntarily spending millions of dollars on conservation and water quality improvements. The agency's public statements aside, EPA's own numbers show that agriculture is not the leading cause of pollution in the U.S.

"Livestock operations, in particular, are a minor portion of the total pollution claimed to be contributed by all of agriculture," AFBF's letter stated. "The EPA statement leads one to believe that livestock operations, especially large ones, are the major cause of water pollution in the U.S., but EPA's numbers actually show a quite different reality. We ask again that (EPA) correct these inaccuracies and misleading statements."

Learn How To Store Pesticides Over The Winter

Emelie Swackhamer
Horticulture Agent
Lehigh/Northampton Counties

Proper winter storage of unused pesticides may save you more money than you think. Obviously, you can eliminate the cost of having to replace a pesticide ruined by improper storage.

Not so obvious are the financial rewards realized by having a properly-stored pesticide perform at 100 percent of its potential next year, instead of at a reduced efficacy.

The last thing any grower needs is herbicide failure or less protection from pests or disease than they were counting on. Additionally, some improperly stored pesticides may crystallize and could clog up application equipment when you go to use them next year. Avoiding this will save time and money too.

Every pesticide label has a section on "Storage and Disposal." It is usually printed at the end of the label's text and this is where you can find out about any specific storage requirements.

Some pesticides will break down in high heat, others will break down if they freeze. Read the labels on the products you have left over this year and make sure you are following the manufacturer's recommendations for storage.

It is always best to plan your pesticide purchases so you have only enough to get you through the season. If you don't have extra left over, you won't have to store it. In practice, however, even the best planners sometimes have pesticides left over. The 2000 Penn State Commercial Vegetable Production Recommendation guide offers these tips to get your pesticides through the winter safely:

- Keep them at temperatures above freezing, under dry conditions, and out of direct sunlight.
- Keep pesticides in their original containers, with complete labels, and follow specific storage recommendations on the label.
- Store herbicides separately from other pesticides to avoid contamination.
- Write the purchase or delivery date of the product on the label with a permanent marker. Products may lose their effectiveness over several years, and you need to keep track of how old it is.
- Ventilation is important for storage of most pesticides.

Improperly stored pesticides will deteriorate. Some of the general signs of deterioration are excessive lumping or caking, not suspending in water (wettable powders and soluble powders), separation of components (emulsifiable concentrates), or failure to appear milky when mixed with water (emulsifiable concentrates and oils). If you suspect a pesticide has deteriorated in storage and you are having doubts about using it, check with the manufacturer.

The 2000 Penn State guide also has a list of 45 commonly used pesticides and their storage requirements on page 6. Refer to this list now, before the onset of winter, to make sure your pesticides are safely stored. If you don't have the guide, call your local extension office.

Pennsylvania December Milk Production Down 1.6 Percent

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Milk production in Pennsylvania during December 2000 totaled 901 million pounds, down 1.6 percent from last December's production, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service (PASS).

The number of milk cows in the state during the month averaged 613,000 head, down 3,000 from November and 6,000 head less than December 1999.

Production per cow averaged 1,470 pounds in December, 45 pounds more than November but 10 pounds less than in December 1999.

Milk production in the 20 states surveyed during December 2000 totaled 11.9 billion pounds, virtually unchanged from production in these same states in December 1999. November revised production, at 11.4 billion pounds, was up 1.1 percent from November 1999.

The number of milk cows on farms in the 20 major states was 7.84 million head, 81,000 head more than December 1999, but 4,000 head less than November 2000.

Production per cow in the 20 major states averaged 1,522 pounds for December, 16 pounds below December 1999.

During the October-December period, the 20 major states produced 86.2 percent of the nation's milk. If producers in the remaining 30 states not surveyed monthly followed the trend shown by the 20 reporting states, U.S. milk production would be 13.85 billion pounds for December.

Farm Entry Strategies That Work Feb. 17

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — With less than two percent of Americans calling themselves farmers and many of those earning more than half of their income off the farm, beginners ask, "How can I get into farming in the current farm economy? What does it take."

Pennsylvania Farm Link's Beginning Farmer workshop Feb. 17 will emphasize that a successful farm start-up is not dependent on age, size, type of farm operation, or previous career selection. Instead, success relies more on negotiating a good fit between your personal and financial resources, your farm and family goals, and the way you decide to enter farming.

Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Samuel E. Hayes Jr. will welcome beginners with encouraging remarks on a career in agriculture. FFA students, other students, and interested adults will learn how Pennsylvania is encouraging new farm entry.

Keynote speaker Steve Stevenson from the University of Wisconsin will present the results of his research with more than 325 beginning farmers who started farming between 1993 and 1995. He will provide insight for new farmers on what other beginning farmers used to be successful. Career entry pathways include taking over your family farm, taking over another family farm, starting from scratch, and doing an apprenticeship in production agriculture.

The workshop will also include real-world discussions with Pennsylvania's innovative beginning farmers from a variety of backgrounds and enterprises. Hear from those taking the reins from other family members, taking over a nonfamily operation, or starting on their own from scratch. Types of farms include dairy, beef, fruit and vegetables, specialty crops, cooperative members, direct marketers, and wholesalers.

Though young, many of these farmers are recognized as industry leaders, including this year's winners of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau Young Farmer and Rancher Achievement Award. In addition to telling you how they got started in farming, these beginners will tell you how they are juggling farm family pressures, benchmarks they have established for success, how to start a community — supported agriculture operation, and how apprentice programs help you get a foothold in the industry.

Beyond inspiration, participants will receive practical knowledge and advice on how to select an enterprise that's right for you, how to convince your banker you have what it takes, and how to scout out the market and developing a business plan.

The workshop will be Saturday, Feb. 17 at the Holiday Inn in Grantville, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Cost of the workshop is $30 for an individual, $50 for a couple, and $20 for a student.

Registration is required by Feb. 12 and includes lunch. Contact Pennsylvania Farm Link at (717) 664-7077 or e-mail at pafarmline@redrose.net for more information and a brochure.

Market Vendors Busy Year-Round

Ginger S. Myers
Agricultural Marketing Specialist
Howard County Economic Development Authority

The Howard County Farmers' Market closes for business Thanksgiving week and doesn't re-open until early May.

For the 2001 season, the market will open in a new location at the parking lot of the Wilde Lake Interfaith Center.

What do the market vendors do during the winter months? Do they play checkers and set by the cook stove?

Definitely not. The abundance and quality of the produce we enjoy during the marketing season is directly proportional to the work and planning the market vendors invest while farming the backside of the calendar.

For some of the Howard County Farmers' Market vendors, the market's close means one less market to attend in their weekly market schedule. These vendors continue selling their produce or processed at year-round farmers' markets or at retail outlets at their farms. For other vendors, the arrival of the holiday season means its time to sharpen their tree saws and spruce-up their on-farm holiday shops. These farmers operate choose-and-cut Christmas tree farms in addition to growing fruits and vegetables.

Early winter is the time when vegetable growers glean their fields and clear them of crop residue. Soil samples from various fields must be taken before the ground freezes. These samples are sent to a laboratory and tested. Soil test results are used to determine how much fertilizer and lime to apply to the soil for the next crop to be grown there.

Like other businesses, farmers spend time at the end of the year doing their tax planning and on-site inventories. For those with employees, W-2 and W-3 forms must be completed and mailed. Producers employing independent contractors must complete and mail out 1099 forms to those individuals by the end of February.

Farmers' market vendors spend countless hours in the off-season evaluating the previous season's sales. They pore over seed catalogs, start flats of seedlings, and check for the most competitive prices on production inputs such as fertilizers and integrated pest management practices. The Howard County Farmers' Market vendors meet as a group to determine the dates for the next market season, define a list of items to be sold, plot a market promotion program, solicit new vendors, and establish guidelines for the next selling season.

Vendors also attend workshops and seminars in the off-season to garner information on production techniques, direct marketing ideas, consumer preferences, export markets, value-added processing, display and sales techniques, and the future of sustainable agriculture in the area.

Look for the Howard County Farmers' Market opening in early May at the Wilde Lake Interfaith Center, Tuesday and Thursday, 2:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.

PennAg Industries Insurance Trust Reports Significant Growth

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The PennAg Industries Trust was created in 1953 to provide life and medical insurance for the employees of PennAg Industries Association members. That year the Trust marketed insurance products with annualized premium of about $100,000.

Forty-eight years later, on Jan. 1, 2001, the PennAg Industries Insurance Trust provides life, medical, vision, dental, short term disability and long term disability coverage to 1,400 employees and their dependents. These employees are employed by 200 PennAg member firms that contribute annualized premium exceeding $4,000,000.

During the period from Feb. 1, 1999 through Jan. 31, 2001, the Trust has enrolled 700 employees from 83 PennAg member firms. During this period, annual premium has increased from $1,600,000 to $4,000,000 representing growth of 150 percent.

Product performance yielding exceptionally low rates has attracted many members to this very valuable membership service. In addition to low rates, the Trust has also provided premium holidays (free months of coverage) in October 1999 and September 2000 with a third holiday announced for September 2001.

To qualify for this service, PennAg members must be engaged in business within specified Standard Industrial Classification Codes. For more information, contact the PennAg Industries Insurance Trust at (717) 651-5920.

THE SHED IS FULL!
SOMETHING HAS TO GO!

No Interest Until 2003! Or 5.9% Financing For 5 Years!

To help move out some of our used combines, we are offering no interest financing on a John Deere contract until 2003! Or you can use 5 90 variable rate financing. This is Jones Implement Co and Queen Anne Tractor Co program only, and it is good only thru February 28, 2001. This is a good time to shop for a combine, while selection is the best and the weather is cool.

As you can see, we deal mainly in 9600s. Most of these are 4WD, and completely reconditioned. Delivery is available anywhere We have 920, 922, 925 and 930 platforms, and 643, 843 and 893 cornheads Please call for more details. All hours listed below are engine hours

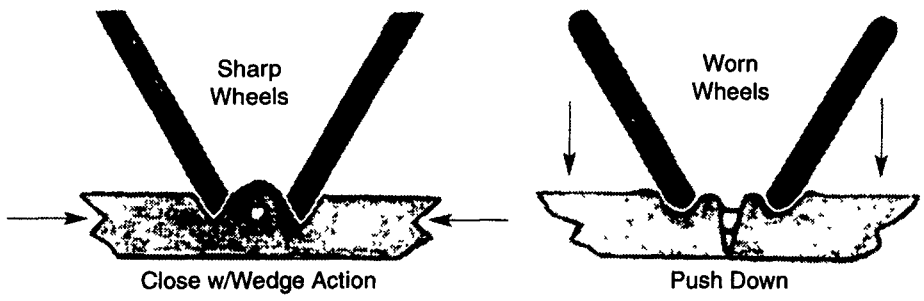
Attention:

Kinze/John Deere Planter & No-Till Drill Owners

Did you know that those old cast iron closing wheels can be reconditioned to "like-new" performance for a fraction of replacement cost?

Now is the time to get ready for tough planting conditions like sod and dry, hard soil. We can help your older planter or drill to close those seed trenches properly. (See illustration)



After all, if a field is worth planting, why not do it right?

Benefits include:

- ✔ Less closing pressure
- ✔ More uniform germination
- ✔ Improved stand population
- ✔ Increased yields

GEHL

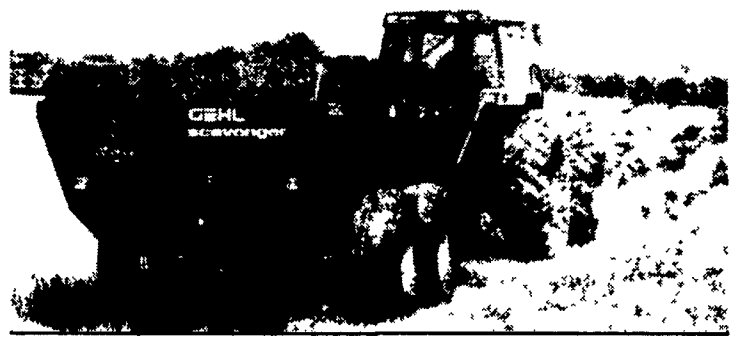
PROVEN PERFORMER



Scavenger® Spreader

Gehl's Scavenger® Spreader delivers the performance you need year after year, with increased durability and outstanding application control. All thanks to the following features.

- Heavy-duty round core auger with segmented paddles to blend manure. Powered both up and down to ram through heavy loads and break up bridging.
- Special "V" tank design to handle solid, heavy bedded, semi-solid, self-leveling and liquid manure.
- Adjustable auger and expeller speeds spread more types of manure.
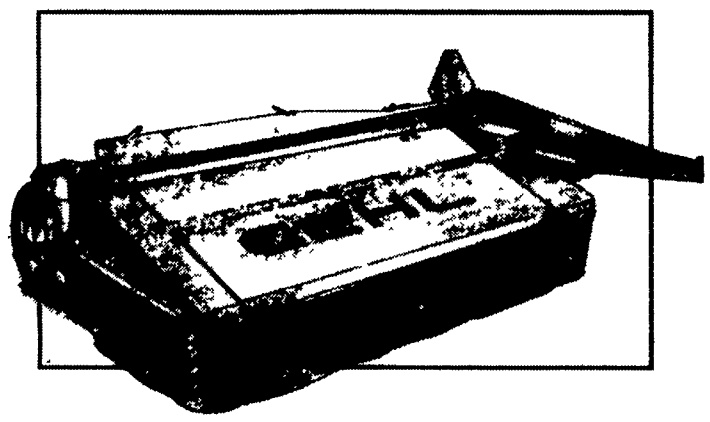
- Variflow™ discharge featuring square-tooth expeller paddles for smooth, even spreading at the rate you choose.
- Improved drive system with heavier final drive chains and enhanced idler system.

2345/2365 DISC CONDITIONERS



Gehl has two all-new disc mower conditioners to cut your crop down to size, fast and easy, the DC2345 has 7 discs and a 9'2" cutting width; the DC2365 has 8 discs and a 10'3" cutting width. A Gehl disc mower conditioner delivers exceptional cutting and conditioning, even in your most difficult crops and conditions.

- Designed with the operator in mind
- Easy access all around
- An equal angle PTO
- Three-point flotation support

*Technical & Practical Pointers Towards Maximum Planter Proficiency

10:00 AM - Planter Clinic • 12:00 Noon - Light Lunch

1:00 PM - A panel of farmers offers opinion on corn & soybean production

A. What changes have I made in my cropping practices & how has it affected by yields?
B. What about 15" & 20" row corn?
C. What about variable population rates?
D. What attachments/accessories are helping me to optimize stands?

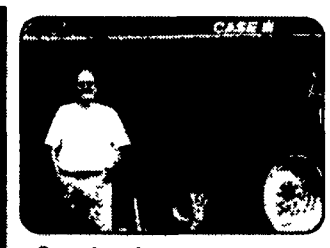
The DMI ecolo-til 2500 ADVANTAGE

- Controls Compaction
- Increases Water Absorption and Air Exchange
- Provides Warmer Soil in Spring for Earlier Planting
- Achieves More Uniform Crop Germination
- Greater Yield and Profit Potential

Why is the DMI ecolo-til 2500 with No-Till shanks from Hoober becoming the ideal tillage tool for achieving greater yield and profit potential? Because the DMI ecolo-til 2500 breaks through the hardpan unlike conventional tillage tools. The result? The DMI ecolo-til 2500 with patented tiger-points provides excellent fracture of compaction to increase water absorption and air exchange for better nutrient flow up and down the soil profile and root system. This process provides warmer soil in the spring for earlier planting plus it delivers more uniform crop germination. And using the DMI ecolo-til 2500 with No-Till shanks results in even less soil disturbance than other deep tillage shanks.

We have DMI ecolo-til 2500 units in stock from 3-8 shanks. Call a Hoober salesman today for all your DMI needs.

Voices From the Field



One Look Was All It Took

"DMI made a big difference in my neighbor's corn the year before I could get on top of the grain bins and look across at his field and really see a difference, his corn was already jumping out when the ground was cold and wet. That sold me on it."

Bruce Leverton
Woodbury Farms Enterprises, Queenstown, MD

Digging Deep for Higher Profits

"In one of our low-lying fields, the water was staying on top and not getting through the hardpan and into the shale. We had about an 18" barrier to get through, so we ran the DMI Ecolo-Til 2500 subsoiler and shattered that barrier That land is really productive now, where it wasn't before."

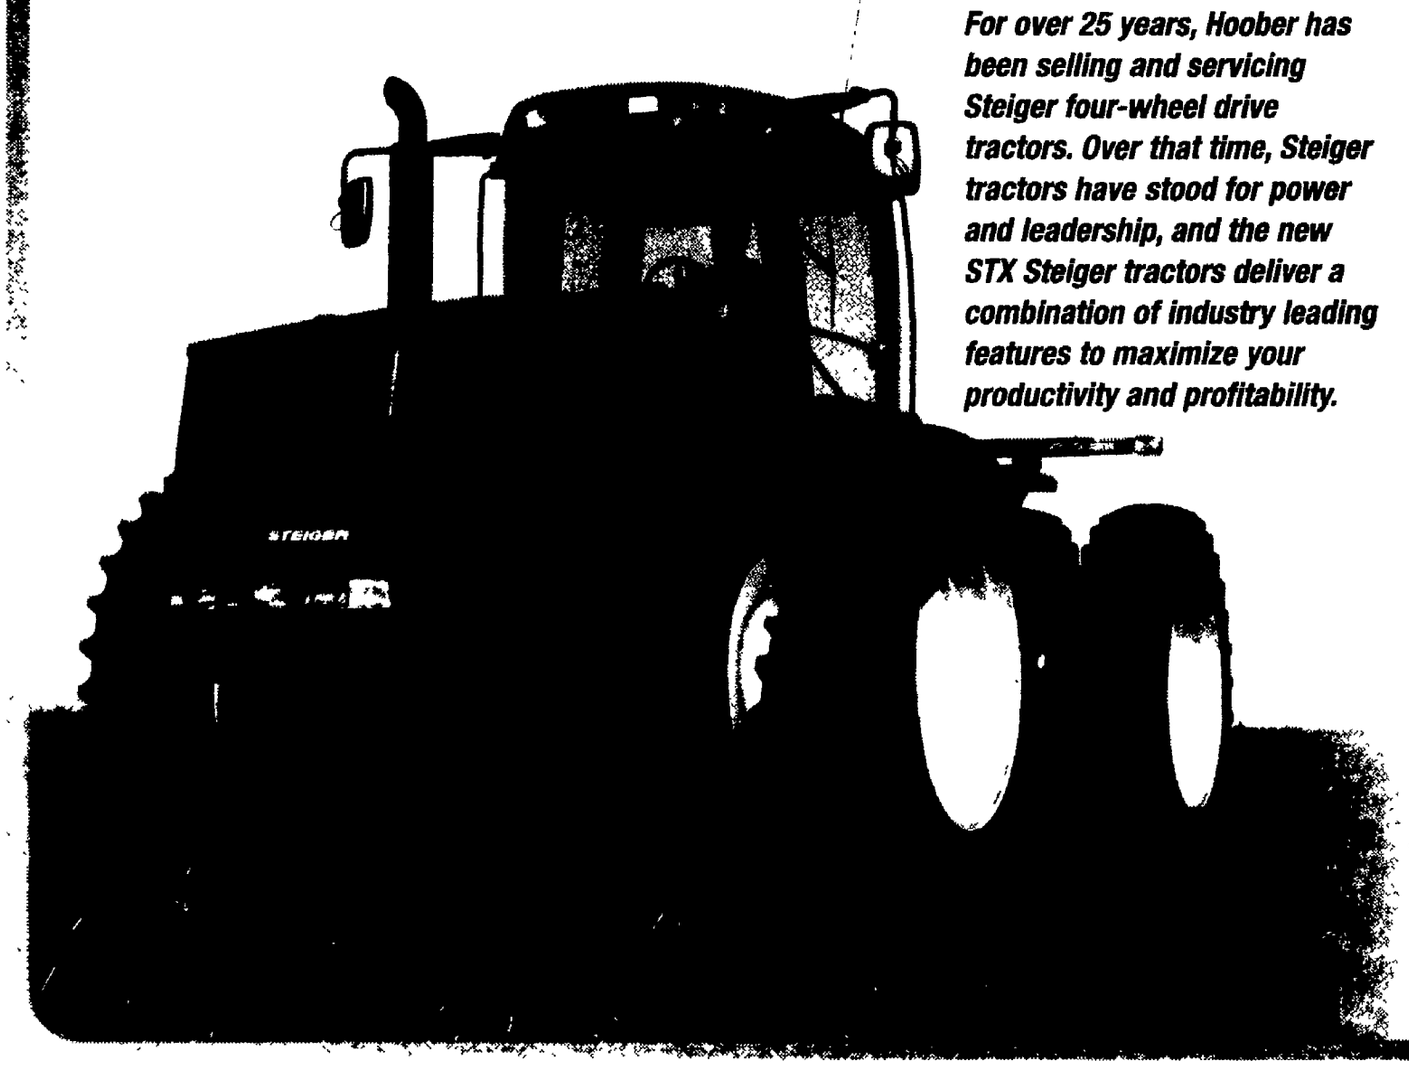
Hoober's Spring Bargain

We're Big On the Power But Not On the Price

You can afford to move up to the productivity and profitability of a Steiger 4WD tractor



For over 25 years, Hoober has been selling and servicing Steiger four-wheel drive tractors. Over that time, Steiger tractors have stood for power and leadership, and the new STX Steiger tractors deliver a combination of industry leading features to maximize your productivity and profitability.

The Frame
The new STX Steigers are built bigger and stronger for superior durability, perfectly matched to the higher horsepower and demanding duties of larger-acre operations.

The Engine
The new STX series Steigers were designed for maximum engine efficiency and fuel economy. With the highest torque rise (43%) and largest power growth, the new STX Steigers put more power to the ground when you need it most.

The Transmission
The new STX Steigers feature the industry's first 16 speed full powershift in a 4WD. The powershift features nine gears between 3 and 8 miles per hour, shuttle-shift forward-reverse, and transport speeds up to 23 mph on the road.

The Axles
The new STX Steigers feature a rugged axle designed for more seasons of reliable performance. The newly designed axles help transfer the power from the engine, through the transmission and down to the ground.

The Cab
The impressive Surveyor cab offers control, comfort and convenience. Both Luxury and Deluxe cabs have automatic temperature control, sunshades (front and rear), tilt steering wheel, and the most glass area in the industry - 67.8 sq. ft.

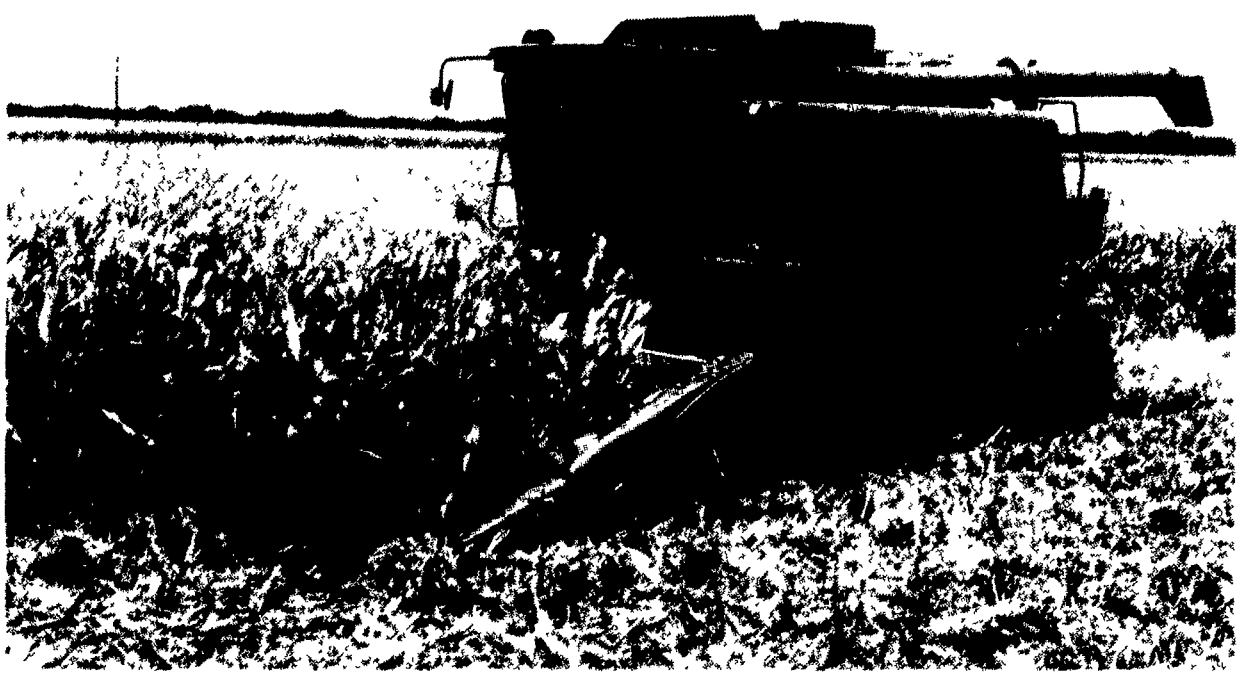
Why Is This Rotary Combine Simply the Best?



New Case IH 2200 Series Cornheads

The all-new Case IH 2200 Series corn heads are designed to provide exceptional value in crop harvesting Optional hydraulic adjustable stripper plates allow on-the-go adjustments in varying crop conditions Low profile poly-hoods and dividers effectively "hug" the ground, moving more ears into the header to increase efficiency and productivity which means more profit for you Notice: These heads are in short supply! Don't wait until the last minute, plan ahead and buy now.

At Hoober, Inc. we believe it's simple to see why the new 2001 Model Case-IH Rotary Axial-Flow Combine is better than all other rotary combines. Because it's simple. A Case-IH Rotary Axial-Flow Combine has only ONE moving part in it's entire threshing process...a single large-diameter rotor. Open up the side shield on any other rotary combine and compare it to the drive mechanism, and you will see that the Case-IH rotary combine has fewer moving parts, which means fewer problems.

And when it comes to servicing the most productive combine in farming, no dealer understands the Case-IH Rotary Axial-Flow Combine better than Hoober. Hoober introduced Case-IH Rotary Axial-Flow Combines to the East in 1977, and our combine service specialists have been working with Axial-Flow technology ever since.

To put more quality grain in the tank than with any other harvesting system, go with the rotary combine and dealer that a simply the best. The 2001 Model Case-IH Rotary Axial-Flow Combine and Hoober, Inc.

Hoober & Great Plains... Precision Seeding

New for 2001

Available on 15' and 30' Models

Great Plains Precision Seeding System™

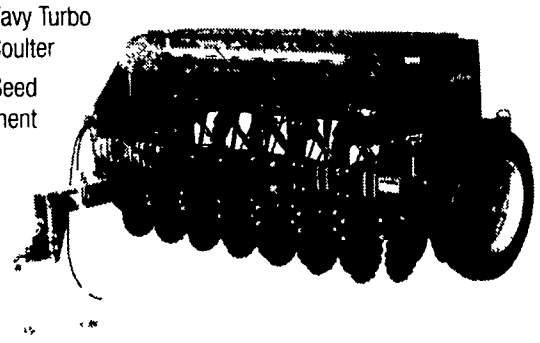
The revolutionary Precision Seeding System from Great Plains gives you the ability to singulate seed in the furrow while dramatically increasing seedbox capacity over traditional hopper-style planters Great Plains Precision Seeding Systems are available on the 15' and 30' models and each frame is designed specifically for its width

For almost 20 years Great Plains drills backed by Hoober's quality service and parts support have been the perfect combination for maximum productivity.

Great Plains 1005 No-Till Drill

- 7 or 7 1/2" Spacing
- 3 x 13 Center Rib Press Wheels
- Weight Bar Package
- 5/8" Wavy Turbo NoTill Coulter
- Small Seed Attachment

We Have 10' Units in Stock and Ready for Immediate Delivery.



Turbo Coulters

Great Plains Exclusive "Turbo" Coulters are a must in no-till conditions They cut through the heaviest residue, clearing a path for the opener. The turbo coulter also puts "Tilth" into cold compacted soil helping to warm it and giving roots plenty of room to grow.

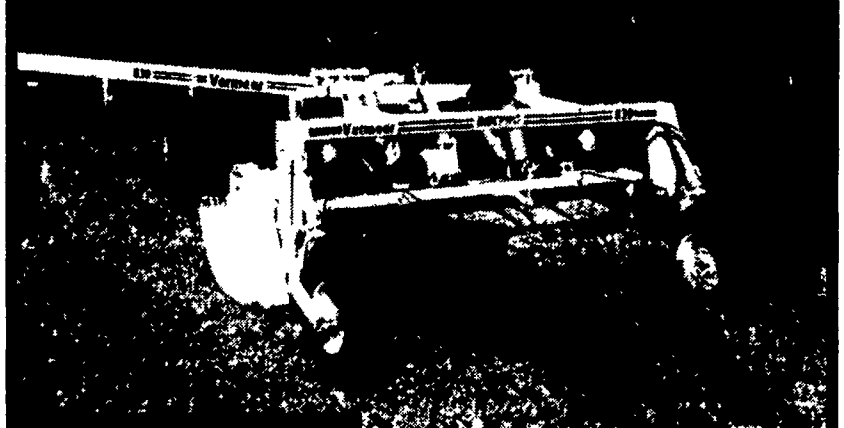
Vermeer 830/1030 DiscPro™ Mower Conditioners



We didn't just design another center-pivot mower conditioner.

We Improved It!

Vermeer® 830/1030 DiscPro: These are the mowers that not only cut hay, but also handle the fire ant hills... and many of the stray, unexpected obstacles that tend to jam up cutterbars and tear up the works in other machines.

New! DynaGard™ Protection System.
New! Unique Lift Spring Suspension .
New! Low-Profile Cutterbar Design.
New! Modular Conditioning System.
New! Tri-Shaft Drive-Line.

FREE COMBINE INSPECTION!

A profitable harvest means getting all the crop possible from your field, clean and free from damage. When your combine was new, all the individual parts worked together as a team. Over many harvest seasons however, components have worn at varying rates, and the teamwork may have broken down. Those worn parts can drastically cut into your profit! But you can prevent grain damage, reduce loss, and keep profits high with our free on farm Combine Inspection. We'll inspect 22 different areas on your combine and give you a full list of items that need attention before your machine goes to the field again. You can have our factory trained service techs make all needed repairs, or we'll send you the parts needed for you to do the work yourself. Either way take advantage of our 180 days No Interest No Payment plan.

BUSINESS ❖ NEWS

GVM Is Spreadin' The News

BIGLERVILLE (Adams Co.) — The Eagle has landed at GVM, Inc. — The Wilmar Eagle Sprayer lines up with GVM's already impressive line of sprayers and spreaders for the precision application industry.

GVM has been given the complete Wilmar line of equipment to sell for Agco/Wilmar. In addition to representing Agco with their line of Spra-Coupe's, GVM will now be handling the Wilmar Eagle, Ranger, and Xplorer sprayers, Wilmar's Wrangler loaders, Loadrunner and Sideshooter tenders, as well as their Highlander pull spreader series.

GVM offers the Prowler series sprayer for row crop application with 1,500-gallon, 1,250-gallon, 1,000-gallon, or 800-gallon stainless steel tank sizing. They also offer the choice of a GVM Double Duty Spreader, which spreads fertilizer as low as 100 pounds per acre and lime up to three tons per acre at speeds up to 12 mph, delivering up to 50 percent savings in costs per acre.

The new GVM Double Duty Spreader is available in 9.5-ton, 8-ton, 6.5-ton, and 5-ton capacities.

GVM also manufactures a HydraSpray 550-G pickup sprayer, which comes fully equipped with a 2001 Ford F-550 SuperDuty 4x4 in a six-speed manual or with an optional automatic transmission.

GVM handles the New Leader G4 Series spreaders, Swinger articulated loaders, Rayman tenders, as well as the GVM line of TranSpread pull spreaders and Mobility pull spreaders.

Pa. Dairy Managers Learn What It Takes To Thrive

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Professional Dairy Managers of Pennsylvania (PDMP), a leading, progressive dairy producers group collaborating with Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, recently toured six new Midwestern dairy farms to learn what makes them successful.

"These farms shared several characteristics," said Bill Heald, professor of dairy science and faculty advisor for PDMP. "But most importantly, they have the attitude that they can be successful and they're going to figure out how to do it."

"They've positioned themselves to take care of their own fate," said Tammy Perkins, Penn State Cooperative Extension assistant and executive secretary for PDMP. "They're in a position, for example, to bargain for their own milk prices. They are less dependent on government supports."

Heald and Perkins describe some of the characteristics observed in the successful dairies:

• Produce milk with low-cost, high-efficiency facilities. "The farms visited milked 400 to 3,000 cows," Heald said. "A large facility allows you to produce more milk for lower cost, because you can divide capital expenses by the number of cows. For instance, you optimize your milk parlor — the largest capital expense — by putting more cows through."

• Contract out less profitable functions. These producers hire someone else to rear young stock, spread manure, plow fields, plant crops, and harvest forages. One farm did nothing but milk cows. "Contracting out allows you to specialize on the most important thing — producing milk — and become really good at it," said Perkins.

• Organized milk marketing. "Every eight hours, one producer runs 50,000 pounds of milk from Ohio to Atlanta, where there's a deficit and better milk prices," Heald said. "This milk arrives fresher than the milk produced in Georgia — a huge advantage — but it takes superior management."

• Employ a Spanish-speaking workforce. "The current strong economy and low unemployment often limits the availability of workers," said Perkins. "Pennsylvania producers may not have considered using a Spanish-speaking workforce because of potential language barriers. But the Spanish-speaking workforce is available, willing to work traditional agricultural hours and skilled — or willing to learn. Interested producers can attend workshops on supervising a multicultural workforce. PDMP also is sponsoring a meeting on Jan. 25 on opportunities with Hispanic workers."

• Sand bedding and local low-cost grains. "It costs more to obtain sand in Pennsylvania than in the Midwest, but it's still cost effective compared to mats and sawdust," Perkins said.

• Information network. "When a problem arises, these producers can get quick advice from across the country and around the world," Heald said.

"In Pennsylvania, PDMP can serve as an information network within the state," Perkins said. "The organization also shares ideas with professional dairy manager groups across the country."

PDMP helps progressive producers to network with other forward-thinking producers and agribusiness leaders. The group sponsors information sessions, technology workshops, and tours of successful farms. Members include producers, veterinarians, feed dealers, construction representatives, lenders, private consultants, and accountants.

For more information, contact Tammy Perkins at (814) 865-4682 or by e-mail at tap10@psu.edu.

FFA Members Give Presentations At Farm Machinery Displays

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — FFA members from 12 Pennsylvania schools presented farm machinery demonstrations to visitors at the 85th Pennsylvania State Farm Show.

This year's expanded farm machinery display features equipment used for preparation, planning and seeding, grain harvesting, and materials handling.

FFA members and sales representatives from every major farm equipment manufacturer were at the Farm Show all week to answer questions and give presentations about the equipment.

Gina Lehman, FFA member from Cumberland Valley FFA, Cumberland County said, "The farm equipment presentations allow FFA members to learn about different types of farm machinery and use that knowledge to educate the public about the process of food production in Pennsylvania."

FFA chapters participating in the demonstrations include Cumberland Valley FFA, Dover FFA, Gettysburg FFA, Greenwood FFA, Manheim Central FFA, McConnellsburg FFA, Middleburg FFA, Mifflinburg FFA, Newport FFA, Solanco FFA, Upper Dauphin FFA, and West Snyder.

Conference To Explore All Aspects Of Modernization, Expansion

ALBANY, N.Y. — Dairy producers seeking information and expert advice about expanding their business, building a new dairy, or modernizing a current facility are invited to attend the Monsanto Dairy Business Modernization and Expansion Conference here, June 26-27.

The two-day conference focuses on topics ranging from business planning and facility design to nutrient management and cow comfort.

Conference speakers include John Smith, Ph.D., Kansas State University; Dave Kohl, Ph.D., Virginia Tech; Mike Gamroth, Oregon State University; Brian Townsend, Five Star Speakers; Miguel Morales, D.V.M., Monsanto Dairy Business; Don Niles, D.V.M., Monsanto Dairy Business; Brian Perkins, Ph.D., PAS, Monsanto Dairy Business; Wayne Weiland, D.V.M., Monsanto Dairy Business; and Gordie Jones, D.V.M., PAS, Continental Milk Producers.

Producers will have the opportunity to interact with industry experts as well as visit with producers from various regions. Some of the conference topics include facility planning and parlor performance, financial planning, nutrient management, labor management, records management, nutritional management, and cow comfort.

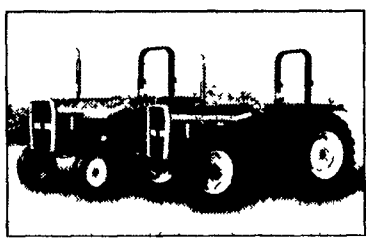
Conference fees are $200 per person, with registration limited to 150 people. For more information or a registration form, contact your Monsanto sales representative.

Utility Tractors Have High-Performance Features

ATLANTA, Ga. — "Two new Massey Ferguson® utility tractors — the MF 271X at 59 PTO horsepower, and MF 281X at 69 PTO horsepower — offer new high performance features to handle primary tillage on small farms, and light tillage, haying, hauling, and other hard usage chores on larger farms," said Tim Wagner, Massey Ferguson general marketing manager.

"We have increased the productivity of these two tractors without stretching the customers budget," said Wagner, "and their performance and versatility also makes them ideal for tough rental firm jobs and grounds maintenance operations."

The MF 271X (2WD) and MF 281X (2 and 4WD) include the quality components and features customers depend on: fuel-efficient Perkins engines, advanced Ferguson system hydraulics, an easy to use transmission with a wide range of working speeds, 4WD front axle engagement on-the-go without clutching, dual-stage "live" PTO, fully adjustable spring suspension seats, and folding ROPS.



Two new Massey Ferguson utility tractors, MF 271X (59 PTO HP) and MF 281X (69 PTO HP), offer high performance features and increased productivity at a value price.

Power is supplied by 1000 Series Perkins four-cylinder diesel engines with a Fastram™ combustion system that converts more fuel to energy, improves power and torque, is quieter during operation, and meets all Stage 1 Off-highway emission standards. A long five-inch stroke produces maximum torque at low engine rpm for better performance.

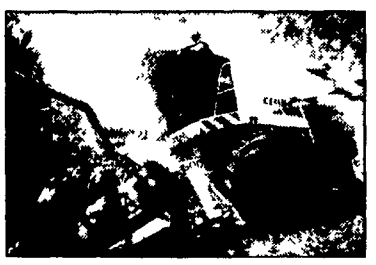
An 8Fx2R manual transmission is standard equipment with two speeds for slow operations, four working speeds for mowing, baling hay, tillage, spraying and other field operations, and two high speed gears are for transport.

Claas To Exhibit Its New Forage Harvesters

COLUMBUS, Ind. — Claas of America will exhibit its new Jaguar® self-propelled forage harvesters at the 2001 New York Farm Show, Syracuse, N.Y., Feb. 22-24 in Lot EE.

The new Jaguar® 830/850/870/890/900 Series self-propelled forage harvesters are designed to deliver high performance and optimum processing in heavy work conditions. The result is a clean chop, top-quality forage, and high throughput.

Featuring a 29-inch wide chopping cylinder with 20 or 24 knives arranged in V-formation, the Jaguars provide a scissor cut for excellent quality chop. Knife sharpening and shear bar adjustment on the new harvesters is done from the cab to the point of contact to minimize power requirements and fuel consumption. Redesigned feed rollers offer increased durability and a new length of cut gear box featuring an hydraulic reverser and six cutting lengths.



Claas of America will exhibit its new Jaguar® self-propelled forage harvesters at the 2001 New York Farm Show in Lot EE.

The new Jaguars also feature high power, newly designed, Mercedes-Benz engines. Providing increased torque and equipped with electronic fuel injection, the engines deliver power very rapidly and lower fuel consumption and service costs. Jaguar Models 830, 850, and 870 have inline 6 cylinder engines. Models 890 and 900 have a V-8. The rugged engines deliver 321 HP in the Model 830 Jaguar, 389 HP in the Model 850, 438 HP in the Model 870, 503 HP in the Model 890 Jaguar, and 605 HP in the Model 900.

Other features include a new generation cab that is designed for driver comfort and ease of use. Equipped with heat and air conditioning, the cab provides an optimal work environment while an air suspension driver's seat delivers a more comfortable ride.

Controls are near at hand. The newly designed multifunction hydrostatic control lever is mounted on the seat. The new C.I.S. (Claas Information System) displays all important information is an easy to view LCD screen. Large windows provide driver with an excellent view of all functions and each have their own pull down sunshade. Front and side windows have wipers and washers.

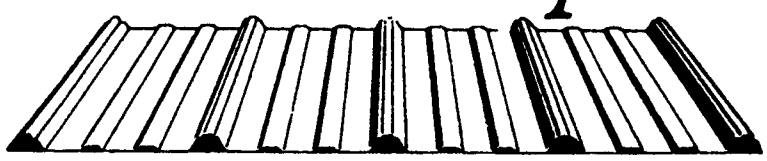
Rural Economy



Cost-efficient Centurydrain® roofing and siding is on some of the best looking buildings in the country.

Build with Centurydrain roofing and siding and you've built a money-wise structure. Full-hard, high tensile galvanized steel, and an exclusive drain channel for a dry interior give you a building that'll handle years of hard duty and hard weather. Good looking, too. Crisp lines and plenty of bright, long-lasting colors make Wheeling Centurydrain as handsome as it is economical.

Want Milk?

Four Ways We Deliver More...

#1 More By-pass, More Milk – Weaver's Toasted Beans offer consistently higher by-pass protein cows need to make more milk.

#2 More Production per Protein Unit – Toasting provides consistently superior protein release from every bean, without variations that can tie up amino acids.

#3 More Rumen-Friendly Source – Toasting is gentle. Digestibility is improved. Energy (oil) is retained inside the bean to minimize impact on the rumen environment.

Now you can get more energy, improved palatability, and better digestibility from corn...

WEAVER'S TOASTED FLAKED CORN
High density energy value for the dairy ration

- Time-tested, controlled hot air process maximizes quality & bin life.
- Toasting starts the digestive process, so rumen microbes access more nutrients.
- For FREE STORAGE and flexible delivery, try Weaver's Grain Bank system.

ROASTING ADDS VALUE TO FARM GRAINS

~ Molds are destroyed and toxins are greatly reduced to below tolerance levels.

OPTIONS IN FEEDING

Your Dairy Herd

Call us today for a feeding program built to fit your Dairy Herd and your Production Goals.

For maximum performance and income over feed cost, rations should be balanced to provide the optimum levels of degradable and undegradable protein, nonstructural and structural (fiber) carbohydrate as well as minerals and vitamins. This allows for maximum utilization of the rumen microbes and total ration efficiency Because you needs may be different from your neighbor's, we adjust the following nutrients and ingredients to fit your needs and goals

- Amino Acids
- Protein
- By-Pass Protein
- Energy
- Fiber
- Calcium
- Phosphorus

NEW HOLLAND

Reliable performer

NEW HOLLAND

Year after year it's made New Holland box spreaders number one in North America.

- Worm gear drive transfers power smoothly to the apron.
- T-rod apron chain operates with less initial wear and no slacking.
- Bonded Protection 12-year warranty on floors and sides. If the polyethylene floor fails or the sides rust, you'll get new ones – FREE!

NEW HOLLAND

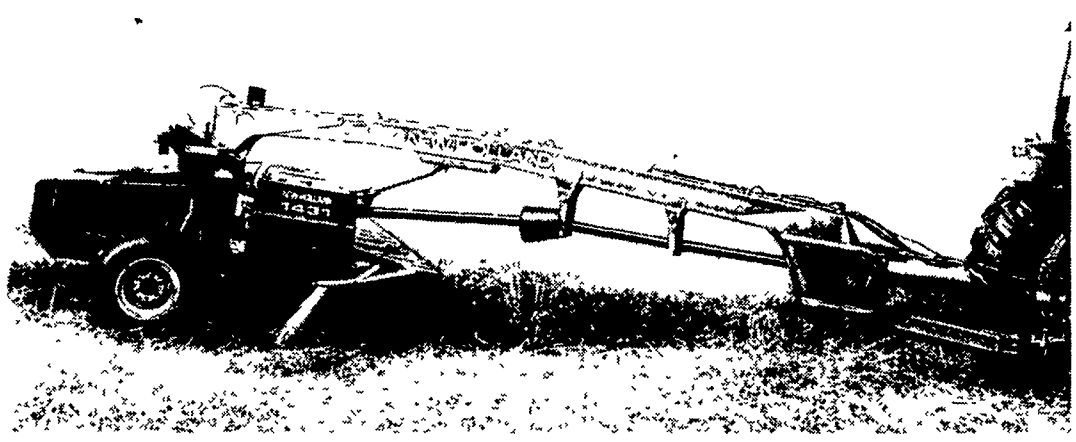
Whether you're light top dressing, laying down a heavy layer, or anything in between, the Model 3110 puts the right amount of material right where you need it.

- Handles a wide variety of material - slurry, gutter material, cow manure, even poultry litter.
- V-tank design delivers material to the auger fast.
- Heavy-duty round-core auger produces less drag.
- Double-acting hydraulic cylinder moves auger up and down to keep material flowing.
- Hydraulic gate and specially designed expeller give precise application control.
- Backed by a 10-year warranty against tank rust-through.

NEW HOLLAND

See us for all your spreader needs.

Cut faster... condition better



For greater maneuverability and higher efficiency, nothing beats the Model 1431 Discbine® disc mower-conditioner from New Holland. It features a 13' cutting width, and operates at high ground speeds in wet, heavy grass without plugging. Fire anthills and gopher mounds won't stop the new Model 1431 either.
Outstanding features include:

- A center pivot-tongue design
- Independent modular cutterbar with ten small-diameter cutting discs
- 102" wide conditioning rolls
- A full range of vertical and lateral flotation
- A torsion-bar roll-pressure system
- A cutterbar driven from both ends

For maximum harvesting efficiency, check out the Model 1431 Discbine. It's the best in the field.
